FLORISTS' CATALOG

OF

Seeds, Bulbs and Florists' Supplies for the Garden, Field and Greenhouse.

We are beginning our forty-fifth year in the seed business, and cannot help but feel gratified at our constantly growing list of customers. The fact that our customers come to us year after year proves that our seeds have been satisfactory, and that has been our aim - to supply seeds of such quality that our patrons will be perfectly satisfied and will come back the next year, bringing along their friends. To our patrons we would say that our future service will be of the same high class as in the past, and to those who have never purchased seeds from us we would say, "Give us a trial"-- you will then join the ranks of those who have bought from us for years, and to whose commendations we owe the success of our business.

Burpee's Primulinus Hybrid Gladioli

The most graceful in form, artistic in color, and profuse in bloom of all Gladioli. They have made a sensation wherever they have been exhibited and will be in tremendous demand for cut flowers. Although the individual flowers are not large, they carry an air of grace altogether different from the more or less stiff effect of all other Gladioli. Furthermore, these hybrids produce three or sometimes four fully developed flower spikes from a single bulb planted in the spring. In color they range through the usual Gladiolus shades, with the addition of rich golden yellow and orange.

5324 Ada. Dainty white flowers with red centers.
12 for $1.65; 100 for $10.50.

5325 Queen Victoria. Bright glittering pink with silvery rose throat.
12 for $1.90; 100 for $12.00.

5326 Mrs. Grullemans. Clear, true yellow.
12 for $1.65; 100 for $10.50.

5327 L'Unique. Rich Bronze with an orange-yellow center.
12 for $1.65; 100 for $10.50.

5328 Fire Queen. Dazzling orange-vermilion with yellow throat. 12 for $1.65; 100 for $10.50.

5329 Violet Queen. Velvety violet; very fine.
12 for $1.65; 100 for $10.50.

5320 Orange Brilliant. Flaming orange; an early bloomer.
12 for $1.90; 100 for $12.00.

5319 Maiden's Blush. Dainty Enchantress-pink, extra early.
12 for $1.90; 100 for $12.00.

SEED GROWERS PHILADELPHIA

MR. GEORGE BALL, Glen Ellyn, Ill. Chicago, November 9th, 1920.
Dear Sir:—We feel impelled to tell you the high praise that we have received from our customers concerning your White Aster. In addition to its magnificent form, it also has the advantage of being an excellent keeper and one of the best sellers that we have to offer. We take great pleasure in recommending this variety to anyone for either commercial or private growing, as it is superior to any other White Aster. Very truly yours,
THE CHICAGO FLOWER GROWERS' ASSOCIATION.

BALL'S WHITE ASTER

The seed of this splendid Giant Aster of the Late Branching type—the product of twelve years' selection to develop a perfectly double flower, of flawless color—is offered in 1921 for the first time.

In the Fall of 1908 a plant was found among Late Branching White Asters on which the flowers were solidly double, so much so that, from eight to ten flowers, only fifty seedlings were grown the following year.

It has been grown and the seed carefully selected every season since. In 1918, three-quarters of an acre netted $2,320. An exceptionally good market helped, but this variety has always sold for 50% more than ordinary White Asters.

The flowering season comes between the early and late, when the market usually is best. It grows to a medium height with full, distinctively centered blossoms, ideally formed for long distance shipping.

Per large trade packet, containing about 4000 seeds,

Seedsmen wishing to catalogue this splendid New Aster, please write.

4-inch pots, $50 per 100

Every retail store and grower should feature Crotons this Easter and Spring. We know our stock will please you and your customer.

DRACAENAS

There is no variety of foliage plant so attractive as the highly colored Dracaena. The small and medium sizes can be used to great advantage in making up the popular Easter baskets, while the large specimens have always been in great demand for decorative purposes. We are now growing more Dracaenas, in greater variety, than any firm in this country.

Dracaena Godseffiana

Green and white leaf, very hardy, fine for baskets.

2½-inch pots, $20 per 100.

3-inch pots, $35 per 100.

We have always made it prominent in our printed terms that our goods are sold F. O. B. cars at the point of shipment and are at the purchaser's risk in transit. Because of the present unsettled conditions we wish to emphasize still further that we do not guarantee safe delivery. The ownership of all goods sold by us passes to the purchaser on delivery by us to the carrier, and the issuing of the receipt by the carrier ends our responsibility. Any claims for damage should be made promptly to the agent at the point of delivery. CORRESPONDENCE: We endeavor to answer all correspondence promptly, but owing to the pressure of business, we ask that all requests be clearly and concisely stated. ERRORS: Keep a copy of your order. We aim to have our orders correctly filled. When we are at fault we shall make satisfactory correction.

THE FLORISTS' REVIEW

HANDLING HEATHER FOR POT PLANTS

If you have already started cuttings of erica, here are instructions regarding their care, written by an expert at them. If you haven't some now, save this page, for sooner or later you will want to grow some of this splendid plant for holiday sale.

By ANTON SCHULTHEIS.

HEATHER, or erica, to give it the botanical name, has risen rapidly in popular favor and florists all over the country this year have reported increasing sales for this plant. The culture is not so difficult as that of some other flowering plants, and florists may find in it a profitable substitute for the azalea and other plants, the production of which has been restricted by quarantine.

We place our cuttings in flats in December or as late as January, potting them in 1¾-inch pots about April and May, some as late as June.

We plunge them out in beds by the end of June or July, shading them somewhat. The beds should be a little higher than the surrounding ground, to avoid flooding them for any length of time in storms, as that would mean death to the young growing plants, with their roots finer than hair. We commence repotting these plants about August or September, into 2½-inch or 2¾-inch pots. This process of repotting must be kept up continually to insure fair-sized plants by next fall.

Potting and Repotting.

The final potting should be in about 4½ to 5-inch pots. The 2-year-old plants are sharply cut back after blooming and left standing in a cool house until they show signs of new growth. It is then advisable to repot and give, on an average, pots larger by one inch. Vigorous varieties may require an increase of from one and one-half to two inches in shifting, keeping them under glass until fairly rooted through, and plunging them outdoors during July, August, September and even October. Before frost, remove them to a cold house, where the flowering buds will gradually develop. All ericas after buds have developed can be forced into bloom in a temperature not to exceed 80 degrees. Some varieties do not require 60 degrees.

Now, for varieties. Earliest of all is Erica ovata, a light lavender, sweet-scented, tall and graceful-growing, which comes into bloom about the end of October or beginning of November and can be kept until Christmas in good shape. It needs no heat whatever. A temperature of 40 degrees would be the maximum.

Next are the Christmas varieties, which are given in their order of blooming. Erica President Felix Faure, a highly colored cerise suffused with red orange tints, is tall-growing, with fine, long sprays, and has flower trumpets from one and one-half to two inches long. Next is President Carnot, having a trumpet one to two inches long, a pleasing shade of pink, going into salmon. This is a perfect and shapely plant.

Leading Varieties.

Next is the new variety, Erica Hielana. The flowers are one to one and one-half inches long, of a pleasing orange color, going into yellow, tinted and shaded pink. Erica regerminans is a beautiful shade of lavender, tinting to pure white, and makes an excellent, compact plant for basket-filling work. The 2-year-old plants are magnificent, globular-shaped and highly desirable as single plants in baskets. Now to the last and most important variety, Erica melanthera, or Erica fragrans. The flower is cup-shaped and perfectly white, with a brownish center. It is used in large quantities at Christmas and New Year's for all purposes. Specimen plants sold up to $25 at wholesale last year.

Without forcing, in a temperature of from 50 to 55 degrees, a most delightful pink variety with the name of King Edward VII can be kept for Easter. Of this variety, 2-year-old plants make most beautiful specimens.

Next comes the climber of South Africa, with its flowers of deep maroon, shaped something between sweet peas and Genista racemosa. In size of bloom, it is more like the latter. Chorizema blooms about the end of January and through February. It is a strong grower of climbing habit and can be tied in all shapes.

The Erica Is a Most Attractive Holiday Offering.

For Easter Blooming.

Next come the varieties which can be easily held for Easter. Some have to be kept warmer to get them in for an early Easter, such as this year's. At any rate, the grower's judgment must be his guide in getting things right for the holiday. Erica persoluta alba is a pure white, covered with thousands of small, round flowers. The plants have a graceful growth, with long branches. Erica persoluta rosea is a beautiful, shell-pink bell, a perfect plant as to shape. Erica perfecta is a pink bell, new and of an improved variety. The shape and growing habit are something between the two foregoing varieties.

Erica cylindrica is upright, compact and a highly desirable variety. The flowers are from one to one and one-half inches in length and of a pleasing shade of orange pink.

Next comes Erica cupressina, one of the most graceful varieties, with its bergamot porcelain colored bells, of the shape of lily of the valley. This variety wants from 50 to 65 degrees of heat from March 1 until it is ready for Easter blooming.

There is still another variety, which, if handled properly, beats all others in gracefulness. Its nice, red bells are one and one-half to two inches long. This is Erica translucens.

The remaining varieties include several of the older ones which we no longer grow, for various reasons; namely, Erica gracilis, E. gracilis autumnalis, E. Vilmoreana, E. hyemalis and others.

GLOXINIAS FROM SEED.

Kindly let me know when is the right time to sow gloxinia seed. Also describe the best method of growing the plants and state the approximate length of time from seed-sowing till flowering.

K. P. & T. F.—Pa.

The usual time for sowing the seed is early in February. If the sowing is done then and if no check in growth is permitted throughout the season, the plants should begin to flower not later than the middle of August. A few blooms may be produced even in July. One of the essentials to success in the culture of gloxinias is to keep them in steady, active growth.

Sow the seed in pans or shallow boxes, using a finely sifted compost which contains a good proportion of leaf-mold and sand, with some peat, also, if it is readily obtainable. A highly recommended compost consists of equal parts of peat, leaf-mold and sand. Moisten the soil thoroughly before sowing. As the seeds are extremely small, little or no soil should be scattered over them. Cover the pans with glass and shade them from direct sunlight. In a sufficiently warm temperature, about 60 degrees at night, the seedlings will begin to appear in about ten days.

As soon as the seedlings are large enough to be handled conveniently, transfer them singly to thumb pots and repot promptly as soon as the soil is well filled with roots. If grown along with the desired rapidity, in light but well enriched soil, the plants should be ready for the final potting by the end of May. The ideal compost for this potting, it is said, would consist of two parts black loam, one part peat, and the remainder of leaf-mold, sand and crushed charcoal, but that formula may be modified, of course, to suit circumstances. In potting, be careful not to injure the foliage, as it is easily bruised. A humid atmosphere, with protection from bright sunshine and from drafts, is among the requisites. Yet the foliage should not be moistened unnecessarily, or it may damp off. Throughout the season, therefore, great care is necessary in watering. Frequent syringing may be needed in hot weather, to insure freedom from thrips and red spider, but the spray should be directed under the foliage rather than over it.

During the blooming period a drier atmosphere is required, to prevent damping of the flowers. If the flowers are cut as soon as they develop, or are removed as soon as they pass their prime, the plants will continue to bloom until late in the fall. Then the leaves will begin to mature and water should be gradually withheld until this ripening process is completed, when the corms should be stored away for the winter in a temperature of about 45 degrees and should be kept just moist enough to prevent shriveling. About the middle of February the corms will show signs of growth and batches of them may then be started as desired.

ADVERTISING AND ACTION.

It is small wonder that retailers in New York city are putting two and two together and suggesting that the general improvement in market conditions at that city, which came last week, was the result of the activities of the Allied Florists' Trade Association of New York, if such publicity as that which appeared in the New York Evening Post, March 8, is a sample of the general work of the new organization.

A general announcement was made by the Allied Florists' Trade Association that prices of flowers had, in most cases, returned to prewar levels and that the public was invited to buy. Combining with this an interview with Harold G. Perry, general manager of Dards, the publicity workers obtained the publication of three-quarters of a column of the best kind of advertising possible. The new prices are quoted in detail and explanation offered for recalcitrants in the general downward movement, such as American Beauties.

"Flowers are down," it commences. "You can buy them again. Now, with the coming of the spring, the shops are places to which one may go again for joy and come out with something other than bafflement in his buttonhole or in her belt or in a long and lovely twisted package. Flowers are down, and Easter will be some fun again this year, . . . and no one is gladder about it than the men who sell. Nothing is harder to do without than flowers, when you long for them and spring has come."

Such publicity in an important daily paper, coupled with the immediate and important effect upon the New York market, is surely a feather in the cap of the newly formed Allied Florists' Trade Association of New York and bodes well for its achievement in the great eastern market.

Saginaw, Mich.—Gustav A. Granse, former manager of the east side store of the Roethke Floral Co., has purchased the establishment of J. B. Goetz Sons, at Michigan avenue and Adams street. Henry B. Goetz and his brother, Fred J. Goetz, will devote their entire time to their greenhouses, at 2165 Mackinaw street.

NEW YORK'S BIG SHOW

INTERNATIONAL FLOWER SHOW.

Eighth Annual Exhibition Opens.

After months of preparation, the eighth international flower show opened in the Grand Central Palace, New York, Monday, March 14, at 2 p. m., to close on the evening of Sunday, March 20. Within half an hour from the opening the aisles were thronged with visitors, and at all times until the hour of closing for the day there were large crowds.

Some complaint was heard at the close of the 1920 show as to the sameness characteristic of previous shows, in the way of the layout and arrangement, and the management this year heartily approved the floor plans prepared by Show Manager Arthur Herrington, which resulted in a complete change in the layout.

Entering the Palace.

As one enters the building from Lexington avenue his attention is caught by a display of window and porch boxes located upon the ledges along the stairways. These are exhibits in a class provided by the Garden Clubs of America, and open to garden clubs and amateurs, and all are worthy of commendation. The main aisle of the exhibition runs from the head of this stairway, between the rows of central columns, and is arched at intervals by trellises, upon which are trained climbing roses, chiefly of the Tausendschoen variety. At the farther end of the aisle is a magnificent group of acacias and clivias, staged by Mrs. F. A. Constable, of Mamaroneck, N. Y., under the direction of James Stuart, her superintendent, who is a member of the flower show committee. Flanked by large acacias is a heroic bronze statue of a nude male, the work of Mrs. Payne Whitney, a sculptress of no mean order, and herself a prominent exhibitor in the show. At the intersection of each cross aisle a charming vista is presented, the groups of flowering plants, the gardeners' exhibits, the big rose exhibits and other interesting arrangements.

Four Big Gardens.

Without doubt the features of prime importance are the gardens laid out under the class schedule calling for "the best development of a garden, covering 1,000 square feet." The widest latitude was allowed in this class, and the four exhibitors took full advantage of it, each exhibit being distinctly different. Each garden had an aisle corner, the positions aiding in the charming effect of the show.

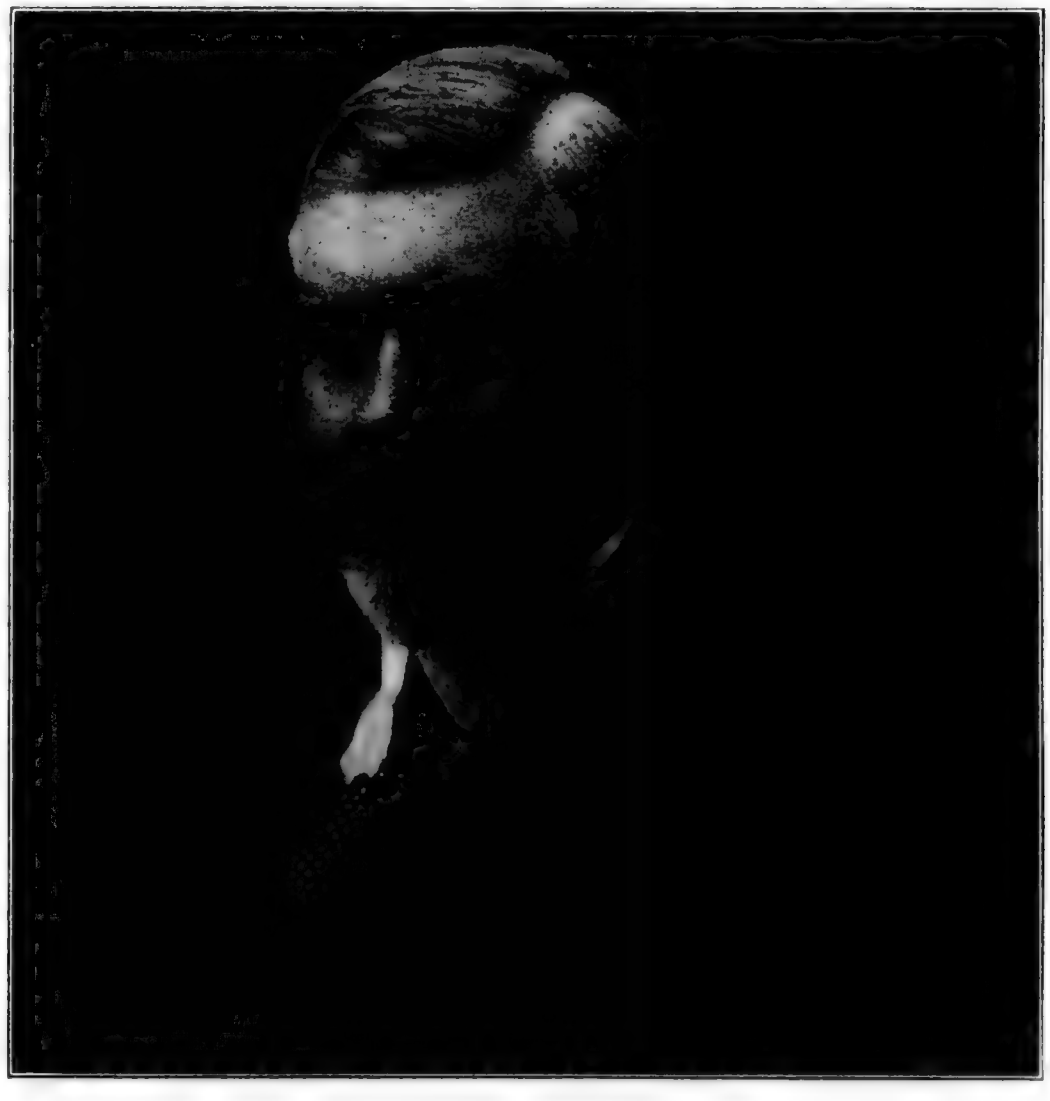
The sum of $4,000 was appropriated for division among these four exhibitors, and there was a sweepstake prize of $500 for the best exhibit in the class. John Scheepers, Inc., was the winner of the sweepstakes prize, with a bulb garden most artistically laid out, practical in every way, with a color scheme in which blue, yellow and pink predominated.

This garden was rectangular in shape, with one side and end on main and cross aisles. It was neatly laid out in grass, and at the south end was a background of cedars, with a niche on which was a bronze statuette. The center, rectangular, was sunken, and contained a bronze fountain, continually playing. A hedge of cedar surrounded the whole. Individual bed plantings were of hyacinths, tulips, and tulips and pansies. The outer borders carried Darwin tulips, and trees of apple, hawthorn and peach in bloom. The general effect was superb.

Bobbink & Atkins' Garden.

Azaleas were the principal subjects of Bobbink & Atkins' garden, and it showed what might be expected of this firm in future azalea requirements. The general effect was of color masses, well devised, composed of Ghent azaleas and A. mollis. The beds were rectangular in shape, laid out from greensward. In the center of a background of hybrid rhododendrons, fronted by Azalea amœna, was a pergola, on which was blue and white wistaria. In the outer border were specimens of andromeda, hawthorn, flowering apple and peach, roses and flowering shrubs. The surrounding hedge was of Taxus cuspidata, with English ivy for a lower planting.

F. R. Pierson's Garden.



F. R. Pierson's garden showed more than ordinary skill in its conception. A slope of greensward led from a scenic representation of an English ancestral home, in proportion and perspective well suited to the plan adopted, and a landscape planting, always a dangerous thing, was attempted and carried out in a remarkable manner. A path wound diametrically to one end of the house, and foundation and relief plantings were skillfully carried out. Conifers were judiciously used, with ferns and magnolias in flower. Perennial bedding was also shown in good taste. At the right was a small rose garden, sunken, reached by steps from the slope above. A box edging enclosed the garden.

Julius Roehrs Co. Garden.

The garden of the Julius Roehrs Co. was elevated from the floor, with a hedge of hemlock on a wall of rocks. A path ran from the entrance to a greenhouse, in which was a splendid stock of flowering and foliage plants, including orchids. A massed border of hybrid rhododendrons, enlivened by Japanese azaleas, was a feature of the arrangement, with perennials mixed with plants of Daphne aneorum. Magnolias, lilacs, crabapple, peaches and plums were conspicuous in the borders. The entrance to the garden was under a trellised arch of roses.

Commercial Exhibits.

commercial exhibits, although some of the larger ones of previous years were missed, and some were cut down from the usual proportions. But of the trade section in particular, it may be said that not one foot of unreserved space was available at the opening of the show.

General Features.

The entries in the competitive section were larger than ever before, and taxed the floor capacity to the utmost. The orchid section was much larger than usual, and the cut flowers were forced to the second floor. There was a good showing of greenhouse exhibits, practically all of the builders being represented. The seedsmen were prominent and staged fine exhibits. Bulbs, lawn mowers and horticultural supplies all were strongly in evidence, and it could hardly be suggested that one item of supplies was omitted.

A strong feature of the private exhibits this year was the class for a bird bath with planting 7x7 feet. Seven entries were filled by different garden clubs, and competition was keen. The Garden Club of Somerset Hills, N. Y., carried off the chief prize with a most creditable exhibit.

A. L. Miller, Jamaica, staged some fine groups of flowering and foliage plants, not for competition, and conformed his exhibits to the general plan. His stagings were of great help toward the general effect of the show.

Seldom has such fine bulbous stock been seen as that staged in the private classes. Hyacinths, tulips and narcissi were seen at an unusual standard of perfection.

The attendance is all that could be desired, that of the first day being in advance of that at other shows. The weather is springlike and warm, and conducive to a large attendance.

Flowering Plants.

Awards in those classes calling for group or garden of plants in flower, staged on the opening day, were as follows:

Acacia, three plants, one or more varieties—Louis Dupuy, Whitestone, N. Y., first.
Acacia, specimen, any variety—F. R. Pierson, Tarrytown, N. Y., first.
Azalea indica, three plants—Bobbink & Atkins, Rutherford, N. J., first.
Azalea indica, one plant, specimen—Bobbink & Atkins, first.
Genista, two plants—Madsen & Christensen, Wood Ridge, N. J., first.
Genista, one plant specimen—Madsen & Christensen, first.
Genista, three standards, specimens—Madsen & Christensen, first.
Lilac, six specimen plants—Bobbink & Atkins, second.
Marguerite, six plants—Madsen & Christensen, first; F. R. Pierson, second.
Marguerite, specimen—Madsen & Christensen, first.
Spiræa, or astilbe, six plants, one or more varieties—Bobbink & Atkins, first; A. N. Pierson, Cromwell, Conn., second.

Foliage and Bulbous Plants.

F. R. Pierson was the only entrant in the fern classes for commercial growers, winning first prizes for Adiantum Farleyense, Cibotium Schiedei, collection of ferns and specimen ferns.

But two entrants were in the trade classes for bulbous plants. F. R. Pierson took first for twenty-five pots of lilies. J. G. Scheepers, Inc., was awarded first prizes on six 10-inch pots or pans of hyacinths, in the classes for white, light blue and yellow.

In the classes for palms and foliage plants all the first prizes awarded, seven in number, went to Bobbink & Atkins, on variously shaped box and bay trees and on twelve trained ivies. The three second prizes which were awarded went to Max Schling, New York, on variously shaped box trees.

Orchids.

Splendid exhibits were to be seen in the orchid classes, the leading commercial firms being well represented. The awards were:

Group of plants in variety, covering 300 square feet, arranged for effect—Julius Roehrs Co., first; Joseph Manda Co., second.
Group of twenty-five plants in variety, arranged for effect—Lager & Hurrell, Summit, N. J., first; James B. Duke, second.
Group of twelve plants in variety, arranged for effect—James B. Duke, first.
Six hybrid orchids—Julius Roehrs Co., first; Geo. E. Baldwin Co., second.
Collection of cut orchids covering 100 square feet, decorative greens permitted—Julius Roehrs Co., first; Joseph Manda Co., second.

Climbing Roses.

Roses in pots and tubs attracted a few entries. In these classes the awards on the opening day were as follows:

Climbing, red, specimen—Louis Dupuy, first.
Climbing, pink, specimen—Louis Dupuy, first; A. N. Pierson, Inc., second.
Climbing, yellow, specimen—A. N. Pierson, Inc., first.
Any other rose, specimen—Louis Dupuy, first.

Cut Roses.

Nearly every class calling for cut roses had entries and most of the exhibits found keen competition. Most of the entrants were from the east, except the Joseph H. Hill Co., whose Premier from Richmond, Ind., captured first prize. The awards were announced as follows:

Fifty Mrs. Frank W. Dunlop—Joseph Heacock Co., Roelofs, Pa., first; L. B. Coddington, Murray Hill, N. J., second.
Fifty Pilgrim—A. N. Pierson, Inc., first; Joseph Heacock Co., second.
One hundred American Beauty—Noe & Ruzicka, Madison, N. J., first; Gude Bros. Co., Washington, D. C., second.
One hundred Columbia—Florex Gardens, North Wales, Pa., first; L. B. Coddington, second.
One hundred Francis Scott Key—F. R. Pierson, first; Traendly & Schenck, Rowayton, Conn., second.
One hundred Hadley—Duckham-Pierson Co., Madison, N. J., first; Joseph Heacock Co., second.
One hundred Hoosier Beauty—F. R. Pierson, second.
One hundred Mrs. Charles Russell—F. R. Pierson, second.
One hundred Ophelia, or any of its sports—Florex Gardens, first; Duckham-Pierson Co., second.
One hundred Premier—Joseph H. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind., first; Duckham-Pierson Co., second.
One hundred White Killarney or any white sport of same—A. N. Pierson, Inc., first; Florex Gardens, second.
Fifty Crusader—Joseph Heacock Co., first; Traendly & Schenck, second.
Fifty Mrs. Aaron Ward—Traendly & Schenck, first; A. N. Pierson, Inc., second.
Fifty Sunburst—W. W. Vert, Madison, N. J., first.
Twenty-five any undisseminated variety, red—Noe & Ruzicka, silver medal.
Twenty-five any undisseminated variety, pink—F. R. Pierson, silver medal.
Twenty-five any undisseminated variety, white—Joseph H. Hill Co., silver medal.

Carnation Classes.

The awards in the carnation classes, March 16, attracted much interest. Results were as follows:

One hundred white—Springfield Floral Co., Springfield, N. J., first; J. B. Abrams, Blue Point, N. Y., second.
One hundred light pink—Springfield Floral Co., first; M. Matheson, Baldwins, N. Y., second.
One hundred dark pink—M. Matheson, first; Springfield Floral Co., second.
One hundred red—Springfield Floral Co., first; Lecluse & Lecluse, Blue Point, N. Y., second.
One hundred crimson—Strout's, Inc., Biddeford, Me., first.
One hundred white variegated—Strout's, Inc., first.
One hundred yellow—Strout's, Inc., first.
One hundred Laddie—S. J. Goddard, Framingham, Mass., first; Springfield Floral Co., second.
One hundred any new variety—Strout's, Inc., first.

Prize-Winning Gardeners.

The prize-winners among the private growers the opening day were: J. W. Smith, gardener for Mrs. F. E. Lewis, Ridgefield, Conn.; R. Hughes, gardener for James A. Macdonald, Flushing, N. Y.; Andrew Strachan, gardener for Wm. B. Thompson, Yonkers, N. Y.; Joseph A. Winsock, gardener for Mrs. Wm. D. Guthrie, Locust Valley, N. Y.; John Canning, gardener for Adolph Lewisohn, Ardsley, N. Y.; George Ferguson, gardener for Mrs. Payne Whitney, Manhasset, R. I.; Max Schneider, gardener for Peter Hauck, Jr., East Orange, N. J.; J. F. Johnson, gardener for Mrs. Geo. D. Pratt, Glen Cove, N. Y.; Herbert Collins, gardener for Ralph Pulitzer, Manhasset, R. I.; James Linane, gardener for Mrs. F. H. Allen, Pelham Manor, N. Y.; W. R. Fowkes, gardener for Howard Cole, Madison, N. J.; William Kleinheinz, gardener for Joseph E. Widener, Ogontz, Pa.; E. J. McCormick, gardener for Countess Mil-

ADVERTISERS PLEASE NOTE

The steadily increasing size of The Review, both in number of pages and in circulation, makes it imperative that advertising copy be obtained farther in advance of publication date. In order that forms may be held open as late as possible, advertisers are urged to send instructions (to start or change) to reach Chicago Thursday, Friday or Saturday, whenever possible. Monday is the last day on which instructions regarding display advertisements can be received for the issue of that week.

COVER CROPS.

Nature's Method.

The scarcity of organic fertilizers of all kinds and consequent high prices are bringing the importance of cover crops more and more into prominence. For many years growers of citrus and other fruits have demonstrated the great value of growing green crops and turning them under to form humus. The same conditions apply to land used for florists' crops and a little thought given to this phase of culture will be well repaid. It has become an axiom that the cultivation of one kind of crop for many years on the same piece of land leads not only to poverty of the soil, but also to toxic conditions.

A piece of land left to itself without plowing, irrigating or any other attention rests up. The natural vegetation springs up and, in the form of annual weeds, is taken back into the soil when these die in fall or winter. Deeper rooting perennial weeds, by penetrating the soil, break up the lower strata, and allow air and water to enter, with obvious beneficial results. They also remove poisons left by other plants, use them up in their own internal economy, and return the elaborated residue in fallen foliage, decaying stems and dying roots.

Helping Nature.

But while this resting of soil is a great thing, it is not always possible to leave a piece of land long enough to recover naturally and this is where cover planting is of the greatest value. The various legumes are higly prized for their nitrogen-gathering propensities. There are many localities in southern California, especially old sheep pastures, that are full of burr clover seeds and these, if left to themselves, will produce a green cover that is more valuable as a soil tonic and humus producer than the most expensive of fertilizers.

In other places the wild geranium, or crane's bill, known to seedsmen by various aliases, makes a fine cover crop without sowing or any trouble, beyond breaking up the surface before the rainy season sets in. The wild mallow, again, is invaluable, producing an immense leaf area and delving with its long, pointed roots into the hardest subsoil for several feet. Then this is disked under in early spring and the roots decay, leaving their vertical tunnels open to let the water into the soil, to be later taken up by capillary attraction to the roots of growing crops.

Soils left to this beneficial, natural method of what may almost be termed reconstruction are more suitable to the average flower crop than others heavily dressed with expensive fertilizers, for no addition of any beneficial element or elements can remove the poisons left by continuous cropping. Nothing but the growth of an entirely different plant can do this effectually and return to the soil at the same time the life-giving humus in an available form. The writer has again and again proved the value of this method of soil enrichment and purification and can recommend it highly to all brother flower growers who are anxious to put a few dollars into their own pockets, instead of into those of the dealer in fertilizers.

By no means is it intended to decry the proper use of fertilizers, either natural or chemical, but when the great, natural forces working day and night around us can be used to benefit at the same time both our soil and our pocketbook, it "makes good medicine."

IRIS TINGITANA ON COAST.

The illustration on this page depicts a field of Iris tingitana on the Pacific coast, showing how well it can be grown in California. The flowers are left on until they are well open and then cut without foliage to allow all the strength to go to the bulb, thus permitting it to force well under glass. A. Miller, of the American Bulb Co., Chicago, and the grower are seen in the picture inspecting the crop. Upon advice that the crop was in full bloom, Mr. Miller started immediately for the coast to determine its being the true type of Iris tingitana.

Charleston, S. C.—The retail store of H. Schmidt has been purchased by the Magnolia Floral Co. The proprietors are J. O. Livingston and R. S. Racklay.

Elmore, O.—E. A. Hilgeneck reports encouraging conditions this season, with 20,000 pansies of the finest quality as a result of an ideal winter. He is contemplating growing a large crop of asters this year.

Hastings, Neb.—C. William Sidles has been making wonderful strides this year in his retail establishment, on North Minnesota avenue. A carnation house, 38x150 feet, has recently been added. In addition to the new greenhouse, a modern office building has been erected. Other improvements have also been made this year. According to this firm, the time is close at hand when nine houses of the old range will be torn down and replaced by modern structures.

AT SAGINAW

MICHIGAN FLORISTS ELECT.

Convention at Saginaw.

On the closing day of the Michigan State Florists' Association convention, which was held at the Masonic temple, Saginaw, Tuesday and Wednesday, March 8 and 9, the election of officers was held. Those chosen to serve the organization the ensuing year were as follows:

President—S. W. Coggan, Battle Creek.

Vice-president—Henry Smith, Grand Rapids.

Secretary—Robert M. Plumb, Detroit.

Treasurer—W. S. Wells, Ann Arbor.

Director—J. A. Bissinger, Lansing.

Extensive publicity had been given the convention for several weeks previously, which rewarded the association with a splendid attendance. Visiting florists, their wives and a host of Saginaw people who attended the flower show, which was a feature of the occasion and open to the public, united in pronouncing it one of the finest that have ever been put on in that part of the state.

Professor Coons Speaks.

On the opening day, Tuesday, March 8, the feature of the afternoon was an address by Professor G. H. Coons, of the Michigan Agricultural College, Lansing. Professor Coons likened the ailments of flowers to those of human beings. "Did you ever stop to think," said he, "that plants, just like human beings, have diseases all their own; that some horticultural equivalent of the germs that plague human beings afflicts flowers too; that a florist must be a doctor as well as a connoisseur of the beautiful?"

Professor Coons continued his address by showing the care of flowers in a diseased condition and the necessity of careful treatment for various diseases, just as is necessary in case of contagious diseases of persons. To prevent the spreading of such diseases that afflict flowers, the affected ones must be taken from their bed before they infect the others. And just as sanitation is prescribed for the reduction of disease among men, so he emphasized plant sanitation and care as a means of protecting them from disease.

Breitmeyer Urges Industry.

Professor Coons was followed by Philip Breitmeyer, of Detroit, who, in an address on "Readjustment of Retail Business," urged brother florists to get the idea out of their heads that "all we have to do is stand at the front door or at the cash register and take the money." Mr. Breitmeyer insisted that the present need is to return to the standards of four or five years ago, to return to hard work and to get away from the idea of "doing nothing and getting big pay for it."

Tuesday evening, March 8, the members attended a theater party. Wednesday morning they visited the Saginaw greenhouse establishments.

At the afternoon session, March 9, a question box was conducted by Carl L. Roethke, which brought out many points of interest to the florists. The message delivered by Professor R. P. Hibbard, of the Michigan Agricultural College, on "Greenhouse Problems from the Standpoint of a Plant Physiologist" at this time, was received with appreciation.

The banquet, which was held at the Masonic temple Wednesday evening, was attended by several hundred guests. Short talks were given by a number of prominent members of the trade. Songs and dances and other forms of entertainment went to make up the amusement feature of this gathering.

Florists Commended for Show.

Planned and executed by the six Saginaw florists, Charles Frueh & Sons, the William Roethke Floral Co., Grohman the Florist, J. B. Goetz Sons, Sunshine Flowers and Desner & Fisher, the show won the enthusiastic approval of all who saw it.

So successful was the show that it is the plan to repeat the event every year. Though this was designed simply as a feature of the visit of Michigan members to Saginaw, members of the trade in that city have received numerous requests that it be made an annual exhibition.

The big main hall of the Masonic temple was crowded with flowers, well arranged on long tables so as to give them the best possible effect. Long rows of tulips, jonquils, hyacinths, daffodils, rose plants, cinerarias, carnations and other flowers were shown, most of them plants. At the front of the hall, placed in the center of the stage, a big American flag of flowers was the center of attention.

The display of potted plants was supplemented by exhibits of baskets, ribbons and other supplies from the firms mentioned in last week's report.

Green festoons draped the balcony of the hall and occupied other places, while groups of plants filled whatever spaces were left by the exhibits and completed the artistic decoration.

At the closing meeting the members voted to hold the 1922 convention in Grand Rapids.

VISITING

PITTSBURGH CLUB'S OUTING.

Ranges Visited.

The Pittsburgh Florists' and Gardeners' Club held another successful field day Wednesday, March 9, making a tour of some of the leading commercial places located around the city. The starting point was from the store of the E. C. Ludwig Floral Co., where each member of the party, which numbered about fifty, was presented by E. C. Ludwig with a white carnation. The party proceeded to the Blind Floral Co. range, at West View. Ed Blind himself conducted the party through the houses. Easter will find them all ready. All the stock looked good, the bulbs being exceptionally so, and well timed. The facilities for handling were up-to-date, the cellar being large enough to permit the tractor to haul stock in large quantities right into the houses. Deutzia gracilis, which is coming into favor again, was in good shape, and young cyclamens were in fine shape.

The party next proceeded to the establishment of the John Bader Co., at Troy Hill. Ben L. Elliott, the proprietor, led the procession through houses of palms and ferns, pot roses and lilies, all in fine shape. The members took a great interest in his oil-burning furnace and no detail was overlooked in the inspection of it.

Then a visit was paid the Zieger Co., on Baum boulevard. Much interest was taken in the collection of foreign birds here.

A look through Randolph & McClements', on Penn avenue, was interesting, following which the party were the guests of this company at the Rittenhouse at a luncheon. President J. Barnet reminded us that there was no time for speech-making, but he called upon E. C. Reineman, who expressed the club's gratitude and appreciation of Samuel McClements' hospitality, regretting the gentleman's absence on account of sickness.

Fine Stock Seen.

Carl Lindroth now took charge of the party and headed the parade through the extensive range of greenhouses off Stanton avenue. Pot roses, lilies, hydrangeas and bulbs were all fine, and cleanliness and order were apparent everywhere. Verona was next on the program, with a brief stop at H. B. Zieger's place there, where Mr. Zieger demonstrated that he is some engineer, as well as a grower. He has installed the Delco light and modern pumping. Begonias were in first-class shape.

The last stop was at the establishment of Paul S. Randolph & Sons, Verona, Pa. This concern has a splendid layout. Crotons and other foliage plants were good. Pot roses were fine and the hydrangeas were exceptional. The old-time Coronilla glauca was thriving well. Mr. Randolph himself was on the job, active as ever in spite of his advancing years.

It was an enjoyable outing and, although the weather was anything but pleasant, it failed to dampen the spirit and enthusiasm of those present. Both commercial men and private gardeners felt indebted to J. C. Walley, of the McCallum Co., Evans City, Pa., and Carl Lindroth, who composed the committee in charge of arrangements.

THE RETAIL STORE

A PAGE OF HINTS AND HELPS FOR THE RETAIL FLORIST

VERSES AND FLOWERS.

Since both are conveyors of sentiment, many florists believe that poetry is an appropriate accompaniment of flowers. Some members of the trade use others' verses, while some compose their own. Examples have appeared in these columns before and have been employed by readers for their own uses.

Quite appropriate stanzas, one for Easter and the other for Mothers' day, have been contributed by a florist of Ann Arbor, Mich., whose firm name is Flanders for Flowers. For Easter the following is offered:

It seems to me those flowered stalks
  That point their beauty to the skies
Tell better than by pen or talks
  The spirit that in Easter lies.
Though flowers speak with voice unheard,
  Each leaf, each petal that appears,
Conveys more clearly than by word
  The "thoughts that lie too deep for tears."

A verse for Mothers' day is suggested by this firm, as follows:

Flowers of remembrance,
  Blossoms tinted deep,
Bright hued for the living,
  White for one asleep.
Sun-kissed or star-kissed,
  A spirit hovers near,
O'er the bright a prayer is breathed,
  On the white there falls a tear.

TRY IT IN YOUR WINDOW.

Last fall, when the prize-winners were decided upon by the local garden club, one wide-awake florist obtained a complete set of photographs of the winning plants, vegetables and flowers.

This spring, when getting up his garden seed window display, he included this set of photographs, with a central display card reading:

"This is what we did in 1920.
"What shall we accomplish in 1921?"

DRAW BUSINESS BY BULBS.

Noting the request in a recent issue of The Review in regard to submitting new ideas for publication, let me state that I have an idea which I find is practical and profitable.

The plan is to have a salesman go from house to house with a supply of bulbs, starting in November and continuing until April. The canvass is made perhaps five or six times during that period, first with narcissus bulbs, and later with hyacinths, tuberoses, gladioli, dahlias, Easter lilies, irises and amaryllis. The prices, of course, are low, as nearly as possible the same as those of department store sales.

The sale is made on the merits of the bulbs, together with the wants of the lady of the house. Before leaving the house, the salesman leaves a card with the following reading matter:

"Help to support the starving children of Europe by planting more European flower bulbs. This will also help to keep sugar near a reasonable price, by furnishing a good resource for the bees to produce honey, as one sweet product is in direct competition with the other. Planting flower bulbs is an investment added to your home, as well as a beautifying necessity. We are bulb specialty dealers in American, European, Japanese and Chinese bulbs. Send in your orders by mail."

The advertising that is derived from such a salesman I believe pays well.

No doubt, some florists think that this method hurts the sale of plants which are grown outside, but I do not believe this is true to any extent, and besides, think of the business that you are taking away from the department store which has special sales on bulbs.

Frank Scott.

WHAT IS GOOD-WILL WORTH?

A Valuable Asset.

When a retail florist lists his assets in estimating the value of his business or in offering it for sale, his three most important items are his lease, or store if he owns it, stock in trade and good-will. The first two are tangible and definitely valued forms of property. Anyone can judge their worth pretty accurately. But "good-will"—what is that and what is it worth?

Every time a florist concludes a sale of flowers to a customer he does so with an invitation, expressed or implied, to come again. Most frequently the reply to that invitation depends solely for its answer on the pleasure, or displeasure, of the customer. If the florist has performed the service required of him and has supplied the needed stock in such satisfactory manner that the customer is impelled to return to that store for his next purchase, the florist has earned the customer's good-will. If the florist is able to satisfy many customers so that they return to him when they wish to buy flowers, the good-will which he has earned may be said to have correspondingly increased.

Good-will is that asset which makes a business a "going concern." Good-will is responsible for the business which keeps it going. By years of work a florist builds up a patronage that is valuable because it supplies a steady volume of orders without the sales effort otherwise needed. The work of that florist during those years is represented as definitely in his business as are the savings of those years in his bankbook. The former, like the latter, is a gradual accrual. Both are property. Good-will is valued by accountants as a species of property and has a conspicuous place on the books of many large businesses.

The florist has problems all his own when he begins to figure good-will in his business assets. One trade is not like another and growing is different from retailing. There is assistance, however, in the accountant's method of calculating good-will.

Intangible as it is, good-will has a definite market value. The basis used by most accountants for determining this value is an estimate of the profits for a given period, such profits to be only those which can properly be ascribed to good-will. In other words, it is estimated excess of earning power over and above that which represents a fair return of interest on invested capital.

In setting up this value, the following method is generally adopted: First, the average annual earnings of the business during some past period are calculated—the longer the period taken the fairer will be the result. Next, the average capital invested in the business during the same period is ascertained, and interest at a fair rate is allowed as a charge against earnings.

Basis of Capitalizing Good-Will.

Some period must then be determined upon for a number of years to serve as a basis for capitalizing the excess earnings. The test is the length of time required to create new good-will. The period varies according to the nature of the business—in manufacturing or mercantile lines it is generally put at from three to five years. Excess of estimated earnings over compound interest charges for the period determined on are set up as the capitalized value of good-will.

A specific example will illustrate. Suppose final excess of earnings over costs for a period of five years amount to $850,000, resulting in an average net yearly profit of $170,000. The average capital invested was, let us say, $100,000, upon which the annual fixed interest charge of six per cent is $6,000. The interest on borrowed capital is disregarded in these calculations for the sake of simplicity.

Say the period settled on for building up good-will is five years; then the value would be capitalized at $820,000, less the deduction of $219,464.80, which represents the compound interest at six per cent upon the anticipated profits for five years; the balance of $600,535.20 may be taken as the value of the good-will.

That good-will is a quite real and considerable asset on the books of a business is indicated by the balance sheets of some of the leading corporations of the country. The florist will not find assistance in computing this item in his own business from the examples quoted, but he will learn from them how important the accounting departments of these corporations consider it when he sees the size of the sums assigned to good-will. The estimates of this asset by some of the best known and largest manufacturing corporations of the country are as follows:

American Cotton Oil Co.	$11,635,886
American Graphophone Co.	1,500,000
American Piano Co.	3,790,723
American Pneumatic Service Co.	7,943,597
American Tobacco Co.	54,099,430
Butterick Co.	9,186,065
Chandler Motor Car Co.	5,000,000
Cluett, Peabody & Co.	18,009,000
Dennison Mfg. Co.	1,000,000
Electric Storage Battery Co.	11,000,000
Fisk Rubber Co.	8,000,000
Hart, Schaffner & Marx	15,000,000
Imperial Tobacco Co.	26,816,801
Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co.	39,073,021
Maxwell Motor Co.	26,500,000
Regal Shoe Co.	2,500,000
Studebaker Co.	19,807,277
Underwood Typewriter Co.	7,995,720
United Drug Co.	9,974,218
United States Radiator Corp.	4,000,000
United States Worsted Co.	4,348,881
Vitagraph Co.	5,990,372
Westinghouse Air Brake Co.	2,709,515
Willys-Overland Co.	14,059,932
F. W. Woolworth Co.	50,000,000

The above figures, taken from Moody's Analysis of Public Utilities and Industrials, for 1916, show clearly how valuable some leading corporations then regarded their good-will, trademarks and similar assets.

A WORD OF WARNING.

About three weeks ago a German applied at the store of the Metairie Ridge Nursery Co., New Orleans, for work. After hearing his hard luck story, the writer promised to give him work, until he could straighten himself out. He was given work on Monday. Monday evening he wanted some money. Two or three days later he wanted money again. Saturday he was given $18, with which he bought a shirt and overalls.

The next week he borrowed from almost all the men and women on the place. Saturday he was paid in full. He said he would pay all his debts next week. He never showed up again. He was last seen beating his way to Texas and California. Texas and California florists should be on their guard. The writer was done out of a sum of money, as were most of the men and women in the place. He beat the Chinaman out of meals at the restaurant and did not pay for his room. He had all charged to the Metairie Ridge Nursery Co.

He is a real German and was interned during the war. He is well built, weighing about 180 pounds, has red hair, wears his hair long, speaks good English. He said he worked for Max Schling and Gude Bros. Co. and at Charleston, S. C., and Laurel, Miss.

UNFAIR COMPETITION.

Conditions in a certain city in the south have been such that a storm of protest has arisen among the retail florists of the city. Complaints are heard on all sides that some northern wholesalers are supporting these so-called unfair competitors. Of course, the wholesalers have a perfect right to sell their goods to anyone who has the money to pay for them, but the retailers, who are in business the whole year around and are steady buyers, even during the dull summer months, deserve more consideration than those who come here and squat on the sidewalk, or others who have no place of business whatever, but solicit orders for floral work of every description, including weddings, receptions, teas, etc. They carry no regular stock on hand. They have no high rent or taxes to pay, no expensive working force; in fact, they have practically no overhead expense to which the legitimate retailers are subject. How can the latter compete against such odds?

With stock so scarce and at such high wholesale prices, the margin of profit for the retailer is so small that he can just about break even, with nothing left to carry him through the dull summer months. It would be well for some of the wholesalers to think this matter over.

The department stores and 10-cent stores are selling young rose plants cheaper than the florists can buy them. We think the growers should give the florists the preference. The express wagons were peddling carnations the other day; they were refused by the street peddlers. The landscape gardeners are up in the air about the superintendent of one of the parks doing jobbing work, using the park as his place of business. The gardeners say they cannot meet their obligations with unjust competitors. This kind of business should be stopped. Let them fall in line and pay taxes and labor and be put exactly on the same footing as the gardeners. Let the gardeners have a square deal.

Paste This Up in the Boiler Room

Below is the answer to an inquiry that is asked of The Review nearly every week. If you cut it out and paste it in a conspicuous place, or in a scrapbook, you will be saved the delay of writing for the remedy when you need it.

PRIMULA POISONING.

Primula poisoning, an authority says, is the result of irritation produced by the sharp hairs on the plant. Careful handling, therefore, may be a way to avoid bad results. A number of remedies and recipes have been offered in previous issues of The Review for primula poisoning, the most effective of which are given below.

One says: "A few applications of peroxide of hydrogen gave me relief."

Another advises the use of thick sweet cream as an ointment. This is said to be a sovereign remedy.

Sugar of lead is claimed by others to be the most valuable treatment for this trouble. One recipe directs that it be dissolved in water, while another calls for alcohol. The alcohol solution is the antidote recommended by the United States Department of Agriculture for rhus poisoning.

Several cures are reported to have resulted from the use of tincture of bloodroot, which should be applied freely.

Luytie's Pinus ointment as a local application and sulphur and cream of tartar in the proportion of two parts to one, respectively, as a blood purifier, with a nourishing diet, is a treatment highly recommended for either primula or ivy poisoning.

Be sure that you do not light your pipe while using this one: Rub the affected parts with a solution made by dissolving two ounces of camphor in one pint of gasoline, before putting the hands in water. Another application before retiring is helpful.

CHICAGO FLORISTS' CLUB.

Florists in Pageant?

That the florists' industry may be represented prominently at the Pageant of Progress, which is scheduled to be held in Chicago this fall, was suggested by H. W. Swenson at the regular March meeting of the Chicago Florists' Club, held at the Hotel Randolph, March 10. It was pointed out that such an opportunity for excellent advertising was almost too good to be missed.

"By means of the exhibit," said Mr. Swenson, "the florists could show each step in the production of flowers, from the seed to the bloom. In this way the public would understand clearly why prices seem high. They would realize then how much it actually costs to produce blooms. It is safe to say that, from Chicago alone, 2,000,000 would be reached by this publicity."

There followed some discussion concerning the matter and it was pointed out that the cost of such an exhibit would be tremendous. Various plans were suggested to enable the florists to carry it through and finally a committee was appointed, consisting of Fred Lautenschlager, H. V. Swenson, J. E. Pollworth and A. Setterberg, to look into the matter and confer with the directors of the Allied Florists' Association, who also have had this proposition before them.

New Members.

The following new members were admitted to the association: Frank M. Suttle, Edward L. Martin, W. J. Sharpe, Alec F. Gardiner, Oscar Anderson and John H. Paddon, all of Chicago.

President Kohout reported the doings of the S. A. F. directors at Washington, which he attended in the interests of the club.

The committee on the president's address, consisting of M. C. Wright, Michael Barker and Philip J. Foley, Jr., asked for more time. President Greenhouses at Greggs Station after the Hail Storm Had Passed, March 7.

Kohout's plan for reorganization would, it was said, be printed and sent out to each member of the Chicago Florists' Club with the notice of the next meeting.

On motion of T. E. Waters, it was decided to hold a social evening at the April meeting, full plans for which will be announced later. Dr. P. A. Lehenbauer, of Urbana, Ill., will be the speaker of the evening and ladies will be present, so that dancing will be in order. It was also suggested that the students in floriculture at the University of Illinois be requested to present the play, "The Florist Shop," which was given before the Illinois State Florists' Association March 8.

During the evening President Kohout called upon the members to stand in silent tribute to the memory of Peter Reinberg. A committee was appointed to draw up a resolution of appreciation and respect, consisting of James Morton, J. E. Pollworth and T. E. Waters.

HAIL AT GREGGS STATION.

In the hail storm which did damage to a number of ranges in the vicinity of Chicago March 7 the greenhouses of Bassett & Washburn, at Greggs Station, suffered the heaviest losses, as indicated in the report in last week's issue of The Review. Altogether about 100,000 feet of glass was broken. The illustrations on this page show how the hailstones punctured the glass. Mr. Washburn estimates his loss at $10,000 to $15,000, which is covered by insurance in the Florists' Hail Association. The day after the storm 25,000 yards of muslin were obtained to cover the roofs temporarily. Fortunately, about 2,000 boxes of glass were on hand, from the dismantled houses at Hinsdale.

HOW TO GROW WATER LILIES.

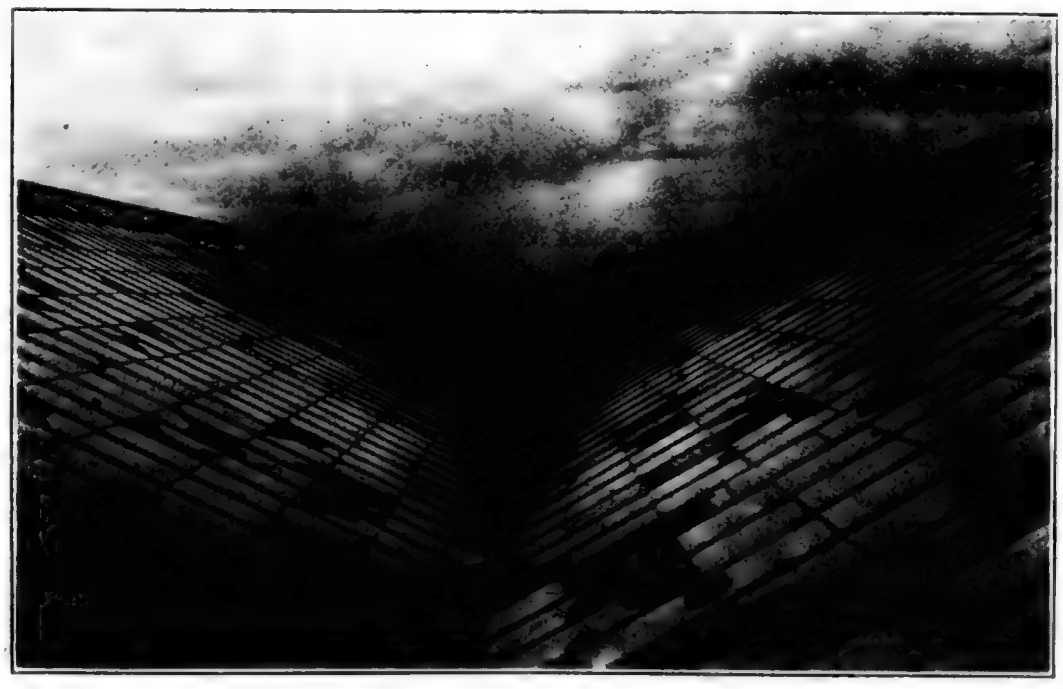
I have a few Victoria Trickeri water lily seeds and should like to know how to grow them. I have planted Asparagus Sprengeri seeds again and again, but they fail to grow. Please tell me what treatment they need.

F. F. C.—Kan.

Seeds of this water lily should be sown in a pot or pan of sandy loam and plunged in shallow water which will cover the pans. A water temperature of as near 70 to 75 degrees as possible should be maintained. As seedlings germinate, pot them off into small pots of pure loam and again plunge. Pot on as needed. In late June plant outdoors, or in your latitude in early June, in a rich bed of loam and rotted manure. If grown under glass, a large tank is needed. You cannot germinate at this season in cool water. The temperature must be 65 degrees, and it is better to have it higher. It should be kept even.

If Asparagus Sprengeri seed is fresh it should germinate in a few weeks if sown in light, sandy loam. Seeds should be barely covered and kept in a warm, moist and shaded house. If seed is fresh it should germinate readily under these conditions. C. W.

TESTING LAWN GRASS SEED.



Seedsmen are frequently condemned for selling lawn grass seed alleged to contain seeds of weeds when this is not the fact.

Weed seeds exist naturally in almost all soils unless they are sterilized. Weeds are also introduced through the application of animal manures. The wind often carries weed seeds from place to place, while a common means of introduction is by birds.

The best proof that most weeds are from seed found in the soil (but which have not grown before because they were below a depth that would allow germination) is to take a plot in sod or one that has previously been in cultivation, dig or plow this up and not sow or plant anything. In a few weeks you have a rank growth, usually all weeds. Nothing could be more convincing than this. Weeds will appear in lawns sown in the spring months in greater number than in lawns sown in the late summer and autumn.

Most weeds are annuals; that is, they will not reappear the following season unless they are allowed to sow their seed. Therefore, their appearance with the growth of young grass need cause no alarm. The first or second mowing usually disposes of them completely. However, should some of them which are hardier or longer-rooted than others still remain, they can easily be pulled out or dug out before they mature.

A simple test of what is a reliable mixture of grass seed can be made by taking a cigar box and enough soil to fill it, heating the soil thoroughly so that any plant life, in seed form, naturally there will be destroyed, and then sowing some seed in this box of soil and watering it occasionally. The result will be a clean growth of young grass if the seed is pure.

less the deduction of $219,464.80, which represents the compound interest at six per cent upon the anticipated profits for five years; the balance of $600,535.20 may be taken as the value of the good-will.

That good-will is a quite real and considerable asset on the books of a business is indicated by the balance sheets of some of the leading corporations of the country. The florist will not find assistance in computing this item in his own business from the examples quoted, but he will learn from them how important the accounting departments of these corporations consider it when he sees the size of the sums assigned to good-will. The estimates of this asset by some of the best known and largest manufacturing corporations of the country are as follows:

American Cotton Oil Co.	$11,635,886
American Graphophone Co.	1,500,000
American Piano Co.	3,790,723
American Pneumatic Service Co.	7,943,597

The above figures, taken from Moody's Analysis of Public Utilities and Industrials, for 1916, show clearly how valuable some leading corporations then regarded their good-will, trademarks and similar assets.

A WORD OF WARNING.

About three weeks ago a German applied at the store of the Metairie Ridge Nursery Co., New Orleans, for work. After hearing his hard luck story, the writer promised to give him work, until he could straighten himself out. He was given work on Monday. Monday evening he wanted some money. Two or three days later he wanted money again. Saturday he was given $18, with which he bought a shirt and overalls.

The next week he borrowed from almost all the men and women on the place. Saturday he was paid in full. He said he would pay all his debts next week. He never showed up again. He was last seen beating his way to Texas and California. Texas and California florists should be on their guard. The writer was done out of a sum of money, as were most of the men and women in the place. He beat the Chinaman out of meals at the restaurant and did not pay for his room. He had all charged to the Metairie Ridge Nursery Co.

He is a real German and was interned during the war. He is well built, weighing about 180 pounds, has red hair, wears his hair long, speaks good English. He said he worked for Max Schling and Gude Bros. Co. and at Charleston, S. C., and Laurel, Miss.

UNFAIR COMPETITION.

Conditions in a certain city in the south have been such that a storm of protest has arisen among the retail florists of the city. Complaints are heard on all sides that some northern wholesalers are supporting these so-called unfair competitors. Of course, the wholesalers have a perfect right to sell their goods to anyone who has the money to pay for them, but the retailers, who are in business the whole year around and are steady buyers, even during the dull summer months, deserve more consideration than those who come here and squat on the sidewalk, or others who have no place of business whatever, but solicit orders for floral work of every description, including weddings, receptions, teas, etc. They carry no regular stock on hand. They have no high rent or taxes to pay, no expensive working force; in fact, they have practically no overhead expense to which the legitimate retailers are subject. How can the latter compete against such odds?

With stock so scarce and at such high wholesale prices, the margin of profit for the retailer is so small that he can just about break even, with nothing left to carry him through the dull summer months. It would be well for some of the wholesalers to think this matter over.

The department stores and 10-cent stores are selling young rose plants cheaper than the florists can buy them. We think the growers should give the florists the preference. The express wagons were peddling carnations the other day; they were refused by the street peddlers. The landscape gardeners are up in the air about the superintendent of one of the parks doing jobbing work, using the park as his place of business. The gardeners say they cannot meet their obligations with unjust competitors. This kind of business should be stopped. Let them fall in line and pay taxes and labor and be put exactly on the same footing as the gardeners. Let the gardeners have a square deal.

Paste This Up in the Boiler Room

Below is the answer to an inquiry that is asked of The Review nearly every week. If you cut it out and paste it in a conspicuous place, or in a scrapbook, you will be saved the delay of writing for the remedy when you need it.

PRIMULA POISONING.

Primula poisoning, an authority says, is the result of irritation produced by the sharp hairs on the plant. Careful handling, therefore, may be a way to avoid bad results. A number of remedies and recipes have been offered in previous issues of The Review for primula poisoning, the most effective of which are given below.

One says: "A few applications of peroxide of hydrogen gave me relief."

Another advises the use of thick sweet cream as an ointment. This is said to be a sovereign remedy.

Sugar of lead is claimed by others to be the most valuable treatment for this trouble. One recipe directs that it be dissolved in water, while another calls for alcohol. The alcohol solution is the antidote recommended by the United States Department of Agriculture for rhus poisoning.

Several cures are reported to have resulted from the use of tincture of bloodroot, which should be applied freely.

Luytie's Pinus ointment as a local application and sulphur and cream of tartar in the proportion of two parts to one, respectively, as a blood purifier, with a nourishing diet, is a treatment highly recommended for either primula or ivy poisoning.

Be sure that you do not light your pipe while using this one: Rub the affected parts with a solution made by dissolving two ounces of camphor in one pint of gasoline, before putting the hands in water. Another application before retiring is helpful.

CHICAGO FLORISTS' CLUB.

Florists in Pageant?

That the florists' industry may be represented prominently at the Pageant of Progress, which is scheduled to be held in Chicago this fall, was suggested by H. W. Swenson at the regular March meeting of the Chicago Florists' Club, held at the Hotel Randolph, March 10. It was pointed out that such an opportunity for excellent advertising was almost too good to be missed.

"By means of the exhibit," said Mr. Swenson, "the florists could show each step in the production of flowers, from the seed to the bloom. In this way the public would understand clearly why prices seem high. They would realize then how much it actually costs to produce blooms. It is safe to say that, from Chicago alone, 2,000,000 would be reached by this publicity."

There followed some discussion concerning the matter and it was pointed out that the cost of such an exhibit would be tremendous. Various plans were suggested to enable the florists to carry it through and finally a committee was appointed, consisting of Fred Lautenschlager, H. V. Swenson, J. E. Pollworth and A. Setterberg, to look into the matter and confer with the directors of the Allied Florists' Association, who also have had this proposition before them.

New Members.

The following new members were admitted to the association: Frank M Suttle, Edward L. Martin, W. J. Sharpe, Alec F. Gardiner, Oscar Anderson and John H. Paddon, all of Chicago.

President Kohout reported the doings of the S. A. F. directors at Washington, which he attended in the interests of the club.

The committee on the president's address, consisting of M. C. Wright, Michael Barker and Philip J. Foley, Jr., asked for more time. President Greenhouses at Greggs Station after the Hail Storm Had Passed, March 7.

Kohout's plan for reorganization would, it was said, be printed and sent out to each member of the Chicago Florists' Club with the notice of the next meeting.

On motion of T. E. Waters, it was decided to hold a social evening at the April meeting, full plans for which will be announced later. Dr. P. A. Lehenbauer, of Urbana, Ill., will be the speaker of the evening and ladies will be present, so that dancing will be in order. It was also suggested that the students in floriculture at the University of Illinois be requested to present the play, "The Florist Shop," which was given before the Illinois State Florists' Association March 8.

During the evening President Kohout called upon the members to stand in silent tribute to the memory of Peter Reinberg. A committee was appointed to draw up a resolution of appreciation and respect, consisting of James Morton, J. E. Pollworth and T. E. Waters.

HAIL AT GREGGS STATION.

In the hail storm which did damage to a number of ranges in the vicinity of Chicago March 7 the greenhouses of Bassett & Washburn, at Greggs Station, suffered the heaviest losses, as indicated in the report in last week's issue of The Review. Altogether about 100,000 feet of glass was broken. The illustrations on this page show how the hailstones punctured the glass. Mr. Washburn estimates his loss at $10,000 to $15,000, which is covered by insurance in the Florists' Hail Association. The day after the storm 25,000 yards of muslin were obtained to cover the roofs temporarily. Fortunately, about 2,000 boxes of glass were on hand, from the dismantled houses at Hinsdale.

HOW TO GROW WATER LILIES.

I have a few Victoria Trickeri water lily seeds and should like to know how to grow them. I have planted Asparagus Sprengeri seeds again and again, but they fail to grow. Please tell me what treatment they need.

F. F. C.—Kan.

Seeds of this water lily should be sown in a pot or pan of sandy loam and plunged in shallow water which will cover the pans. A water temperature of as near 70 to 75 degrees as possible should be maintained. As seedlings germinate, pot them off into small pots of pure loam and again plunge. Pot on as needed. In late June plant outdoors, or in your latitude in early June, in a rich bed of loam and rotted manure. If grown under glass, a large tank is needed. You cannot germinate at this season in cool water. The temperature must be 65 degrees, and it is better to have it higher. It should be kept even.

GROWERS' AIMS

WHAT GROWERS PLAN TO DO.

National Association's Aims.

The objects of the National Flower Growers' Association are just as the constitution provides, the advancement of commercial floriculture under glass and devising ways and means for the best and most economical methods in:

Production: To combat insects and diseases; studying elements entering into production, such as soil analysis, commercial fertilizers, temperatures, methods and cost of construction of greenhouses and growing location with reference to marketing, and disseminating knowledge among members on various subjects of interest to them.

Marketing: Sales methods, methods of grading, storing, packing and delivery. To devise ways and means of bettering selling conditions and eliminating the present cause of waste in marketing plants and flowers. To raise the standard of industry by national advertising.

Credits and collections.

Legislation: To keep generally informed on legislation proposed affecting members of this association in either state or national legislation.

Now then, what do we mean by the terms used above? First, as to production, we mean that by studying the diseases and insects and elements entering into the production, coöperatively as an organization rather than as individuals, we can obtain results not only more rapidly, but at a much less cost to each individual. The same holds true with the testing of commercial fertilizers, methods and cost of construction of greenhouses and production of plants.

Raising the Standards.

So with marketing. We believe that, with closer coöperation of the growers themselves and their representatives, the commission men, better sales methods can be adopted; methods of more uniform grading, the storing and keeping of flowers, packing and delivery, all can be worked out so that it will prove a benefit to not only the wholesaler and the grower but to the retailer as well. Even the public can be greatly benefited when they once know roses are uniformly graded and they can buy them more intelligently by getting acquainted with the system. Through our coöperative advertising we expect not only to create a demand for our products, but also to teach the public so it can buy more intelligently, compelling ourselves thereby to meet the standard which such advertising represents and thereby raising the standard of our industry as well.

Credits and collections need no explanation. We know these can be bettered by proper coöperation.

As to legislation, we, no doubt, are beginning to realize the necessity for keeping in touch with special state legislation.

The president of the national association has appointed a standing committee to represent each of the above-mentioned subjects. These committees will proceed to acquire all the data possible with reference to the various items they have up for consideration, calling a meeting if necessary and inviting representative growers and others interested from different parts of the country to discuss and recommend for adoption such methods as can best be adapted to the entire country. These committeemen will be glad to have suggestions with reference to the topics just mentioned from anyone interested therein.

Classes of Membership.

We have provided in our by-laws for four classes of membership. Class A consists of growers who belong to an allied trade association carrying on coöperative advertising on the percentage plan, where twenty-five per cent of the entire collections are turned over to this organization for national advertising. These growers by virtue of such payments automatically become members of this association. Ninety per cent of such funds are set aside for national advertising.

Class B consists of growers who are members of some district growers' organization and they become members of this association by their organization's paying the sum of 50 cents per thousand square feet of ground area covered with glass owned or operated by them.

Class C consists of growers who are not members of either of the above two named organizations, but who become members of the National Flower Growers' Association by paying the sum of $2 per thousand square feet of ground covered with glass owned or operated by them and paid into this association. Seventy-five per cent of such sum is set aside for national advertising.

Class D is composed of associate members. Firms who are not active or voting members of this association and who are not florists, yet who are contributing to national publicity through this organization, may become associate members. Ninety per cent of such sum is set aside for national advertising.

You will note from the above classes that a large percentage is set aside for national advertising. This proves that national advertising will be one of the main factors in our work, which is as it should be, and with such a program there is no doubt that every grower in the country should join this organization in one of the three classes for growers and thereby assist in the plan for the advancement and progress of our business.

Any growers of flowers and flowering and ornamental greenhouse plants grown for commercial purposes are eligible to become members of this association and are herewith kindly invited to join.

ABLE AID

WHERE GROWERS GET HELP.

Experiment Station's Service.

Of the three score or more growers who attended the meeting of the Illinois State Florists' Association, at the state experiment station at the University of Illinois, Urbana, last week, there were several who openly stated that what they learned in the greenhouses there was worth five times their railroad fare. Others said nothing in that particular, but the number which stayed till the second day, March 9, for the discussion of activities in the greenhouses, ably directed by Prof. H. B. Dorner and Dr. P. A. Lehenbauer, was surprisingly large. Interest was keen and the comparison of methods between growers and experimenters brought out valuable information.

It seems clear that florists are not availing themselves of as much service as they might from their state experiment stations and particularly those, like Illinois, where floricultural work is given much attention. To members of the trade who are not familiar with the opportunities growers have to get help at these places, some of the remarks of Dr. Lehenbauer last week will be instructive. He said:

"The primary purpose of experimental work in our experiment station is service. Its aim is to help the florist in the growing of plants. When difficulties arise, when plants fail to respond as they should, or when disease invades the greenhouse and attacks the plants, there is a need of some agency from which information can be had. But it is not only when troubles appear that experiment, or research, is necessary. It is probably true that the average successful grower does not often need help. But even when his plants are doing well, and are producing an average crop of standard quality, the grower still looks for something better. It is but natural for us to expect something just a little better. We are not content with the old; we want something new. We hope to do better than we did last year. We want to learn more about our plants, more about methods of culture.

"The grower sees the possibilities of experiment, but he has neither time nor available space. Therefore, he feels the need of a central station where experiment is the chief aim, where space and equipment are available for the growing of plants in order that he may learn more about plants and more about methods of culture. Such is the purpose of our experiment station. It is a place where information is collected, where methods of culture are tested, where experiments are conducted for the control of diseases and where the more fundamental principles underlying plant growth are determined.

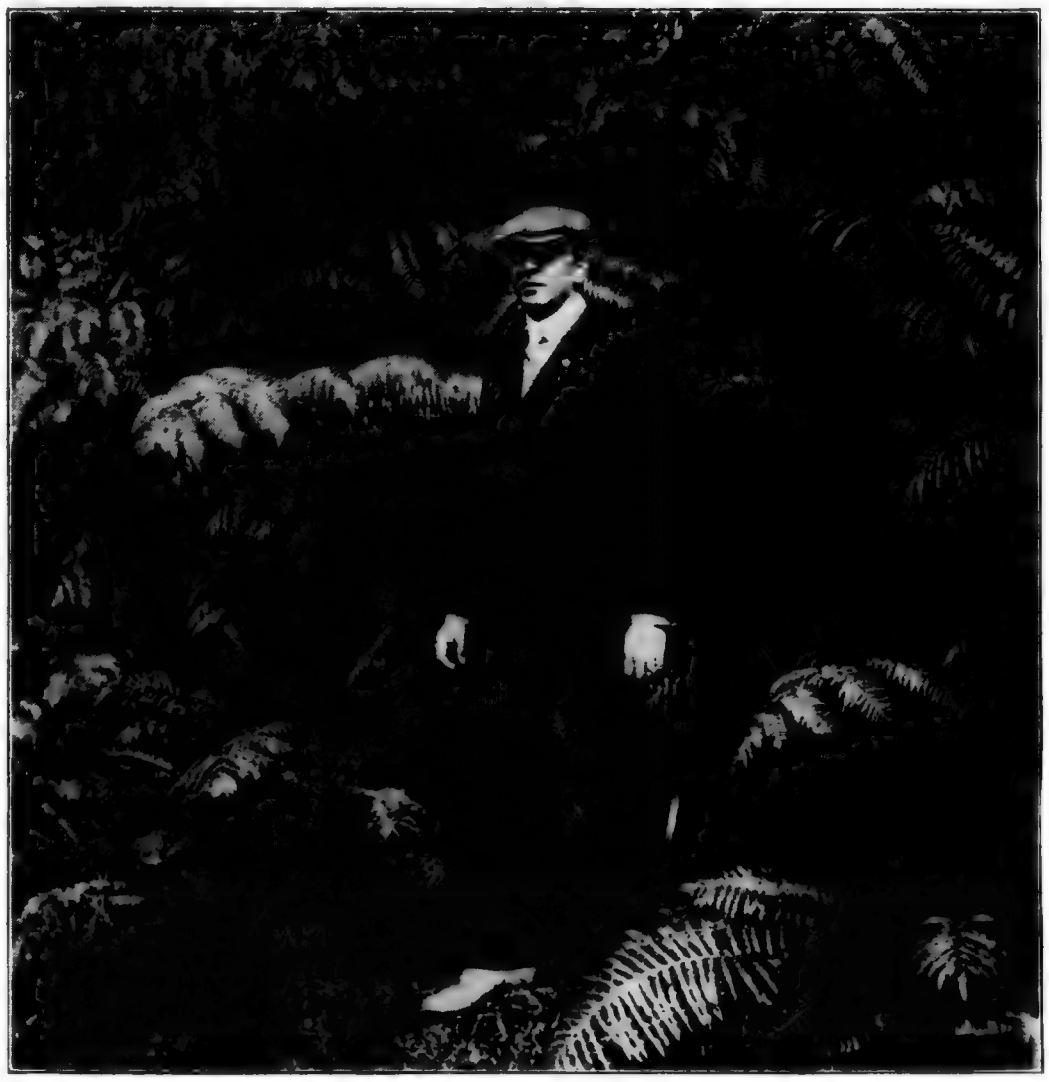
Local Problems.

"This suggests the several types of work the experiment station is expected to carry on. It must be of help, first, in these difficulties that are local in character. Each florist has his own problems, peculiar to his locality or to his own greenhouse. It may be a problem of disease, or a problem of soil, or of water. Whatever the problem may be, this florist needs advice or help. The experiment station of his state should be in a position to give this help. Usually the station can at once supply the needed information; frequently, however, information or a remedy for the particular trouble is not available. Let us suppose that a florist in a certain locality finds his roses infested with an insect pest. He can send a specimen of the insect to his experiment station, have it identified and get definite information concerning its control or extermination. The information which he receives as to method of control is based upon definite experimental work which has been done previously. If no definite method of control of the insect pest is known, experiment is necessary.

"The station, of course, cannot make a thorough study of each and every local problem that may arise. But the station should, as a rule, be able to give sound suggestions, suggestions which may involve certain efforts on the part of the grower, but which will result, nevertheless, in a means of control of the difficulty.

Scope of Experiments.

"Secondly, the experiment station should conduct definite and well planned experimental projects on problems which are of interest to florists in general. Projects should not deal with local problems, such as are of interest or of value to a few florists, but they should deal with problems of value to all. For example, the control of carnation stem-rot and of aster wilt, and the effect of the continued use of the same soil for a particular crop are problems which are state-wide and of interest to all florists. The kind and amount of fertilizers to use in greenhouse soils is a question every grower needs to know.



"Such problems cannot be solved in a day. Reliable results cannot even be got in a year; often not in several years. Long periods of time often are necessary. Each problem must be considered from all angles and each phase of the problems must be studied by experiment. This requires time. Nevertheless, the effort is worth while in the end, for only by means of such long-continued experiments can we hope to get the information we desire.

Finding Fundamentals.

"Thirdly, the experiment station should conduct experiments with a view to establishing certain definite relations and physiological principles underlying plant growth and response. Let me illustrate by a few concrete examples. In growing cuttings, as for instance of the rose, we are fairly successful. We meet with success because we have learned by experience what temperature, approximately, and what moisture conditions, approximately, to use in order to produce results. However, if we do not meet with uniform success we are at a loss to know why we were not more successful. The reason is that we have but little definite knowledge of the factors involved in the formation of roots; we know even less of the correlations between root and shoot growth; our knowledge of the effects of temperature and moisture conditions on root development is only approximate, while the relation between type of cutting and the future plant and its production is still far from solution.

"Many problems appear to have only an indirect value. A study of the possible effect of the selection of cuttings on the production of future plants, for instance, may appear to be a waste of energy and time; a study of the influence of carbon dioxide on the growth of greenhouse plants may appear impractical, yet the solution of such problems establishes facts which are fundamental. Pure research is never impractical. The work of the bacteriologist, who studied with his microscope the little organisms or germs which we know as bacteria, involved an almost infinite amount of labor. Yet who today will say that this work was useless or impractical? The successful treatment and control of most of our human ailments is based upon the results of this work. In a similar way we must continue our studies of the fundamental principles underlying plant growth, study the responses of plants to the conditions of their environment, the fundamental causes of disease, and the laws of heredity in plants. Research and experimentation must not lag behind. They must always forge ahead and must always be the basis of the best methods of plant culture."

WHO'S WHO IN THE TRADE AND WHY

CHARLES E. CRITCHELL.

KNOWN widely in the trade because his name is that of one of the leading wholesale houses of Cincinnati, Charles E. Critchell is not disposed to seek the limelight. Witness that this photograph of him, the only recent one at large, was taken in a distant corner of the world, Hawaii. Mr. Critchell's ability is recognized despite his modesty, however, and he has served as president of the Cincinnati Florists' Society and is at present a director of the Society of American Florists. Another evidence of Mr. Critchell's quiet way was his acquisition, last month, of a bride. He was married at Honolulu, February 9, to Mrs. J. Keck Hall, of Cincinnati. Mr. Critchell left some weeks ago on an extended foreign tour as a vacation from the work of boosting the florists' business in that city floriculturally so lively for its size, Cincinnati.

Wallingford, Conn.—Irvin Mitchell, March 1, purchased the sole interest in the business on Academy street, formerly conducted by himself and W. G. Rowden.

damental principles underlying plant growth are determined.

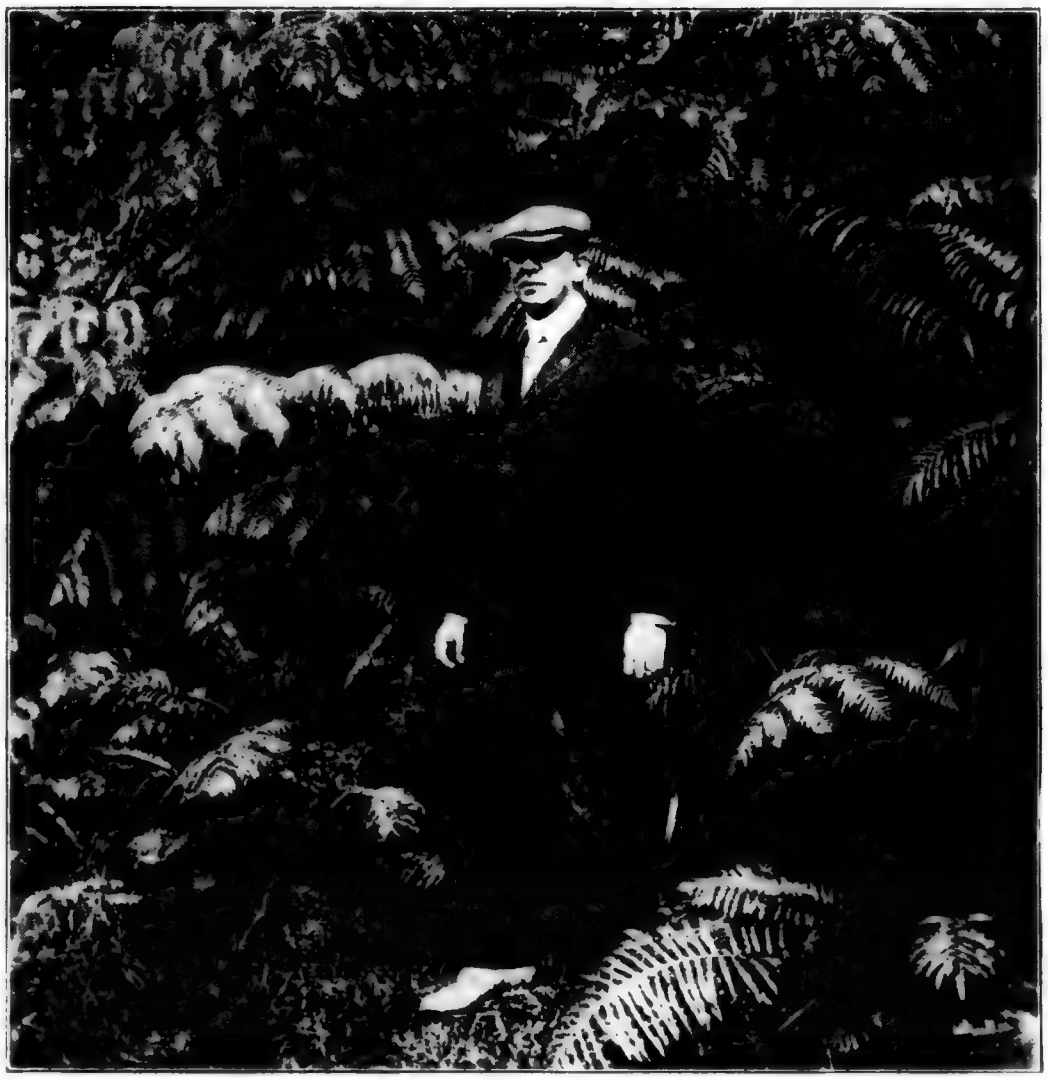
Local Problems.

"This suggests the several types of work the experiment station is expected to carry on. It must be of help, first, in these difficulties that are local in character. Each florist has his own problems, peculiar to his locality or to his own greenhouse. It may be a problem of disease, or a problem of soil, or of water. Whatever the problem may be, this florist needs advice or help. The experiment station of his state should be in a position to give this help. Usually the station can at once supply the needed information; frequently, however, information or a remedy for the particular trouble is not available. Let us suppose that a florist in a certain locality finds his roses infested with an insect pest. He can send a specimen of the insect to his experiment station, have it identified and get definite information concerning its control or extermination. The information which he receives as to method of control is based upon definite experimental work which has been done previously. If no definite method of control of the insect pest is known, experiment is necessary.

"The station, of course, cannot make a thorough study of each and every local problem that may arise. But the station should, as a rule, be able to give sound suggestions, suggestions which may involve certain efforts on the part of the grower, but which will result, nevertheless, in a means of control of the difficulty.

Scope of Experiments.

"Secondly, the experiment station should conduct definite and well planned experimental projects on problems which are of interest to florists in general. Projects should not deal with local problems, such as are of interest or of value to a few florists, but they should deal with problems of value to all. For example, the control of carnation stem-rot and of aster wilt, and the effect of the continued use of the same soil for a particular crop are problems which are state-wide and of interest to all florists. The kind and amount of fertilizers to use in greenhouse soils is a question every grower needs to know.



"Such problems cannot be solved in a day. Reliable results cannot even be got in a year; often not in several years. Long periods of time often are necessary. Each problem must be considered from all angles and each phase of the problems must be studied by experiment. This requires time. Nevertheless, the effort is worth while in the end, for only by means of such long-continued experiments can we hope to get the information we desire.

Finding Fundamentals.

"Thirdly, the experiment station should conduct experiments with a view to establishing certain definite relations and physiological principles underlying plant growth and response. Let me illustrate by a few concrete examples. In growing cuttings, as for instance of the rose, we are fairly successful. We meet with success because we have learned by experience what temperature, approximately, and what moisture conditions, approximately, to use in order to produce results. However, if we do not meet with uniform success we are at a loss to know why we were not more successful. The reason is that we have but little definite knowledge of the factors involved in the formation of roots; we know even less of the correlations between root and shoot growth; our knowledge of the effects of temperature and moisture conditions on root development is only approximate, while the relation between type of cutting and the future plant and its production is still far from solution.

"Many problems appear to have only an indirect value. A study of the possible effect of the selection of cuttings on the production of future plants, for instance, may appear to be a waste of energy and time; a study of the influence of carbon dioxide on the growth of greenhouse plants may appear impractical, yet the solution of such problems establishes facts which are fundamental. Pure research is never impractical. The work of the bacteriologist, who studied with his microscope the little organisms or germs which we know as bacteria, involved an almost infinite amount of labor. Yet who today will say that this work was useless or impractical? The successful treatment and control of most of our human ailments is based upon the results of this work. In a similar way we must continue our studies of the fundamental principles underlying plant growth, study the responses of plants to the conditions of their environment, the fundamental causes of disease, and the laws of heredity in plants. Research and experimentation must not lag behind. They must always forge ahead and must always be the basis of the best methods of plant culture."

WHO'S WHO IN THE TRADE AND WHY

CHARLES E. CRITCHELL.

KNOWN widely in the trade because his name is that of one of the leading wholesale houses of Cincinnati, Charles E. Critchell is not disposed to seek the limelight. Witness that this photograph of him, the only recent one at large, was taken in a distant corner of the world, Hawaii. Mr. Critchell's ability is recognized despite his modesty, however, and he has served as president of the Cincinnati Florists' Society and is at present a director of the Society of American Florists. Another evidence of Mr. Critchell's quiet way was his acquisition, last month, of a bride. He was married at Honolulu, February 9, to Mrs. J. Keck Hall, of Cincinnati. Mr. Critchell left some weeks ago on an extended foreign tour as a vacation from the work of boosting the florists' business in that city floriculturally so lively for its size, Cincinnati.

Wallingford, Conn.—Irvin Mitchell, March 1, purchased the sole interest in the business on Academy street, formerly conducted by himself and W. G. Rowden.

SIMPLE RULES FOR ASTERS.

Everybody can grow asters successfully, says J. K. Rugowski, of Manitowoc, Wis., whose large blooms have been seen at several exhibitions in the last year, if he or she will provide three things—a good strain of seed, good plant food and good tillage. Any soil, he says, will produce good asters where these three points are observed. His further directions are:

"The soil must be free from fungus or acid. If your soil contains fungus to any extent, use as much coal ashes as you possibly can get, well sifted through a ¼-inch screen. Put on broadcast at the rate of four or five tons an acre. Although they contain no plant food, they will do away with certain fungi that do harm to the plants.

"If your soil contains acid, tile it at once. Use about one and one-half tons of air-slaked lime per acre or three tons of ground limestone. This is the only remedy for acid soil.

"You can never get too much plant food. Where humus is available, it should be used freely; also a good commercial fertilizer of high grade at the rate of twenty-five pounds per thousand square feet. Use a good bone meal, 3-24 formula, or a complete fertilizer, 2-8-4 or 3-8-6. That is, two parts of nitrogen, eight parts of phosphate and four parts of potash. Use this broadcast just before preparing your land. It should be well worked into the soil, about four or five inches deep.

"It is absolutely necessary to have a good strain of seed to produce a good flower or vegetable.

"Good tillage is as important as good seed, for if you neglect to work your crops the best seed is of no account.

"Asters should not be crowded to get the best results from them. Where land is plentiful they should be set out at least two by three feet apart each way.

"Seed should not be put in too early. We never start our seed until April 1, in a hotbed or greenhouse. Transplant the seedlings from the latter part of May until July 1 if succession is wanted.

"When the plant shows its first bud, pinch it off. This will spread the plant."

DEFEATS HIGH TRAFFIC RATES.

Have you ever had a grower bring stock to your store a distance of 140 miles? This is the run made by a Canadian grower recently, to insure good handling and prompt delivery. Because of the tremendous increases in the cost of transportation by rail, numerous growers are shipping their goods by truck, but so far as is known, this is one of the longest journeys made by this means.

This delivery was undertaken by Carl Grobba, of Toronto, Ont., one of the largest and most widely known growers in the Dominion. The trip was made to London, Ont., to the West Floral Co. The undertaking would not be considered so great in the summer and on a stretch of well paved highway. The weather, however, was cold; March 3 was the day. The roads were anything but good; in fact, a part of the trip was made over roads under the process of construction. Despite these undesirable conditions, Mr. Beckwith, the driver, made the distance in a period of ten hours. The truck was filled to capacity with Easter lilies and the top was bedecked with decorative plants. The illustration shows the truck and driver upon arrival at London. The truck is equipped with a heater, using the heat from the exhaust pipe, so the flowers were in no danger of freezing. E. B. Hamilton, manager of the West Floral Co., commended Mr. Grobba on the results of his venture.

Enid, Okla.—The Oklahoma Floral Co. has on its Dodge delivery car the accepted emblem of telegraph delivery of flowers, to advertise this service, in addition to a stylish arrangement of the company name. The officers of this concern are: President, Clarence Cline; vice-president, Will C. Allen; treasurer, Louis Morrell; manager, Frank Bieber.

OBITUARY

William Wilcox Barnard.

One of the pioneer seedsmen of Chicago and one of the best known in the entire trade, William Wilcox Barnard, died at Los Angeles, Cal., Thursday, March 10.

Mr. Barnard had not been in the best of health since 1915 and had gone to California to build up his constitution. He was born in Chicago, July 4, 1856, the son of William and Miranda Wilcox Barnard. He attended the Englewood high school. At the age of 18 he entered the employ of the D. S. Heffron Seed Co. In 1880 he started in the office of Hiram Sibley & Co., as bookkeeper and cashier. Experience suggested that much might yet be done to raise the standard of garden seeds and, with that as his chief purpose, he started in business for himself in 1888, by purchasing the garden seed department of Hiram Sibley & Co. The business, upon consolidation with Goodwin, Harris & Co., in 1905, was incorporated as the W. W. Barnard Co., of which he was president and treasurer. Charles D. Coventry is secretary of the company.

Mr. Barnard was at one time treasurer of the village of Washington Heights. He held membership in the Chicago Association of Commerce, in the Bethany Union church, of which he was a devoted member, being a trustee and deacon, and in the Ridge Country Club.

Major Ralph B. Howe, a nephew, has been connected with the company for some years, becoming actively engaged in the business in 1910. At the present time he is general manager of the firm. Upon learning of Mr. Barnard's critical condition, he and his mother, Mrs. E. G. Howe, a sister of Mr. Barnard, left for California. En route they were notified of his death. They then returned to Chicago.

Mr. Barnard was unmarried and is survived by three sisters, Miss Alice S. Barnard, Mrs. E. G. Howe and Mrs. George Graham, four nephews and three nieces.

The funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon, March 16, at 2:15 o'clock, at the Bethany Union church, Rev. Clyde McGee officiating. Interment was at Mount Greenwood cemetery.

Fred Hall.

Fred Hall, one of the pioneer florists of Denver, Colo., died March 4 at San Diego, Cal., where he had been spending the winter. He was born in England fifty-six years ago, and for the past thirty years had been engaged in the florists' business in Denver, his greenhouses being located at 860 Jersey street.

Until a year ago Mr. Hall had enjoyed the best of health, but since that time, on account of hardening of the arteries, he had not taken an active part in the operation of his business. On the advice of his physician, he went to California last September, accompanied by his wife and daughter, where it was hoped the lower altitude would be of benefit to him. But February 22 he had a stroke of paralysis, from the effects of which he did not recover.

Mr. Hall was one of the founders of the Denver Wholesale Florists' Co. and was associated with this concern at the time of his death. He leaves a widow, Emma J. Hall; a daughter, Mary R., and a brother, Charles Hall, of Denver. He was active in church affairs, being a member of St. Luke's Episcopal church, of Monteclair, and there the services were held Thursday, March 10, with interment at Fairmount cemetery. The large attendance at the church and cemetery, and the numerous and beautiful floral pieces, were evidences of the esteem in which Mr. Hall was held by his friends.

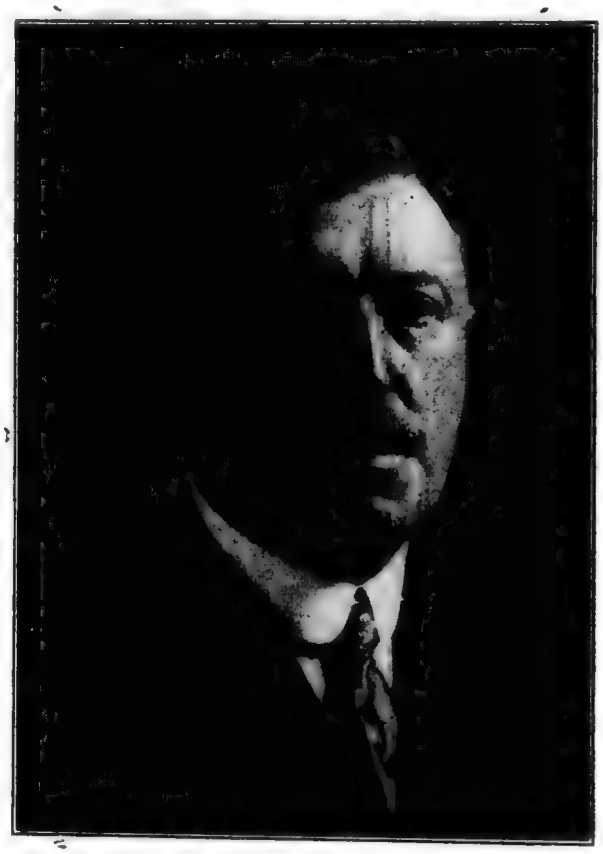
John Mees.

John Mees, a retired florist of Laurel, L. I., died at the Brooklyn hospital Wednesday evening, March 9. The cause of his death was cancer, for which he had been operated on in the hopes of restoring his health. He was 73 years of age. Surviving are his widow and five daughters, Mrs. Don J. MacDonald, of Brooklyn; Mrs. John H. Hagen, of Riverside; Mrs. Jennie Benjamin, Mrs. J. F. Weir and Miss Justine Mees.

John Stevenson.

John Stevenson, a former member of the trade at Queens, L. I., died Saturday, March 5, at his home after a long illness. His death was due to septic poisoning. He was 65 years of age and was at one time prominent in civic affairs. His first venture in business was in the furniture line, at which he prospered. He extended his activities in this line and his success was not so notable. He then took up the growing of flowers. He erected several greenhouses and branched out in this enterprise.

He was a member of the Masonic order and the Knights of Pythias. Both lodges had an active part in the burial services.



Surviving are his wife, one daughter, Mrs. Elizabeth Hendrickson, and four sons: Dr. Robert, Christian R., Hector M. and Dr. J. Ritchie Stevenson.

The funeral services took place March 7, at his home, under the direction of the two lodges, and were conducted by the Rev. Dr. Lyons, of the Baptist church of Queens, to which the deceased belonged. Interment was at Evergreen cemetery.

C. R. Kimberlin.

A telegraphic report of the death of C. R. Kimberlin, of the Kimberlin Seed Co., San Jose, Cal., appeared in last week's issue of The Review. As a member of the company which bears his name, the deceased was well known not only in California, but throughout the United States and in Europe, where the business interests of his company extend, and his many friends and business associates will learn with sorrow of his death.

He was born in the town of Santa Clara, Cal., in 1864, where he continuously made his home until three years ago, when he moved to San Jose. His father, who came to California via the Isthmus in 1852 with his bride, was one of the early settlers in Santa Clara county, and a pioneer in the seed growing industry. His father, for some years after coming to Santa Clara county, was a professor of languages at the College of the Pacific, but left his profession as a teacher to engage in the seed growing industry, in which his sons later achieved unusual success.

William Wilcox Barnard.

The deceased received his early education in the town of Santa Clara, where he later became associated with his father in the growing of garden seed. With his brother, L. M. Kimberlin, he organized the Kimberlin Seed Co. some fifteen years ago, and the company in which his son and the son of his brother are also associated.

He was a member of the Methodist church of Santa Clara, and for many years actively identified with the Woodmen of the World and the Fraternal Aid Society.

He is survived by his widow, one son, Floyd M. Kimberlin, and by the following brothers and sisters: O. B. Kimberlin, of Berkeley; H. B. Kimberlin, of Santa Clara; L. M. Kimberlin, of San Jose; Mrs. May Z. Rancin, of Oakland, and Mrs. M. C. Sanders, of Morgan Hill, Cal.

Funeral services were held March 8, following which the body was interred at Oak Hill cemetery, San Jose.

Arthur M. Rosell.

Arthur M. Rosell died suddenly at Mercy hospital, Parsons, Kan., Tuesday morning, March 8. The deceased underwent an operation, February 28, for acute appendicitis and great hopes were entertained for a complete recovery. His death came as a shock to his many friends. He had a pleasing personality and was a grower of exceptional ability. For nearly six years he had been manager of the Eastende Greenhouses & Gardens, of the Wirt Floral Co. He was 39 years old and well known among the growers of Kansas, Oklahoma and Missouri.

FLOWER GROWERS' ASSOCIATION

Committees Appointed.

Standing committees of the National Flower Growers' Association have been appointed from among the members of the board of directors by President W. J. Keimel, as follows: Production, E. Allen Peirce, Carl Hagenburger and W. J. Pilcher; marketing, Joseph Kohout, Carl Hagenburger and Earl Mann; credits and collections, Thomas Roland, Earl Mann and J. S. Wilson; legislation, Earl Mann, Thomas Roland and W. J. Pilcher. J. F. Ammann, Sec'y.

FOLIAGE TURNING BROWN.

Have you any data at hand indicating why freesias have a tendency to get brown tips on the leaves? The flower stems are perfect, but the foliage is not. K. & S.—Wis.

There are three possible causes for freesia foliage turning brown at the tips; first, overdryness at the roots; second, applying liquid manure in too heavy doses, and third, fumigation. The plants will stand occasional weak applications of liquid manure, but nothing will turn the tips more quickly than an overdose. Fumigation often raises havoc with foliage; tobacco stems always burn the tips badly, but you can use one of the nicotine papers with perfect safety. C. W.

Lansing, Mich.—Nelson Haner, who has been engaged in fruit growing, is preparing to grow gladioli this season.

Springfield, Ill.—A. C. Brown finds conditions more favorable now than they have been and anticipates a good Easter and spring business. Both at the greenhouses and at the store everything is in good shape for the continuation of as successful a business as has been enjoyed in former years.

Marysville, Kan.—H. R. Fisher intends to erect four cottages at Walker, Minn., on a tract of land called Fisher's Point, which is owned by his nephew. The plan is to make the point, which is on the shore of Leech lake, a summer resort. Mr. Fisher spent five weeks last summer at Walker and also two weeks during February. He will spend the summer there this year, leaving his business about June 1.

THE time to apply for hail insurance is before, not after, the storm.

WARM weather has aided the progress of lilies for Easter, many of which looked tardy a few weeks ago.

CLOCKS will be pushed ahead one hour in Chicago Easter Sunday, March 27, when daylight saving goes into effect.

THIS week the Classified section of The Review fills more than twenty-four pages, thereby setting a new high record above previous years.

WHILE the national publicity campaign is catching its second wind individual members of the trade should feature the slogan in every piece of printing they put before the public.

THERE is real need of a red rose that anybody can "do." And scarcely less need for a good white. Also, where is the worth-while yellow? What we don't need just now is another pink.

RESPONSIBILITY for blind bulbs is difficult to settle. The exporter blames the forcer's treatment, while the forcer alleges improper curing. The only certainty is that the loss from blindness has been unusually heavy this season.

ONE reason why business is lighter than it was a year ago is given in the report of the Chicago health department. It states the death rate for February, 1921, was nearly fifty per cent lower than in February, 1920, or 2,768 against 4,691.

INSTRUCTION of young men and women in selling over the counter will be begun in a school for retailing to be opened by New York University next September. Retail florists know there is much to be taught; the question is whether it is a branch of academic learning.

THE trade will not much longer stand for the man who does not acknowledge orders he cannot ship at once, for the man who stalls and stalls instead of returning money when he hasn't got the goods, or for the one who does not answer business letters, especially when he holds the inquirer's remittance. The old excuse of labor shortage has gone in the discard; there is no labor shortage now. To be permanently successful, a florist must do more than grow good stock and pack it well; he must operate his office in accordance with modern ideas.

SPRING is housecleaning time. There may be some cobwebs in your business that should be swept out.

IF the Florists' Hail Association of America were brought to the attention of florists generally, a far greater number would be glad to avail themselves of membership.

SEEKING additional pennies from the parsimonious public, drug stores are stocking garden seeds this spring. This is a legitimate side line florists should not let get away from them.

A MOST expressive colloquialism is that phrase, "passing the buck," but the action it describes is one of the least tolerable in business. It never satisfied a complainant or won a customer.

TAKEN as a whole, the flower business might be better, but it might be a great deal worse. Buyers may have reduced their individual purchases, but there are more flower buyers than ever before.

MANY hints for him who will heed are contained in a booklet of brief statements and telling illustrations, "Getting the Most Out of Retailing," just prepared by the National Cash Register Co., Dayton, O., out of its thirty-six years' study of retail store problems.

"ONE rarely sees a display in the window of a successful 5 and 10-cent store that is not crowded. This is so because the display men who make these displays realize that quantity suggests low prices." Then if you want to get more money for your flowers, better take some of them out of that window.

ARE WE?

"Before me lies a weekly newspaper from a small city in North Carolina. On opening it to see what it contains of interest to me," writes the editor of the Confectioners' Journal, "my eye is confronted with huge black letters, 'Say It with Flowers.' These letters ran across three columns and to make them more conspicuous they were in the center of a white space 6x7 inches. Below was the reading matter of the florists' company, advertising roses, carnations, orchids and such. The whole advertisement occupied a quarter-page and was striking in extreme. But the most striking thing on the whole page of that newspaper was the slogan of the florists.

" 'H'm,' said I, 'good business men, these florists. Know a good thing when they see it and have the business iniative to work it up into something that pays real money.' "

PROFITABLE PRICES.

While all in the florists' trade want profitable prices for their products, not all are desirous of high prices. There is a difference. The most profitable price is that which is high enough to pay everybody adequately and yet low enough to attract purchasers. A price that is so high it drives away trade is as unprofitable as one so low that it causes a loss in the transaction. The agencies in the trade which would work toward ascertaining this profitable level of prices are commendable. If, on the other hand, they aim at high prices, their efforts will be vain.

Prices must conform to the law of supply and demand in order to maintain industrial equilibrium. The trouble in the present commercial situation lies, not in falling prices, but in uneven prices. They are up in one industry and down in another. For any commodity there is at any given time a certain price which will secure a larger net result to the producers than any other price. That is to say, if the price be lowered the additional distribution will not compensate for the sacrifice, and on the other hand, if it be raised, the loss of distribution will exceed the gain in price. Everything that is offered for sale is in competition, not only with similar commodities, but also with all the multitude of attractions that are appealing to every consumer. Under these conditions it is folly on the part of a group of individuals to think that they have it in their power to fix prices arbitrarily for themselves. They may have the power to fix, and even maintain prices, but they cannot escape the effect their action will have upon sales.

APPEARANCES.

When you size up an applicant for a job, when you receive a new traveling salesman, when you take an order from an unknown customer, your first estimate of the individual is based on appearances. You may revise it later, but "first impressions are strongest." If the applicant is unkempt and awkward, do you give him much attention? If the salesman is untidy and displays dirty samples, do you buy? If the customer is unshaved and ragged, do you spend much time on him?

A letter comes into a business office. An odd-sized scrap of paper, maybe a sheet from a cheap tablet, carries the communication, which is written in pencil. Such a letter is, indeed, among the typewritten messages on printed stationery, an uncouth and unprepossessing stranger. What estimate of the writer is formed by the recipient of such a letter? Will the sender receive the utmost courtesy, care and consideration?

What sort of letters do you send out?

IT WORKS BOTH WAYS.

The harder the editor works, the less effort the advertising manager need make. A trade paper which holds the interest of its subscribers is so good an advertising medium that the advertisers seek it out. It works like this:

In renewing my subscription I should like to say I have enjoyed The Review and think it is the best and cheapest paper ever published for the trade. I hope you will keep up your good work, because it cannot be otherwise than a source of help and pleasure to its large number of subscribers.—Arthur L. Jones, Issaquah, Wash., March 3, 1921.

And then there is the other side, from an advertiser whose order came unsolicited:

We are pleased with the results thus far obtained from our four weeks' trial advertisement.—Garlough's Insecticide, Springfield, O., March 7, 1921.

If you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising you can be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

Considerable improvement is noticeable in the cut flower market, mainly in the direction of demand, although there is an increase in the supply. The movement of stock has been lively and, in most lines, without advances in prices; in fact, arrivals of some items have increased sufficiently to make advances out of the question. There are some who are willing to admit that the publicity emanating from the Allied Florists' Trade Association has worked to the advantage of the trade and, as the improved market conditions were concurrent with the appearance of the advertising in the New York dailies, their opinion is not to be challenged.

Roses are quite abundant, but little difficulty is experienced in effecting clearances. American Beauty is in better supply and prices of special grades have fallen to a range of $75 to $100 per hundred. Mild weather has helped along rose crops and the quality is everything that could be desired. Hybrid teas are plentiful in all varieties except reds, which are given a rest.

Carnations are abundant and the quality in general is better than for some time. Cattleyas also continue in heavy supply, but the demand for them is still on the poor side and prices are unchanged. There is considerable stock left over from day to day. Gardenias have become quite plentiful and clearances are difficult. The high prices due to the recent short supply, retailers say, have militated against the advancement of this particular line with the public.

White lilies are plentiful. Much stock intended for Easter is making an appearance. Lily of the valley is in oversupply and top grades at $6 per hundred sprays hang fire.

Sweet peas are in supply rather more heavily than the market can absorb and clearances are only possible with concessions in price.

Miscellaneous flowers are arriving in great quantity and selection is wide. Bulbous stock has taken on new life, and enormous quantities are daily received. Pansies, stocks, calendulas, lilac, iris, myosotis, snapdragon, alyssum, wallflowers, mignonette, delphiniums, freesias and primroses are in general supply, but the movement is, on the whole, good.

Flower Show.

Interest now centers upon the flower show. Arrivals from the west Monday morning, March 14, included George Asmus, of Chicago; J. Fred Ammann, of Edwardsville, Ill., and Carl Hagenburger, of Cleveland, O. Other visitors were Thomas Roland, of Nahant, Mass., president of the S. A. F.; E. Allan Peirce and L. J. Reuter, of Boston, Mass.; William F. Gude and George Hess, of Washington, D. C.; A. F. J. Baur, of Indianapolis, Ind.; Richard Vincent, Jr., of White Marsh, Md., and F. E. Palmer, of Brookline, Mass.

Perhaps never before has been seen so large an attendance of the regulars in the hours preceding the opening as at the show this year. Everything worked smoothly toward the opening hour, the last proceeding being the charge to the jurors, which was delivered by C. H. Totty, chairman of the board of jurors, in his usual good style.

KANSAS CITY, MO.

The Market.

Stock moved slowly the first part of the week, but the last half ended with a clean-up of all stock. With all the stock that has been cut, and it has been abundant, there has been no glut. Prices have been reduced and sales have been advertised to stimulate business. Merchandising is being practiced in the florists' business this season to an extent never before attempted.

With a continuance of favorable weather, it is expected there will be plenty of flowers and plants for Easter. Lilies will be in good supply. Prices will be kept within reasonable bounds, it is said.

Roses have sold this week from $4 to $20 per hundred; carnations, at $5 per hundred; sweet peas, from 75 cents to $2; jonquils, at $5, and tulips, $5.

Various Notes.

The Chandler Landscape & Floral Co. has a fine lot of lilies and plants for Easter. Several church decorations have been booked and some nice work in this line will be done.

About 2,000 pounds of grass seed have been sold within the last five weeks by the W. L. Rock Flower Co.

William Murray is secretary of the committee on publicity and arrangements for the Joseph Hislop concert at Convention hall, April 14. This concert will be given for the building fund of the St. Andrews society. The society is 7 years old and has a membership of 300. Its permanent fund now amounts to more than $18,000. The building fund was started a year ago and now amounts to over $7,000. Samuel Murray is chairman of the financial board.

March business, thus far, is better than a year ago with E. A. Humfeld.

J. G. Eggleston has purchased a greenhouse, 20x80 feet, and will add it to his range. He is going in strong for petunias and expects to have some in bloom for Easter. He will have one house in vincas this season.

The Linwood Floral Co. is potting spring stock.

C. T. Rinehardt expects to have plenty of sweet peas, carnations and snapdragons for Easter. He has a great many perennials, which have come through the mild winter in the best of shape.

Business for the week has been unusually good with W. J. Barnes. Work is being done on bedding stock. Customers are ordering seeds, and it takes persuasion to keep them from planting now.

George Harrison, of the Muehlebach Flower Shop, had charge of the flowers at the funeral of Mrs. J. N. Jackson, March 6. The orders were numerous and costly. Several of the shops shared generously.

Miss Nettie Seymour, of the W. L. Rock Flower Co., is back at her post after several weeks' illness.

Among the week's visitors were L. B. Robinson, of the Texas Seed & Plant Co., Dallas, Tex.; Tucker Smith and P. A. Manson, of Pleasant Hill, Mo.; P. E. Carroll, of Eldorado, Kan., and Charles Butchart, of La Cygne, Kan.

The publicity committee of the Florists' Club met March 10 to arrange for Easter advertising. An appropriation of $500 has been made by the club for this purpose, and it was decided by the committee to use this in newspaper publicity a week before Easter. The first advertisement will appear Sunday, March 20. Attention will be called to the fact that prices will not be so high as a year ago, owing to the greater supply of stock. The publicity committee is composed of Miss Hayden, chairman; M. E. Carter and Robert Fields, retailers; L. R. Bohannon and William Wade, wholesalers, and W. J. Barnes and C. J. Tucker, growers.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

There has been good business, all things considered, but it has not been possible to obtain high prices; there are too many flowers at this season of the year. As usual under such circumstances, the producers of the better grades of stock have profited at the expense of the growers whose stock is second choice. When the market is bare quality does not count so strongly, but when there is a little more than enough stock to go around the poorest is left. There seems to be quite a little poor stock at present.

The market has been without special feature for a week or more. The weather has been rather warm. It has brought in some stock which was intended for Easter, especially bulbous flowers. There has been enough of everything and, with a fairly active business, the market has not been clean. It is one of the times when there is nothing to say of flowers which has not been said before—too recently to make it worth while to repeat.

St. Patrick's day created scarcely more than a ripple. The demand for white carnations was not heavy and there was nothing to indicate that the Hibernians were celebrating this year. At the same time there was a large volume of regular shipments. At any other season of the year, when stock is less plentiful, so good a volume of orders would have meant fine prices, but this week it was not enough to lift the market at all.

That the shipping demand should be so heavy as it is seems remarkable to many in view of the reports which come from all points of the compass, to the effect that everywhere bulbous stock is more plentiful than ever before and selling at such low prices other flowers scarcely can compete.

Easter Prospects.

Except for pot lilies and, to a lesser extent, other blooming plants, there seems to be no eagerness to place Easter orders. The pot stock is about all sold, but cut flower orders are neither so large nor so numerous as one might expect. It looks like a big last-minute rush, as retailers can not do business without buying.

There is no means of gauging the eventual demand. Buyers apparently are holding off, trying to get a line on the retail demand; they want to buy enough, but not too much. Within a few days their orders will come with a rush, for this surely will be a big Easter, if not a record one.

While nobody can gauge the demand, it is easier to tell what the supply will be. It will be less than in recent years. The supply of lilies is small. Not many

FREY'S FAMOUS FANCY FREESIAS

These Colored Freesias show another great advance this year—they are far better than the original Rainbow. Much larger flowers, brighter colors, separate colors available in quantity.

These Fancy Colored Freesias are in a class by themselves—the bulbs are not yet on the market—the flowers are not to be had anywhere else.

They are handled in practically every first-class store in Chicago because their buyers SEE them and know these are much the best yet. Out-of-town stores are placing standing orders as fast as they REALIZE the difference.

The Randall Prosperity News

PERMIT No. 1203

From A. L. RANDALL COMPANY, 180 N. Wabash Ave., Chicago

The Spring edition of Randall's Prosperity News will be off the press this week and should be in your hands by Saturday, March 19th. This publication, established several years ago, is famous for its completeness as an exposition of florists' supplies, for its excellent illustrations, intimate descriptions of merchandise and remarkably low prices. Florists who know this publication appreciate its value as a guide in designing, store decoration and arrangement, merchandising and buying.

Florists' Supplies and Necessities from the Four Corners of the Earth— from our Own Factories and Fields— To help you to Greater Prosperity.

We want every florist in the United States to have a copy of Prosperity News—the journal of ideas.

bulbs were bought, and they are averaging less than two flowers per bulb, growers say. And still it seems there will be enough lilies to go around at the price, because orders are extremely light. Carnations will not be so numerous as in other years, and not all the rose growers are right with their crops. However, there will be flowers for everyone; at this season of the year and with foreknowledge of a special demand, now that the business is so broad, the growers can supply a tremendous quantity of flowers.

Open Easter Morning.

Practically all the wholesale houses in the Chicago market will be open Easter Sunday until noon. This principally to take care of city trade, but it will afford out-of-town buyers the opportunity to replenish their stock if they use the telegraph or telephone during the morning hours.

Easter Begins Daylight Saving.

Florists who buy from this market should note that daylight saving goes into effect in Chicago at 2 a. m. Easter Sunday, March 27, when clocks and watches will be set ahead one hour. The railroads are already making up their "summer" time tables. The suburban trains will operate on central time, as last year, but trains will be scheduled approximately one hour earlier.

Frey's Fancy Freesias.

Although Alois Frey has removed to California, the famous freesias still are the springtime feature at his place at Crown Point. Each season seems to mark a greater advance than any that has gone before. There is not only steady but rapid improvement, in size of flower and in purity and brightness of color. Only two of the varieties, General Pershing and Viola, thus far have been named and disseminated, but in the next year or two several more will be ready, clear pinks, a deep orange yellow, a bright red, a better lavender and others. General Pershing, the first of Frey's fancy freesias to be offered to the trade as bulbs for forcing, has met with approval from both growers and retailers, but the varieties yet to come are much better. In limited supply today, in years to come they probably will occupy a conspicuous place in the flower markets of the United States each spring.

While most of the trade visitors to Crown Point go to see the freesias, the big house of Mrs. Ward carnations is a sight which will repay one for the trip.

Reinberg Ranges to Be Razed?

It is reported that the heirs of Peter Reinberg contemplate the sale of the greenhouses for removal from the Robey street property. The estate is in the hands of Henry Kransz and Henry Zender as trustees and executors, but within a few weeks each of the heirs will have received title to the legacy set apart for him by the deceased. It is understood that the heirs, led by George Reinberg, are considering a plan for the sale of the greenhouses for removal, the purchasers to have from three to five years for the work. To facilitate this end, the plan contemplates selling the houses in the Robey street establishment as three parcels, each a complete range which the purchaser can operate until the day comes for razing the houses. If the plan is adopted, bids will be invited, possession to be given about June 1, or as soon as the heirs receive title. The output of the place known as the farm, which becomes the property of George Reinberg and Mrs. M. Weiland, may then be sold on commission and the Peter Reinberg city store sold or closed.

Commercial Flower Growers of Chicago at the Randolph hotel February 17 admired the vase of Angelus, the new white rose of Fred H. Lemon & Co., of Richmond. As reported in the following issue of The Review, the exhibit scored ninety points. After the meeting the roses were taken to the store of the E. C. Amling Co., where they stood on the counter for several days. Then the vase was set inside one of the glass-fronted refrigerators. The roses still were there March 15, lacking only one day of a month after they were cut. No care has been given them as a special means of prolonging their life. It probably is a world's record for keeping quality in cut roses.

Angelus will be disseminated next season. It is of the full double, two-tone type and both growers and retailers are watching it closely because it will take a place long vacant; there is nothing like it at present on the cut flower market and certainly there is need for a good white.

A. F. A. Directors Meet.

A meeting of the board of directors of the Allied Florists' Association was held March 11. The publicity policy for Easter and the period following was discussed. In view of the fact that the association is preparing for an effort to eliminate gluts on the market during the after-Easter period, the appropriation for actual Easter advertising is set at $1,000.

The directors have been working for better methods of obtaining funds for the association and a plan of action, it was announced, would probably be forthcoming within a few weeks. The matter of the florists' business being represented at the Pageant of Progress, to be held at the Municipal Pier during the first two weeks in August, came up for discussion, but no action was taken.

Various Notes.

It is tradition that half the flowers go into funeral work. What, then, must have been the effect on the business in Chicago with only 2,768 deaths in February, 1921, against 4,691 in the same month last year? But Health Commissioner Robertson warns of an impending recurrence of influenza. If the disease runs true to form, says Dr. Robertson, another wave of the flu will arrive here April 15.

A small party from Chicago, consisting of George Asmus, J. Fred Ammann and Fred Lautenschlager, left Saturday, March 12, for New York by the Twentieth Century express, to attend the eighth international flower show.

Miss Nettie Parker, secretary of A. T. Pyfer & Co., Inc., has given another demonstration of her versatility. She has been out on the road for nearly two weeks and has sent in a number of good orders, both for immediate shipment and for Easter.

Damage by hail March 7 at the range of the New City Floral Co., Sixty-first and Throop streets, proved larger than first reported. About 1,500 lights 16x18 and 2,000 lights 12x14 were broken. Five men finished the reglazing March 15. About 250 lilies for Easter were all broken by the shattered glass, and other potted plants, including cinerarias and begonias, primulas and geraniums, were badly damaged.

George Osborne, 5818 South Hermitage avenue, lost about $500 worth of glass in last week's hail storm. With a crew of seven men he got most of the glass replaced next day.

Joseph Einweck, formerly with Bassett & Washburn, recently joined the staff of the E. C. Amling Co. in the rose department.

Dearborn Chorus, the Masonic social organization of which John Enders is president, gave its annual minstrel show and review at Aryan Grotto March 11 and 12, to two capacity audiences.

C. J. Michelsen spent March 10 at Richmond and March 11 at Crown Point.

C. L. Sherer was in the south last week, for the Chicago Flower Growers' Association.

George Reinberg is clearing the land occupied by twelve of his Rosehill houses. The houses are 25x265 and are to be removed within six weeks.

Paul R. Klingsporn was 41 years of age March 15. They say he celebrated the anniversary by handing Uncle Sam a nice, fat check.

Adolph Poehlmann and Mrs. Poehlmann celebrated their twenty-ninth wedding anniversary March 10. Things are different with them than in 1892.

W. J. Smyth and Mrs. Smyth have returned from a two months' vacation trip to California.

It is interesting to note that Ziska & Sons expect to double their sales in 1921. John Ziska says it is a mere matter of seeking orders instead of waiting for them. They consider prices have fallen so low that they are likely to rebound, so they are stocking up more heavily than ever before.

Amling Bros., Des Plaines, are putting in a large storage box to cool their rose cuts before shipment.

W. A. Hansen spends a fortnight on the road for the E. C. Amling Co. before each important holiday. Mr. Hansen reports he finds the retailers a little uncertain how far to go for Easter and predicts a late rush of orders which will carry the market up, just as it did at St. Valentine's day.

Visitors.

The approach of a special flower day always brings a number of visitors to market. Some are sellers, who come to get acquainted with conditions here as a guide to their own operations, and some are buyers, who seek stock for their retail trade.

D. S. Geddis, of the St. Louis Wholesale Cut Flower Co., arrived March 13. He is a former Chicagoan who has prospered since leaving us.

Mrs. E. H. Mazey, of Minneapolis, was here last week and made numerous purchases for what she thinks will be a big Easter.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

If it were not for funeral work, the florists might just as well close their stores, for there is not enough activity to keep one clerk busy. And with this dullness, there is a surplus of stock

The Ever-Ready Flower Pot Cover

The Ever-Ready Stands Out Strongly in Meeting Every Pot Cover Requirement

Of What and How Made. It includes a strong cardboard foundation, the outside of which is covered with best quality Waterproof crepe paper with fiber ribbon ties at top and bottom, and all firmly put together with improved metal fastenings.

Low of Cost. It is supplied at low enough prices to allow a gratis disposal, as the improved appearance of the plant justifies advanced pricing that more than offsets its cost.

A Time and Money Saver. Compared with trimming pots specially, with papers, mattings and the like, it freely saves flower store workers' time and avoids the cost of high-priced materials.

The Market.

Market conditions have been continually improving during the last few weeks. While the prices have not advanced, the supply has diminished just a little and is practically absorbed every evening. Retailers have been complaining that business has been slow. This is usually the condition before Easter. However, some florists report that they have been doing a fairly good volume of business in funeral work. The great question before all the retailers today is whether or not Easter will be as good as years gone by.

The supply of carnations continues to be short of the demand and each day finds the carnations cleaned up early in the morning. Roses are also arriving in small quantities and are prac-

Various Notes.

The Florists' and Gardeners' Club of Pittsburgh paid their annual visit to many of the local greenhouses March 9. Even though the weather was inclement, there were fifty members in the party. Full report appears on another page, headed "Pittsburgh Club's Outing."

Wednesday, March 9, Joseph Thomas, of Greensburg, Pa., suffered a loss of over $10,000 by fire. The blaze destroyed the packing house, boiler house and other buildings. Fortunately, he is able to fire his boilers, which escaped damage.

Several new florists opened stores last week. G. R. Carruthers is opening a flower shop at 1707 Broadway, Beechview, Pa., while T. W. Beaver is opening a store at Beaver, Pa.

An attractive circular is being distributed by Paul E. Barber, proprietor of the Liberty Flower Store, Steubenville, O., carrying with it Easter greeting suggestions.

Edward A. Ashcraft, salesman for the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., was compelled to take his wife to the hospital for a slight operation. She is recovering.

W. A. Clarke, treasurer of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., addressed the Crab Apple Club, at State College, Pa., Wednesday evening, March 9.

The firm of Mrs. E. A. Williams has completed its spring decoration for the Davis and Grant theaters. H. J. H.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

Last week there was a heavy addition in every variety of flowers to swell the stream that supplies the cut flower market in this city. The market held Monday, March 7, but the following day prices commenced to decline. This continued throughout the week. Saturday saw heavy trading at low figures.

Sweet peas, roses and daffodils suffered most, because there were more of them. The quality of all three was generally good. The large buyers bought freely.

The weather was a most important factor in this change, outside conditions being delightfully springlike. Just what effect cold or dark weather will have on the market is a matter of speculation.

William K. Harris.

There has long hung a sort of floricultural halo over the horticultural establishment of William K. Harris. It was observed in the days of Rose General and of Pandanus Veitchii and of Lilium Harrisii. It has remained with more or less glory ever since. The horticultural world is eager to know what the establishment of William K. Harris is producing. Today it is Easter-flowering plants—Lilium longiflorum multiflorum of exceptional quality, tall, robust and heavily budded; hydrangeas in twelve French varieties, General de Vibraye colored the real Harding blue, a striking foil to the rich, glowing pink of Jeanne Nonin; the brilliant Azalea Hinodigiri and the exquisitely delicate genistas in graceful specimens.

The pre-Easter touch that gives further individuality is the Irish shamrock, that has left, affording much room for expansion, so dear to the heart of the true plantsman.

Hamlet.

It is said, semi-officially, that when Alvah R. Jones read the paragraph entitled "Scranton," that appeared in this column three weeks ago, he likened it to the play of Hamlet with the prince left out. A glance showed that something had happened to Scranton. It was not "all there"; in fact, much of

There Is Every Indication OF A BIG SUPPLY OF CUT FLOWERS FOR EASTER

The best item on our list will be ROSES. We will have more and better Roses than any previous year.

RUSSELL, PREMIER, COLUMBIA and SHAWYER we will have in quantity in all grades, especially in the medium grades.

For corsage roses, we suggest CECILE BRUNNER, McDONALD, AARON WARD and OPHELIA.

BEAUTIES for Easter will be very fine. Good sized flowers of a fine color. Order them early.

In CATTLEYAS we will have a good supply—MOSSIAE, TRIANAE and SCHROEDERAE.

Plenty of GARDENIAS in all grades; some with stems 12 to 15 inches long.

SNAPDRAGON is one of the best items on our list and you should not omit this from your order.

We also recommend the following items, of which there will be a good supply: DAISIES, VALLEY, DAFFODILS, SWEET PEAS, EASTER and CALLA LILIES.

Provide for an ample supply and be prepared for a large business.

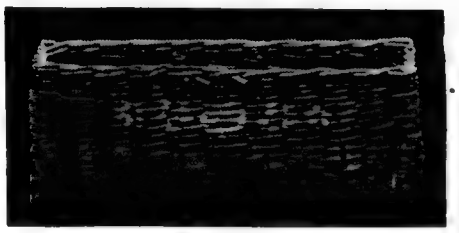
it was not there at all. There were hurried consultations between the chief and Phil. It developed that a distraction—it may have been a telephone ring for a movie date—had so changed the calm current of the steno's thought that the interrupted current was resumed at the same word near the bottom instead of near the top of "Scranton."

Furzino, even in three weeks the minor papers have not got hold of what occurred in Scranton on that fateful evening away back in the shortest month of the year, so here it is in brief.

Charles H. Grakelow was lionized there. He was met at the station and dined and then greeted by a splendid audience of Scranton's best in flowers, some 100 strong. Mr. Grakelow gave a stirring address on "Coöperation," which resulted in twenty-seven new members being added to the Scranton Florists' Club, and the determination to hold a flower show there this season.

Godfrey Aschmann.

There was activity at the establishment on Ontario street. Orders were being picked out, plants were being wrapped, and a long row of cases stood ready for use. John Aschmann and his son, Edward Aschmann, were busy, but not too busy for a cheerful greeting and a few minutes' chat. The houses were filled with Easter lilies, mostly in bud, a few just coming into bloom. French hydrangeas are coming to the front as one of the leading plants. The cinerarias are a show, large heads of highly colored blooms in a good range of color. The foliage is clean and healthy. It would be hard to find a finer lot of cinerarias. Begonia luminosa is exceedingly attractive. Though not strictly an Easter plant, this sterling house plant is so popular that it is flowered right through the season.



Large quantities of bulbs are flowered for Easter. Hyacinths, daffodils and tulips all looked well.

Emile H. Geschick.

An exceptionally fine lot of hydrangeas are the feature of an exceedingly well grown assortment of Easter-flowering stock. The plants are well advanced; they are now in a cool temperature and highly colored. Trophee is the gem of this collection. There are hundreds upon hundreds of them, all superb plants. The lilies are all formosum, showing good culture and well budded. There are really wonderful home-grown Lilac Marie Legraye, some nice astilbes, also home-grown, and some excellent German valley. Narcissus King Alfred is the most striking daffodil.

Aschmann Bros.

Aschmann Bros. have a good, big lot of Easter plants in the leading standard varieties. The roses are particularly well grown. Among them is American Beauty, rarely seen now as an Easter-flowering plant. Magna Charta and Ophelia are also well done. The quantity of stock in this place is increased by a generous use of frames.

Various Notes.

A party went from Lancaster county to Chester county March 9. There were three members of the family whose name is linked with the successful culture of the sweet pea this winter. There was Ira B. Landis and James Brown, of Coatesville, and our own Samuel S. Pennock, and I have an unhappy feeling that there was some other distinguished horticulturist. They visited A. Harvey & Son and E. C. Marshall and Richards Bros. and J. Howard Thompson and William Swayne and Percy Barnard (I have not the pleasure of knowing this gentleman, but I have it on the most reliable authority that everyone calls him Percy) and mayhap some more. They saw many things indoors. Outdoors they saw a forsythia in bloom.

David B. Grillbortzer, of the Washington Floral Co., Washington, D. C., was here March 12.

The arrival of southern daffodils has further demoralized the bulb market. While these flowers are not to be compared with greenhouse-grown stock from nearby, they affect prices. Southern daffodils are quoted at from $2 to $3 per thousand.

Dr. Herman Burgin spoke before the Germantown Horticultural Society in the library of Vernon park March 14 on "Our Botanical Indebtedness to the Far East."

George Craig celebrated his forty-sixth business anniversary March 17. Originally the firm was Craig & Bro.,

John Stanley, of East Downington, Pa., had the misfortune to have one of his greenhouses blown down in the severe storm of March 9.

H. B. Fullerton spoke before the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society in the New Century club on the afternoon of March 15 on "Pioneering Within Sixty Miles of New York City."

Messrs. Gibson and Ackerman, representing the Zieger Floral Co., Pittsburgh, have been with us.

Raymond Brunswick says that a process has just been perfected for making paper flowers waterproof. Mr. Brunswick had four roses, two Hadley, one Columbia and one White Killarney, which retained their beauty after being thoroughly soaked in water.

Philadelphians will be interested to know that Paul Klingsporn is one of the leading spirits in the Chicago market.

T. B. McClintock, of Scranton, Pa., has been in this city. Phil.

The Kensington Flower Shop, Nate X. Goodman, proprietor, which recently opened a store at 3372 Kensington avenue, has now purchased the adjoining property, on the corner of Kensington and Ontario streets, at a cost of $18,000. Mr. Goodman considered his business needed more space.

CINCINNATI, O.

The Market.

No marked change took place in the cut flower market last week. Good supplies of practically everything are coming in. Out-of-town buying continues; in fact, it shows an increase over last week.

There is little change in roses. Premier still seems to be the favorite, but Madame Butterfly and Columbia hold their own. The wholesalers are still at a loss to know how to fill orders for short roses, as about seventy-five per cent of those coming from the growers are long. There being more of a demand for roses ranging from twelve to eighteen inches, the long-stemmed grades do not bring the returns they should.

Carnations are arriving in large numbers and are not high in price. The abundance of stock is due to warmer, brighter days. Pansies showed a marked increase in numbers last week and are moving well.

Violets, it seems, have had too much warm weather and it looks as though another week like the last one will finish them this season. Sweet peas are now in full bloom and it looks as though there will be a glut, but, as usual, the good ones move well, there being a good demand for them for corsage work.

Bulbous stock is slowing up, which points to the fact that the growers are safeguarding their Easter prospects. Most of the bulbous stock consists of daffodils and freesias, the warm weather playing havoc with hyacinths and tulips. Miscellaneous stock can be had at a nominal price. The supply of greens moves well.

Various Notes.

Things were quite brisk at H. W. Sheppard's last week, especially funeral work. There were also a number of wedding orders. This shop has booked a few decoration orders for department stores. Telegraph business holds up well.

Ed Bossmeyer, manager at C. E. Critchell's, heard from Mr. Critchell, who is in Honolulu. Mr. Critchell is on his way home and expects to arrive in Cincinnati in time for the Easter rush. Mr. Bossmeyer also reports a good week in out-of-town orders for baskets and supplies.

The William Murphy Co. has been receiving some excellent sweet peas from F. A. Schneider, of Price Hill, and also some fancy mignonette from Louis F. Murphy, also of Price Hill.

Julius Baer reports a good week in funeral work. This can easily enough be realized, as Mr. Baer is seen at the market daily.

Charles Jones, of the Walnut Hill Floral Bazaar, reports large orders from out of town for funeral work. There was so much one day last week that he sent a truck load to Xenia, O.

E. G. Gillett has been receiving some choice Easter lilies and also a good supply of the popular new foliage, coontie.

T. W. Hardesty & Co. have had some attractive window displays of spring flowers lately.

The Cincinnati Cut Flower Exchange has been receiving some good valley from William Schuman, of the Highlands, and also good calendulas from Charles Windram, of Cold Springs, Ky.

The Market.

The market has been in a glutted condition. Carnations and sweet peas especially have been abundant. Demand has been none too brisk and the supply has accumulated.

Roses are ample. The price on small lots has been from $6 to $30 per hundred, but bargain prices are obtained on large lots. Carnations have been bringing from $4 to $6 per hundred. Sweet peas are in abundance and have been ranging in price from 75 cents to $2 per hundred. Lilies are plentiful. Callas have been arriving in large quantities and range in price from $1.50 to $2. Easter lilies are also available. From all indications, the latter will be none too plentiful for the Easter market. The price now is 20 cents per bud or bloom, but the Easter price will be better.

Bulbous stock is greatly in evidence. Jonquils are especially numerous and have been bringing $6 per hundred. Tulips are attractive and fairly popular.

Various Notes.

A. F. J. Baur is in New York, representing the American Carnation Society at the national flower show committee meeting.

March 17, Baur & Steinkamp will entertain a group of students from the floriculture department of the University of Illinois. Prof. H. B. Dorner will accompany his students. They will also visit Richmond and Lafayette.

George Blackman, of Evansville, will act as judge at the Indiana state fair exhibitions.

FLORAL CUSS WORDS.

A group of London art students, says the London Daily News, were sitting at a table in a Chelsea teashop and their language seemed a sort of futurism. One young man, glaring at another, called him a "gilded buttercup." The other, firing up, retorted: "What the golden daffodils do you know about it, you variegated carnation?" Then followed perfect broadsides of botanical bad language. These youths, it seems, are in revolt against the ugliness of popular swear words and have resolved to form the habit of substituting some epithets of beauty. The effect, no doubt, was absurd—yet hardly more so, probably, than the meaningless and more debasing expletives in common use today. Besides, a glance at seed catalogues shows that there is no limit to the dreadful but beautiful things we could call people.

LOUISVILLE, KY.

The Market.

Sunshine the last ten days caused stock to be more abundant. Business has slumped, owing to the nearness of Easter, but the dealers are cleaning up fairly well each day. Pot plants and bulbous stock are moving well.

Club Meeting.

The Kentucky Florists' Association held its regular monthly meeting in the store of the Kunzman Floral Co. March 9. There was a large attendance and after the members had inspected the entire range, which was in splendid condition, with plenty of bulbous stock coming on for Easter, the meeting was called to order. Lively discussions took place, which were of considerable interest to the members. At the close of the business meeting the members and their wives were served with a delicious repast.

Various Notes.

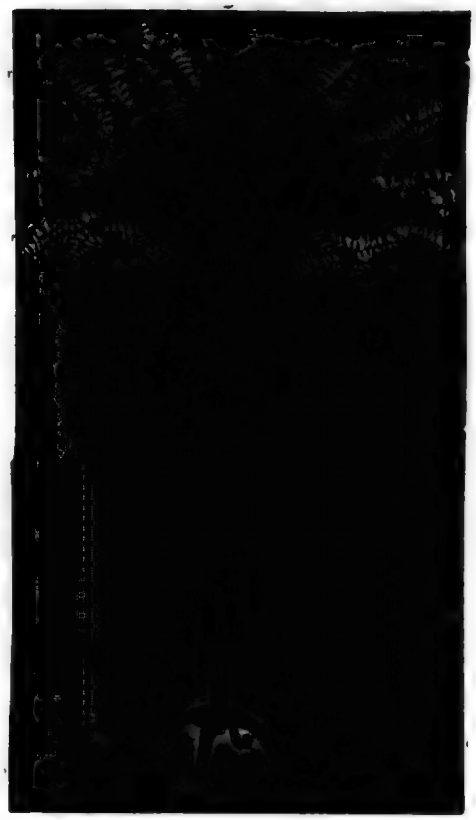
Louis Kirch is getting his plants in fine condition for the Easter trade.

The H. Kleinstarink range is a mass of blooming plants.

Heitz & Sons are well prepared to take care of their usual large plant sales this Easter.

Henry Fuchs has a fine lot of Easter stock and bedding plants.

Louis Gueltig is cutting some extra fine sweet peas and calla lilies.



Louis G. Pleiss is enjoying a good shipping business in stock plants. L.

LEAF FROM EDIBLE FRUIT.

Will you kindly tell me the name of the plant from which came the leaf I am sending you? The seed was sent by a friend in California. The plants are now about two feet high and are growing rapidly. F. C.—Ind.

The leaf sent is of the loquat, Eriobotrya japonica. This is a most useful fruit, being hardy in southern California, but needing the protection of a greenhouse in the middle west. To bear fruit it requires a large space, such as in a conservatory, but it is an attractive plant when grown only for the foliage. In California the fruit ripens in April and when thoroughly ripe is delicious in flavor. It is also used for making a superior jelly. It is easily grown from seed, which should be planted soon after the fruit ripens, as it quickly loses its germinating power if kept dry.

HENRY PENN'S MESSAGE
Everybody sells something or loafs

MYSTERY or MASTERY

Have you ever stopped to think that there is no MYSTERY in success? It is not something intangible to be stumbled upon by the lucky few. It is based on law, not luck! It is the result of obedience to the laws that underlie business activity and human life! It comes from MASTERY of these laws, and their application to one's work! To know these laws and to apply them consciously and intelligently is sure to bring success whatever one's undertaking. MASTERY is the key-word, not MYSTERY! The change of one letter makes all the difference in the world.

EVERYBODY SELLS SOMETHING

Adjustment is the word of the hour. Business conditions are rapidly changing. Just a short time ago, there were more buyers than there were goods. Now the opposite is true. There are more goods than buyers. Instead of a seller's market, we have a buyer's market. All business, or, in other words, all human activity, in its last analysis is dependent upon salesmanship. The mechanic sells his skill; the teacher sells his knowledge; the merchant his merchandise; the bookkeeper his services. Are you dealing in ideas, merchandise, or service? Your business success depends upon your ability to market your product, or, in other words, your success depends upon your salesmanship.

This message is taken from the Sheldon Science of Business, of which I am a class member at Boston, and I think it contains meat for all florists.

The florists whose cards appear on the pages carrying this head, are prepared to fill orders from other florists for local delivery on the usual basis.

Los Angeles, Pasadena and

The undersigned, the leading florists of the above cities, send greetings to their brother retailers throughout the United States and wish to assure them every facility in filling orders all over California and adjacent states.

There is every prospect of a good supply of stock for Easter. Artistic boxes and baskets of spring flowers will again be in big demand.

Our rose growers expect to be in with a good crop and Lilies, Carnations, Valley, Orchids, bulb stock and other staples promise to be plentiful.

WE GUARANTEE SATISFACTION TO YOUR CUSTOMERS

We are continually sending orders to all parts of the country from tourists and residents in this locality and wish to express our sincere thanks for the courtesies extended us by our brother florists.

TIMES BRING NEW NEEDS.

Young Men's Training.

There is no doubt of the fact that one of the greatest problems now confronting the florists' business in this country is the lack of thoroughly trained young men to continue the industry. In my connection with the business I can remember the time when the florist was thoroughly trained in every branch. He was as much at home in the grapery as in the rose house. He was as familiar with the kitchen garden as the carnation house. He could do a piece of landscape work as well as any landscape architect, or plant an orchard as well as an orchardist. There was no part of the business that his early training on some private estate in Europe had not fitted him for.

In these days we all realize that the industry has become highly specialized. One man will make a specialty of roses, another of carnations and another of some pot plant. The young man going to any of these establishments to learn the business becomes proficient in just whatever that particular establishment makes a specialty of, and in many cases he is just a cog in the wheel to perform perhaps a single service in the production of that special crop. Does he know anything of propagation or reproduction of that crop? Does he know anything of the constituents of the soil required? And even if he does, the best we can expect is a rose or carnation grower.

The best florists of this country today are those who have a thorough knowledge of all branches of gardening. Some will say that in the medical profession, for instance, it is the specialist who is most successful, and we will admit this to be a fact, in his particular specialty, but think of the number of general practitioners there are throughout the country in comparison with the specialist. It is the up-to-date establishments throughout the country, those places where the young men are most apt to seek a place of instruction, that are the specialists. In the smaller establishments, where not so much help is employed, we usually find that the proprietor is the brains of the establishment, and his employees are usually of the unskilled class.

Institutional Training Suggested.

If the industry is to be continued upon the high plain it now occupies, it seems to me that some institution will have to be provided in the near future where the young men can be educated in the general cultural methods of the industry. I do not mean by this that a college education is necessary, although if it were possible there could be nothing better for the future of the business, for this would insure a well trained mind, and in the florists' business, as in any other industry, this is certainly desirable. We must remember that the majority of the young men learning the florists' business, unless they are the sons of the proprietors of some of our up-to-date ranges, are not in a financial position to take advantage of such an education. Yet there are hundreds of young men throughout the country today working in some of the large ranges who realize how their training is handicapped, who, if they had the opportunity to take up a course where they could be grounded in general cultural methods, would be only too glad to make any sacrifice necessary. Such a course should not cost these people more than board and lodging at the most. The instruction they receive should be the most intensive and as thorough as possible.

How is it to be accomplished? The writer is frank to say he does not know; but this is a subject that has been given a great deal of study in the last several years, and I have come to the conclusion that the time has come to act. The next question is, "Who is the proper and logical one to promote such a proposition?" We look at once to the

S. A. F. This is the national organization and the proper body to take up this question. In these days we hear much talk of devoting the permanent fund of that organization to that purpose. Let us look at this proposition for a moment. In the first place, this fund amounts to about $50,000. This would seem an inadequate sum for this purpose, but admitting, for the sake of argument, that this sum is sufficient to equip a modern institution, one where laboratory training could be had, as well as a scientific floral course, it would be geographically inaccessible to the majority of those who would be only too glad to take advantage of it.

To my mind this is a question that should be taken up at the next convention of the S. A. F. and thoroughly thrashed out. Let us see if some practical solution of the whole question cannot be worked out at the next convention. Would it not be possible to appoint a committee to take this question up with some of our leading colleges throughout the country?

Establish Courses at Colleges.

Already several colleges have courses in floriculture; but are these accessible to those who are most in need of such a course? It seems to me that many institutions could establish a course where a thorough technical as well as practical education in the production of flowers could be had. To this a thorough training in business methods might be added. In these days of limited production of flowers it might be possible to show these institutions where such a course would be a paying proposition and at the same time increase the production of flowers through the country, a thing that is much needed at the present time. In such a course a young man would, in all probability, be trained in computing the cost of production, as well as the most economical method of production.

These are only suggestions, and the motive of them is, if possible, to stir up thought on the subject. We are all familiar with the fact that many a

The Market.

There was a greatly increased stock at all the wholesale markets last week. The clear, warm weather brought out the blooms in large quantities daily and, should this keep up, bulbous stock in plants or cut flowers will be exceedingly scarce for Easter, as far as local growers are concerned. The great supply caused the price to drop in order to dispose of the surplus. While there was no actual, old-time glut, the retailers were buying only the choice stock and left-overs were jobbed off in thousand lots at low prices.

In looking over the various markets during the week, some really excellent stock was noticed, including Premier, Russell, Columbia and Ophelia. There is a plentiful supply in all grades and much is expected from the local growers for a large supply for Easter. Carnations did not bring high prices last week, as the supply was large, but the coming demand will, no doubt, bring the price

TOM, the Scotchman, doesn't like our selling dried colored flowers and grasses; Suko, the Jap, does. Tom says it cheapens our business. Suko says, we get just that much more business than we would get, so why not get it?

Yesterday they were arguing it out again, when finally Suko said, "You, Scotchman Tom, something I tell you; in China Country when man dead die and take him in his bury box he all rest his time down lie in; then all peoples following box, and all round throw make-believe money. Then when along come evil spirits, they pick the money up, thinking is good. So much time take they up pick the money that can no up catch with dead mans before he buried be in peace.

"So see, you Scotchman Tom, that fool money just good for bad spirit as gold money.

"Chinaman religion say when a thing is enough good, it is good enough. Thats what I think me about these beautiful very colored flowers and grasses."

Club Meeting.

The St. Louis Florists' Club held a most interesting meeting Thursday afternoon, March 10, at publicity headquarters, 1316 Pine street. Fifty members were in attendance when President W. A. Rowe called the meeting to order. After disposing of the regular routine work, reports were called for.

The trustees reported that as all members had not as yet made returns for their tickets, they would not be able to make a final report of the recent dance until the next meeting.

Chairman Bourdet, of the publicity committee, made a lengthy report on what the committee had accomplished, inasmuch as fourteen leading retailers had tied up with them in placing a full-page Easter advertisement for Palm Sunday and the entire Easter advertising would cost the committee $1,000.

The membership committee on the application of A. N. Nielsen, of Pana, Ill., reported favorably and he was elected a member. An application by Walter Amling, of Pana, Ill., was turned over to the committee. Of the fifty members present only one appeared without a flower and he was assessed a fine of 10 cents.

An illustrated lecture was given by L. P. Jensen on "The Principles of Landscape Gardening," in which he was assisted by George H. Pring. Mr. Jensen showed on the screen interesting pictures of fine estates, both eastern and western, which he had collected during his travels in the last two years. The club has purchased a picture machine peets for Easter. The next meeting will be held April 14.

Various Notes.

The Acme Flower Shop, in the Arcade building, celebrated its first anniversary in business Thursday, March 10. The pretty store was filled with visitors all day; a band of music was playing, and a large force of young ladies presented each lady with a bunch of sweet peas and each gentleman with a carnation. Miss Turk, head of the company, says 15,000 flowers were given away during the day. The company made a great success during its first year.

L. Jules Bourdet celebrated his fifty-second birthday, March 19, with a number of friends, at his home on Magnolia avenue.

Robert Newcomb last week staged with the William C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co. a fine, new pink carnation by John Stevens, of Kansas City, Mo., which received much attention from the growers. It is from Good Cheer and Matchless and in stem looks like a winner. Mr. Newcomb also staged a vase of Adiantum Wrightii, from Wright's Flower Shop, Los Angeles, Cal.

George Berner had his right arm badly cut while cranking his automobile early last week. This will keep him out of the bowling for at least two weeks, and the Rose team will sadly miss him.

William C. Smith, head of the W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co., celebrated his tenth wedding anniversary March 9, at his home on Thurman avenue.

seems to be good, so there is little if any surplus. Hyacinths in pots are selling well, although the supply is nowhere up to what it usually is. Tulips are scarce and are being cleaned up about as fast as they appear. Cyclamens and other pot plants are being held back for Easter. Everything indicates that there will be about the normal supply of Easter lilies this year and that the quality will be good. Already surplus cut flowers are beginning to go into storage for Easter.

The white allium is being forced here this year in considerable quantities and is proving a fine seller. While it does not take the place of valley, it is much liked by the customers and works nicely into bouquets of all kinds; in fact, it bids fair to become more popular than the freesia. Many people dislike the heavy odor of the latter. True, the allium has a disagreeable odor when it first opens, but this quickly leaves it.

Already rumors of a heavy demand for bedding plants are heard. Hardy ornamentals have not sold so well this spring as last, largely because there was no building to speak of last fall. More building is starting this spring than for a long time; consequently everyone feels that the demand will be heavy this fall for ornamental stock. There is some complaint that Premier is not so popular with the public as was expected, owing to its not keeping so well as either Columbia or Ophelia. It will be planted heavily, however, for another year.

The Joy Floral Co. has a fine cut of roses, owing largely to its new greenhouses. These houses are strictly up-to-date in every particular. The firm is propagating heavily in several of the new seedling carnations and expects to be in a position to handle a large business in the new white, Thomas C. Joy. dust and smoke have been damaging the plants for some time. In spite of these handicaps, the firm has been able to produce especially high-grade stock and plenty of it. It reports business to be fully as good this year as it was last. F. B.

BALTIMORE, MD.

The Market.

The market last week was only fair. There was a large supply of cheap stock on hand. Southern jonquils arrived and could be had for $1 per hundred. They were of fairly good quality at that, but the buyers preferred to pay the higher price for forced stock. Sweet peas were in fine supply and of splendid quality and the best of these cleaned up well. Roses were in fair supply and of splendid quality. Carnations were in supply to meet all requirements. Violets were plentiful and a few found their way to the street. Bulbous stock was in heavy supply and various qualities were offered. Good returns were had for the best stock, while the cheaper grades had southern outdoor stock to compete with.

Orchids seem to be plentiful; that is, plentiful for orchids. Miscellaneous stock is exceedingly plentiful. However, only the best of all lines of stock is taken. Street men have been watching for an opportunity to do business for some time, but scarcity of stock and high prices prevented. They are having opportunity now and are certainly taking advantage of the abundance of stock and the reduced prices.

Everyone seems to agree that the outlook for Easter is fine for all lines of cut stock, but good blooming plants are going to be scarce. Lilies and hydrangeas seem to be right for Easter, but when the available stock is divided up someone is going to be disappointed. A great many baskets have been sold. This would indicate that there will be a large supply of made-up plant baskets offered.

Capital City Floral Co., Successor to ALEXANDER'S
FOR ALL SOUTHERN WEST VIRGINIA

Jr., whose obituary notice appeared in last week's issue of the Review, was held from the residence at White Marsh, Md., Thursday, March 10, at 2 p. m. Burial was in the family lot in Ebenezer cemetery, at Chase, Md. Six nephews of the deceased acted as pallbearers. The funeral was largely attended by members of the trade of Baltimore and nearby cities.

A handsome array of funeral offerings was assembled at this funeral, and among the most noted were the following: A spray of Columbia roses from the Florists' Club of Baltimore; a Roman wreath from A. T. De La Mare and co-workers, of camellias and violets; a wreath of roses and orchids from Mr. and Mrs. Isaac H. Moss; wreath of carnations and pansies from Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Graham; wreath from the American Dahlia Society; spray of roses and sweet peas from Mr. and Mrs. William F. Gude; spray of lilies from Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Miller; spray of lilies from the Washington Floral Co.; spray of roses and sweet peas from the Lancaster County Florists' Club; spray of lilies from Thomas Vincent; palms and roses from F. C. Bauer; spray of orchids from Robert Halliday; spray of roses from George Frasier. The casket was covered with a pall of white roses and orchids. Among those at the funeral were: William F. Gude and son, Otto Bauer and J. H. Hetherington, of Washington, and John M. Rider, James Glass, Isaac H. Moss, Joseph S. Merritt, F. C. Bauer, Robert L. Graham, Jr., William F. Ekas and Charles Paterson, all of the Florists' Club of Baltimore.

Various Notes.

Charles G. Siegwart has some fine gardenia plants for Easter. The Easter crop of orchids at this range is expected to be the finest in its history. Orchids are the main crop, while gardenias are grown as a side line.

Edward Stevenson, of Stevenson Bros., was laid up last week with stomach trouble, but he is well on the way to recovery.

Wm. F. McKissick, of the Leo Niessen Co., has been busy getting a line of stock for Easter. He says that the outlook for roses is good and lilies will be right, but he does not think this firm will handle double violets at all. However, it will have a good line of sweet peas and all sorts of stock for corsage work.

The "Say It with Flowers" week committee held an important meeting in the store of Mary Johnston March 11, at which plans were laid to get down to work in earnest. It was decided to hold the big flower show in Lehman's hall. At this meeting it was proposed to hold a street parade during the dahlia season to announce the show, which will not be held until chrysanthemums are at their height. The committee decided to put this question up to the club at its next meeting. The finance committee was organized, with Robert W. Johnston as chairman. This committee is now ready to receive subscriptions. A letter will be sent to every florist in the city. The committee is most enthusiastic and intends that Baltimore shall again be the leaders of "Say It with Flowers" week in this country.

Supply Co. has completed an attractive circular announcing a splendid line of blooming plants for Easter.

F. E. Cremer, Hanover, Pa., has a large stock of as fine French hydrangeas and spiræas as one could wish to see. This range, perhaps, holds the record for rapid greenhouse construction in this country, putting a complete house under roof in seven hours. But thereby hangs a tale. The city fathers of Hanover proposed to open a street through the Cremer place. This would have greatly interfered with the working system of this range, and litigation would have been expensive, with the chance of losing. In the code of Hanover there is a provision that a street cannot be opened through a house or building that is under roof. The material was prepared and July 4 was awaited, when it would be impossible to obtain an injunction. The entire staff was pressed into service. They started to work at 5 a. m. July 4, and had a half day's holiday. July 5 the officials of Hanover found a fully equipped greenhouse where the street should have crossed the property. The house is still standing, giving the best of service, and Mr. Cremer delights in showing this house and telling its history. Tate.

The Market.

Business has been plugging along slowly, but stock cleaned up fairly well last week. Bulbous stock seemed to be the feature of the market and there was an abundance of tulips, narcissi, daffodils and freesia. Roses moved nicely and carnations cleaned up. White was scarce, owing to the closeness of St. Patrick's day. Calendulas are now good stock and some extra large specimens of the double variety arrived last week. Some fine Laddie and red carnations also put in an appearance. Some of the best pussy willow in years has begun to arrive at this market and is finding a ready sale. Sweet peas were exceptionally good last week. Mignonette, myosotis and a few primulas moved slowly.

Various Notes.

The Cleveland Florists' Club held an interesting meeting at the Hollenden hotel, March 7. Judge Stevens, of the Municipal court, gave an interesting address on the liquor traffic question.

T. B. Stroup, of New Philadelphia, O., was a recent visitor.

M. C. Clay, of Salem, O., who has just recovered from an illness, was a visitor last week.

A visit to some of the greenhouses shows that there will be some choice stock for Easter. In the stores during the last week some excellent specimens of rhododendrons appeared and some fine flame-colored azaleas. White and colored freesias and Darwin tulips are now on sale.

Various Notes.

At Mimico, Carl Grobba has a fine lot of azaleas and will have thousands of Easter lilies. He also has rhododendrons and a new variety of dark spiræa. He is cutting white and colored freesias and Darwin tulips. Three trips are made regularly each week to Hamilton and he is also making shipments of freesias and lilies of the valley to New York. Last week he delivered a big truck load of flowers and plants to the West Floral Co., at London, Ont., a distance of 140 miles.

Recently the Toronto members of the F. T. D. were entertained at dinner by Mrs. Moore, proprietor of the firm called People's Florists, after which a plan for the organization of members outside of Toronto for the coming convention was proposed. It is hoped that the suggested plan will appeal to the members outside the city and that convention arrangements will thus be facilitated. The list of committees recently announced in The Review was for the local organization only. W. W. Gammage, of London, has been selected as chairman outside of Toronto, H. G. Dillemuth, vice-president of the F. T. D., being general chairman, to whom both city and outside committees will report. United States florists are asked to remember that Toronto expects them.

Stock is still in large supply and obtainable in quantity lots at bargain prices. At times last week the market appeared to be cleaned up better than for some weeks, due to heavy funeral work. The sales during February were discouraging to most of the florists, but March is running much better than in 1920.

Carnations are plentiful and have a wide range of price. Callas are to be seen in large numbers and are popular. Sweet peas are coming on nicely, although the weather has been soft. Freesias are about finished for this season. Home-grown violets are scarce again. Paper Whites are plentiful, as are jonquils and daffodils. Tulips are of a fair grade and some Darwins are coming in with weak stems.

All South and Southwestern Oregon points quickly reached

Roses are again scarce. Premier and Columbia head the market. There seems to be a special scarcity of long-stemmed stock and of whites in any grade. Easter lilies are coming along in good shape with most of the growers and seem to be timed about right. The price held out for is 25 cents per bloom, wholesale.

Various Notes.

Robert Newcomb, of the Burlington Willow Ware Shops, Burlington, Ia., called on the trade last week. Another trade visitor was Charles Schwake, of Charles Schwake & Co., Inc., New York.

Dr. Frederick Eiche, of the Eiche Floral Co., Lincoln, Neb., made a short stay here on his way east last week.

J. A. Lambert, of the Ove Gnatt Co., Laporte, Ind., displayed his line here March 8.

Omaha, Neb., and Council Bluffs, Ia., are to decide on the question of Sunday closing at the next meeting of the florists of the two cities. T. E. E.

SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH.

The Market.

Prices last week dropped considerably and a good demand kept stock well cleaned up at all times. Rose prices now range from $6 to $25 per hundred. Ophelia, Hoosier Beauty, Columbia and Dunlop were the best sellers at $8 to $25 per hundred, while Shawyer, Wasatch, White Killarney and White Shawyer move well at $6 to $15 per hundred.

Carnations are abundant, with a fairly good demand. Sweet peas have reached glut proportions and, although they are offered at $1 and $2 per hundred, the market cannot take care of the immense supply. Daffodils are still cleaning up well. Some fine Emperors are now in evidence.

Darwin tulips of excellent quality are scarce and all that are offered move readily at $10 per hundred. Excellent valley is being offered at $8 to $10 per hundred. Snapdragon is scarce.

Pot plant sales were excellent last week. Bulbous stock of all kinds cleaned up well. Among the offerings at present are some excellent potted roses, spiræas and lilies.

Easter Prospects.

Although some florists have been pessimistic as to what Easter would be this year, everything points to record-breaking sales. Stock will be abundant, and large orders are arriving every day. The largest pot plant establishment in the state informs the writer that orders so far are much heavier than last year and in every case customers have ordered much more stock than last year.

Lower prices will no doubt appeal to the public and, although some lines of business complain, the flower business in Utah, so far this season, has been almost as good as last year. Omitting the extra business brought by the influenza last season, sales are excellent in comparison.

Business has been about normal for the last two weeks, with the exception of some heavy funeral work. Spring flowers are at their best and are much in demand. They are mostly daffodils, tulips and freesias. Roses are good stock, the leading varieties being Premier, Columbia, Dunlop, Madame Butterfly, Ophelia, White Killarney, Sunburst and Hoosier Beauty. Carnations are plentiful. Single and double violets are coming in well. In potted plants there are daffodils, tulips, hyacinths, cinerarias, cyclamens, genistas and begonias. BOSTON, MASS.

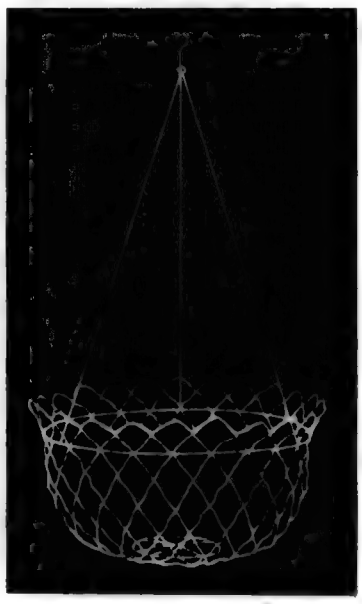
The Market.

We have had an unusually warm week, with temperatures far above the normal, resulting in increased supplies of nearly all cut flowers, but, on the whole, business has been quite encouraging and clearances have been better than could have been expected. Roses are much more abundant and there is greater difficulty in clearing them out. Prices are not greatly changed from a week ago, however. Some fancy Hadley bring $35, but only a limited number are available. Reds are bringing better prices than other colors.

Carnations are in reduced supply, large numbers being shipped to New York direct from the growers. Prices on these have improved. Quality at present is remarkably good. Heavy shipments of sweet peas continue to come in.



English primroses and polyanthus are seen. Some remarkably fine calendulas come in. Pansies are abundant and vary in price. Freesias are a slow sale at $1 to $2 per hundred and Paper White narcissi bring similar prices. Tulips are less plentiful than daffodils. Hyacinths are a slow sale. Callas are in increased supply. Some nice formosums are now offered and are far superior to the giganteums from cold storage bulbs. Yellow marguerites are more plentiful. Snapdragons are now of fine quality, but the demand for them is not of the best.

There is the usual line of miscellaneous flowers, such as wallflower and forget-me-not. Lily of the valley is hard to sell at any price. Gardenias are more plentiful, but the foliage on many blooms is too golden-hued to be pleasing. Cattleyas are also a slow sale.

Pot plants are now abundant and fine. For lilies the price asked at present is 25 cents per bud. An ample supply of these seems probable. Hydrangeas, rambler and hybrid perpetual roses, cyclamens, bulbous flowers, cinerarias and genistas form the bulk of the other flowers offered, and growers who some time ago felt they could not flower their plants on time now feel quite optimistic. Nice plants of Azalea Hinodigiri are offered at some of the stores.

Various Notes.

E. A. Newman, the well-known single violet specialist of Woburn, Mass., had the misfortune to break his right arm in two places just above the wrist while cranking his automobile standing outside the Haymarket Relief hospital last week. He was taken into the hospital for treatment. His arm is likely to bother him for many weeks.

Earl Richwagen, second son of Paul E. Richwagen, the well-known Needham florist and raiser of the popular pink antirrhinum, Virginia, was operated on for appendicitis at the Glover hospital, Needham, Mass., March 5. He is convalescing as well as can be expected.

In connection with the big spring show at Boston, April 6 to 10, when the American Rose Society will hold its annual spring show and meeting, there will be daily lectures by specialists, including J. Horace McFarland, Leonard Barron, Professor Rogers and others. Everything points to a magnificent exhibition and a record attendance for a spring show here.

Leonard Cousins, of Concord Junction, Mass., our leading shamrock specialist, is sending in a fine lot of little plants in small pots and pans to his salesman, Moses Leibman, at the Boston Flower Exchange. They are selling particularly well this season.

William H. Elliott, of Brighton, Mass., has been much in demand as a lecturer in this vicinity since his return from California. March 18 he will deliver his stereopticon lecture on "A Trip to the High Sierras" before the members of the Brightelmstone club house, Brighton.

Chester Paine is handling a splendid lot of that beautiful trumpet daffodil, King Alfred, from Paine Bros., of Randolph, Mass., who also have a splendid lot of other narcissi and tulips.

March is proving a remarkably warm month. Up to and including March 13 there was an excess in temperatures over normal of 154 degrees. March 9 gave a reading of 69 degrees, a record for that date. All snow and ice have disappeared. Snowdrops and crocus are blooming and plowing and planting of early seeds are progressing on every hand.

Welch Bros. Co. is, as usual, handling large quantities of lilies in pots direct from the growers and looks for a big Easter trade. The cut flower trade is also good. Patrick Welch is visiting the New York show this week.

Pierce Bros., of Waltham, Mass., at one time leading specialists in Easter lilies, have for several years grown nothing but roses. They have sixteen houses, each 300 feet long, planted to Columbia, Francis Scott Key, Premier, Ophelia and other popular varieties, which are giving a fine cut of long-stemmed flowers. Archie Murray, the able and popular foreman, was formerly in charge of the Waban Rose Conservatories, Natick, Mass.

A few weeks ago it looked as if most of the growers would be unable to get their Easter lilies in on time, but the season has been so warm that plants are more advanced than is usual for a late Easter. Large quantities are in bloom and are being held back in cold houses. There is less disease than usual and, while some giganteums are only six to nine inches high, the major portion are of good height. There are differences of opinion as to prices. The average seems to be 20 to 25 cents per bud and an ample supply seems probable.

Seymour Grose, buyer for Carbone's, was married a few days ago. This makes his second matrimonial venture, and his fellow workers presented him with a purse of gold.

Prof. W. J. V. Osterhout, of Harvard University, gave the last of a series of five lectures at Horticultural hall March 12, his subject being, "Plant Breeding, the Practical Application of the Laws of Heredity to the Improvement of Plants." The lecture hall was again crowded to the doors and questions at the close of the lecture occupied about two hours. A good number of florists and gardeners interested in hybridization have attended these lectures and the attendances have been record ones.

Visitors to the New York show from Boston this week include Andrew Christensen, C. B. Johnson, J. A. Nelson, H. M. Robinson, Robert Cameron, Donald McKenzie, W. R. Nicholson, F. N. Sanborn, Paul F. Burke and H. R. Comley.

Wax Bros., at Temple place, have an attractive store and it already presents an Easter-like aspect. There are always numbers of interesting flowers, particularly in annuals, to be seen here and the big bunches of pansies in separate colors are a striking feature. W. N. C.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

Sacramento, Cal.—About 200,000 gladioli are being grown by L. E. Ward this year.

Lynden, Wash.—Mrs. Anna Gaskill is starting in the florists' business with a greenhouse 12x32.

Hollywood, Cal.—A former member of the trade at Rochester, N. Y., Frank H. Walrath, recently moved here and is contemplating reëntering the florists' business.

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

The Market.

Last week was a buyers' week and plenty of stock of all kinds was on hand. Orchids and valley were, perhaps, the scarcest items. Daffodils were of varied quality. Many growers showed some excellent blooms, while others have apparently forgotten the word progress. Freesias, both colored and white, were plentiful and there was a sufficiency of nearly every kind of stock. Easter lilies are not likely to be overplentiful. Retailers generally are complaining, or at least say business is not particularly good, but they do not expect much in the latter part of Lent anyway, and this is probably no worse than an average year, although sales are less in volume than at this time last year.

Various Notes.

Despite the destruction of a large portion of his stock of freesias by fire last July, R. Fischer, of Arcadia, Cal., has a magnificent showing of his novelties in this line and the greenhouses on the occasion of a recent visit were a mass of bloom. It may be said that Mr. Fischer has done as much for the freesia industry as anyone else. The original raiser of Purity, he has now several varieties in white that are so far ahead of Purity that he has entirely discarded the latter variety. Fischerii has much larger flowers than Purity. They are absolutely pure and white and many flowers are open at one time on a stem. But even this seemingly perfect type has been improved upon by another new seedling, not yet named. While the difference in single flowers is not easily recognized by the ordinary observer, it becomes at once apparent when looking at a bed of the new variety growing alongside of any other white. It is undoubtedly the finest white freesia in existence. The Fischer colored types are no less remarkable for size of individual flowers, length of stem and number of blooms. It would be useless trying to convey an idea of the wonderful coloring. The lavender types alone would seem to be sufficient, but the selected types of bronze, yellow, pink, red and all the intermediate shades are bewildering in their variety and most charming. A rigorous roguing, or weeding out, is constantly going on. Mrs. Fischer takes a hand in this and nothing escapes her eye or is allowed to remain that is not up to her standard of perfection. It may be noted as bearing on this point that many varieties have been grown for five or six years and then if they show some fault or are beaten in the race by later seedlings, out they go. It is a wonderful collection and well worth a long journey to see. But incidentally it may be noted that the well known wholesalers, W. Armacost & Co., handle the entire cut and ship the flowers to all parts. Of course, the latest novelties are not cut for the market, as the bulbs are too precious to take any chance with, but practically all the fine types are included in the cuts that leave this place daily and they form an education in freesias.

J. T. Allen, well known in the trade here and at Santa Barbara, is now in business as the Glendale Florist, at 120 South Brand boulevard, Glendale, Cal. Mr. Allen has purchased the florists' end of the business that has been run for some years by J. Kelly, who is retaining the nursery interests.

A look through the conservatories and growing houses at Lincoln park is well repaid at any time and the display is excellent now, under the able management of J. MacGillivray. A feature of this park for many years has been hyacinths growing in hanging baskets, or orchid pans, and they are particularly fine this year. An excellent batch of cinerarias was also noted.

Gebhard Prechtl is working on a new yellow freesia, the deepest golden yellow so far seen. It has appeared among his Sunset types and is quite distinct. A feature that will recommend it is that the color does not fade out or burn, even in the hot sunshine of southern California, as so many of the colored freesias do.

Every week sees better conditions at the American Florists' Exchange; more stock, more buyers and a generally improved and businesslike aspect.

Practically the whole staff of S. Murata & Co. have been more or less sick, the only exception being Mrs. Shewbrook, who is responsible for the bookkeeping. Mrs. Shewbrook looks smiling and hearty as always. Mr. Murata has had to be away from business for several days and at a busy time.

G. Gorini, the well known grower, of Huntington Park, Cal., has taken his two brothers, Bert and Carlo, with him in his business, which is calling for more help all the time. They have ten acres of rich land and grow fine stock. Mr. Gorini's Shasta daisies are among the finest that come to this market and he is also well to the front with his delphiniums and dahlias. About 100,000 gladiolus bulbs have been planted this season and Mr. Gorini hopes to be in with a good crop for Memorial day.

E. C. Amling & Co. are well prepared for a big Easter business and say that prospects are good. Besides the regular stand-bys, they are moving a great deal of fine statice and wallflowers, while the plumosus plants grown at their nursery, at Sawtelle, Cal., are selling well.

Mrs. Mazey, of Minneapolis, Minn., was visiting at Los Angeles last week.

E. H. Volkman has his greenhouses ready at Sawtelle, Cal., and intends to begin rose planting at once.

Fine stock in all kinds is shown at Darling's Shop, notably some splendid King Alfred narcissi.

Local-grown red tulips are used with fine effect in the window display of the Alexandria Florist.

Albert Goldenson is not in the least worried about business. He says it is coming right along.

Roy F. Wilcox & Co. are still sending fine heather to the market, although perhaps not quite so well colored as earlier in the season.

SEATTLE, WASH.

The Market.

An active demand for the spring offerings, coupled with a heavy funeral call last week, served to keep stock cleaned up. Retailers agree that business has shown less of a depression than they would have been willing to predict at the beginning of this year. Growing weather has been about as good for local stock as previously reported, with the result that outdoor daffodils are now being offered freely and outdoor stock in other lines has been making satisfactory progress. The first of the potted Easter lilies have appeared and growers advise that hydrangeas will be far enough along to make deliveries by the end of this week. The local cut of roses is increasing and two stores are getting enough stock to be able to discontinue the shipment of California roses. Ward, Crusader and Butterfly are increasing in quantity, while Columbia remains the market leader.

There is a rather light cut of orchids to report, and the supply of lily of the valley is not more than enough to care for the existing demand. This has led to extensive use of white sweet peas and some nice stock is being delivered.

Various Notes.

William Holmes, of the Hollywood Gardens, notes a growing tendency on the part of buyers of large funeral pieces to leave the selection of the subject to the florist. He believes this is something the trade can well keep under control and every simple and artistic design delivered is just one more wedge in the real popularizing of real flowers.

J. P. Schmal, representing the General Bulb Co., Holland, has returned from a trip to Vancouver and Victoria, B. C. Since his return he was delayed here several days by a minor illness, but left for Portland, Ore., early last week.

The first potted Easter lilies of this season were shown last week by Rosaia Bros. This firm has some fine hydrangeas coming along. A novelty used in window display last week was a blooming Christmas cactus, its red blossoms attracting passers-by.

W. D. Desmond, of Risdon & Desmond, says that his firm expects to have as fine a stock of Easter lilies as it has ever grown. Some of the best sweet peas coming to hand now are being sent in by this firm.

N. B. Healy, of the Seattle Fern & Moss Co., reports an early inquiry for Easter lilies from the intermountain country, which would presage a shipping business ahead of anything yet reported for this section of the coast.

La Verne Jackson, of L. W. McCoy's, spent the week-end on a short vacation trip into Kitsap county.

Ben Delfonti, of the Winter Garden Flower Shop, reports that he has had good business since the opening of this shop less than a month ago.

The Woodlawn Flower Shop has been featuring fruit blossoms for general decorations, and has disposed of large quantities. Some nice local roses from the Beall Greenhouses, on Vashon island, where a feature of last week's showings.

Randall-McLoughlin, at their Greenwood store, have been featuring plants for resetting and report a brisk demand on the part of the home owners.

C. S. Sullivan, who has for some time been connected with the Woodlawn Flower Shop, is now on the staff of Rosaia Bros.

Kenney's Home of Flowers has been showing some fine Roosevelt, Jr., and Roosevelt ferns and the best of the late mums coming in from out-of-town growers. Decorations for several spring openings in the larger stores were features of last week's activities.

A new delivery truck has been secured by the Burns Floral Co., in order to care for current business properly.

Mrs. William Holmes is reported as progressing nicely at a local hospital, following an operation performed last week.

The first of this season's bicolor jonquils were shown by the Hollywood Gardens from their own greenhouses. The cut of Columbia and Butterfly roses has increased to such an extent that the shipment of California stock has been stopped.

Stuber & Richardson are showing some excellent early Easter lilies, and have probably the best stand they have produced in a number of years. H. M.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

The Market.

Daffodils abound at present, the late Emperor being exceedingly plentiful and cheap. Flowering fruit sprays are also plentiful and are being used extensively for decorative purposes. Florists are beginning to receive some Easter stock, especially roses in pots, cinerarias, hyacinths and bulbous stock. Carnations are plentiful and cheap. Roses are good and cheaper. Both roses and violets are in good shape for shipping at present, but the violets are nearing the end of the season. Spring flowers, such as marigolds, are plentiful and are in demand in the cheaper grades. There are plenty of good spring flowers, however, and the market is cleaned up regularly.

Various Notes.

The 22,000-ton steamship, Golden Gate, from Baltimore, Md., via the Panama canal, was welcomed with flowers to her home port March 7. The Pacific Mail Steamship Co. placed the decorations in the hands of the MacRorie-McLaren Co. Manager J. Capurro and his staff spent Sunday, March 6, in the hills, gathering thousands of the golden California poppy, eschscholtzia. Decorated from bow to stern, the Golden Gate steamed proudly to the harbor. When it stopped at the quarantine station aeroplanes showered the decks with poppies. All the passengers were presented with corsage bouquets or boutonnieres of poppies and violets.

usual. One day last week we had seventy-five funeral pieces."

Podesta & Baldocchi had large funeral decorations for the late Fernando Michelena, dean and president of the Arrillaga Musical College and formerly an operatic tenor of international fame.

Mrs. Copeland, of the Misses Hannon store, has been lining up Easter stock at the nurseries and is full of enthusiasm for the excellent showings made by the growers.

The C. Kooyman Co. is cutting about 10,000 King Alfred daffodils daily. These large flowers are bringing in the local market about four times the price commanded by the ordinary varieties. Mr. Kooyman has some 100,000 rubrum lilies coming in, which he expects to begin cutting about June 1.

J. A. Axell has been making the rounds of the local lily growers and, as a result of his investigations, states that, judging from the present outlook, there will not be much more than 12,000 potted lilies for the San Francisco market during the Easter season. This is because growers grew lilies in the past and were disappointed in buying their bulbs. War conditions caused the Japanese bulbs to jump from $50 to $150 per thousand. The Japanese market was made chaotic by embargoes on tonnage, which left the Nipponese bulb men with a lot of unsold stock on hand two years ago. Later, these bulb men sold only at market prices on delivery. Growers who ordered in advance found, on delivery, that they were buying at prices that spelled a loss. The result

The Market.

The second week of March continued with warm, sunshiny days, which brought an abundance of good stock and dispelled the fears of the growers, who thought that their stock would not be advanced enough for this year's early Easter. As a whole, the Easter lilies are in fine shape and will be ready, with few exceptions, for the Easter market in plenty of time. Darwin tulips have put in their appearance in most of the stores and sell readily at a fair price. Outdoor daffodils are plentiful and the stores are not able to handle all that are offered; consequently the surplus is sold on the street and in the public market, ranging in price from 15 to 25 cents per dozen. This has had a tendency to kill their sale in the retail stores. Flowering almond, prune and cherry blossoms are to be had in quantity.

Roses are more plentiful, which is a welcome change to the salespeople. Lily of the valley is still plentiful, although there is a falling off in orchids and sweet peas.

stated that everything was satisfactory, both as to the results already obtained and as to the ready response of the members in paying their quotas. Communications were read from both John Young, secretary of the S. A. F., and J. F. Ammann, secretary of the National Flower Growers' Association, commending the club on the success it has had in its advertising campaign. E. T. Mische and James Forbes were appointed a committee to ascertain to what lengths the Rose Festival Association would go to help the Florists' Club stage a real flower show indoors during the rose festival week, in June.

Hans Niklas entertained the members with a fine collection of lantern slides in natural colors. All of these slides were of flower beds in and around Portland, several beds of pansies being exceptionally fine. The meeting then adjourned and cards and light refreshments rounded out an enjoyable evening.

Various Notes.

The Swetland Flower Shop, under the management of S. A. Dunlap, opened March 5. Souvenir nosegays were given to the ladies attending and an orchestra furnished music for the large number of visitors who called at the store.

The Easter stock of the Holden Floral Co. is in fine shape, the lilies, Darwin tulips and hyacinths being in especially fine condition. H. J. H.

SPOKANE, WASH.

The Market.

The local cut of roses is still insufficient to meet the demand, but a good cut is promised for Easter. With the bright weather sweet peas are coming in fine shape and are first-class stock. Daffodils and tulips have been more or less scarce all the season, but the coast, outside-grown daffodils are starting to arrive, so the shortage will soon be relieved. All other seasonable stock has kept the market well supplied. Potted Easter lilies are to be seen in some of the stores and the growers report that most of the crops will be in time for Easter.

Various Notes.

The regular meeting of the Spokane Florists' Club was held at the Y. M. C. A. last week. The speaker of the evening was Mrs. Maude A. Lee, representing the city beautiful committee, who placed before the florists one of the programs they wish to carry out, namely, buying vases for the hospitals, as at present the vases used in the hospitals are, in most cases, not the correct sizes for the different flowers. The chairman of the club had formerly been appointed from week to week, but at this meeting H. Lozier was appointed chairman until July 1, 1921. The committees under him will consist of: Advertising, C. T. Kipp and S. Younkin; entertainment, H. Hill and William Peters; sports, H. L. Olson, W. Peters and T. Hedger; membership, E. S. Eugene, R. Nevill and Mr. Haley. It was proposed that the nurserymen be invited to join the club. After the meeting a bowling contest was held.

E. Wick, of the Spokane Florist Co., was passing the cigars recently, in honor of a happy occasion.

The Glenrose Greenhouses report shipping business to the coast heavy; in fact, they are unable to fill all orders.

E. Sinclair was cutting some fine sweet peas last week, and his roses look promising.

F. Hoyt, of Hoyt Bros. Co., spent a few days at Spokane recently. He has ranch interests at Usk, Wash., where he makes his home.

Decorations for the annual automobile show have kept a number of the retail stores busy. H. H.

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

President, H. G. Hastings, Atlanta, Ga.; secretary-treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

SPRING has come to many parts of the country, but the seed business is lagging.

LOW prices offered by canners are causing growers to cut down their acreage of tomato for 1921.

FRANK LECKENBY, vice-president of the Charles H. Lilly Co., Seattle, Wash., had the misfortune to lose his wife by death last week. Two sons and a daughter survive.

MORE extended report of the death of C. R. Kimberlin, in this week's obituary column, supplements the telegraphic information which appeared in last week's issue.

THE death of W. W. Barnard, pioneer seedsman of Chicago, occurred Thursday, March 10, at Los Angeles, Cal. Fuller report appears in the obituary column of this issue.

THE official roster of the May Seed & Nursery Co., Shenandoah, Ia., is as follows: President, E. S. Welch; vice-president, E. E. May; secretary, I. B. Rader; treasurer, R. G. Berry.

THE seed season of 1921, so far as mail orders are concerned, seems to have reached its peak earlier than in any previous year, probably because of the mild winter. Unless the season is prolonged by some factor not now in sight, no records will be broken.

SEEDSMEN who like statistics in their advertising will be interested to learn that a model farm garden, one-fifth acre in size, conducted on the horticultural grounds of the Missouri College of Agriculture, produced $132.79 at the cost of $42, including labor. A small back yard garden, one-twenty-fifth acre in size, produced $62.23 at the cost of $18.45, including labor.

SKAGIT VALLEY GROWERS.

At a meeting at Mount Vernon, Wash., of the seed growers of Skagit valley early in March, formal organization was completed, and members of the new association voted to set a price of 60 cents per pound on cabbage seed this season. However, the board of directors was given the authority to change this price in case they decided such a move to be to the best interests of the association. The officers of the Skagit Valley Seed Growers' Association are: President, J. B. Hayton; vice-president, H. L. Willis; secretary, J. M. Shields; directors, Peter Samuelson, Lou Maupin and Rasmus Kaudal. A committee composed of H. L. Willis, J. M. Shields and W. E. Jennings was named to draw up the form of contract to be used. They will present this at the next meeting. H. M.

MOTT-LY GLEANINGS.

Charles B. MacDonald, of Cadwell & Jones, Hartford, Conn., commenting upon the early appearance of creeping things incidentally mentioned the story of little Betty, who had been greatly interested in watching the man in her grandfather's orchard placing bands around the fruit trees and asked many questions. Some weeks later, when in the city with her mother, she noticed a gentleman with a mourning band around his left sleeve. "Mamma," she asked, "what's to keep them from crawling up his other arm?" The demand for seeds and the sale of insecticides is encouraging, added Mr. MacDonald.

"Excellent business," commented Manager Dewar, of R. & J. Farquhar & Co., Boston. "The opening up of many private estates for the first time since the war and increased plantings on others are shown in our sales up to date."

Manager Willard, of the Fottler, Fiske, Rawson Co., Boston, notes activity all along the line in seeds and supplies. With the chirp of chicks and the beams of Old Sol the fever of spring has taken hold of the suburbanites with full force.

The Thomas J. Grey Co., Boston, expects to work overtime if the present state of things continues. Many new customers are noted, as well as the scarcity of good gardeners. Amid so much unemployment it was expected to register many applications for positions, but 'tis the reverse. W. M.

WARRANTING GERMINATION.

Only for Normal Season.

A warranty of the germinating power of seed implies a condition that the growing season will be normal, holds the California District Court of Appeal in the case of Western Soil Bacteria Co. vs. O'Brien Bros., 194 P. R., 73.

The further interesting point is made that a trial judge may exclude a seedsman's test of seeds by placing them between moistened blotters and subjecting them to 98 degrees of heat, when such test is offered to contradict a buyer's statement that the seed failed to germinate in the ground.

The plaintiff sued to recover a balance due on the price of vetch seed and a bacterial preparation to be mixed with it. The court affirmed judgment partly in the defendant's favor on the ground that there was a breach of the plaintiff's warranty as to the germinating power of the seed.

The first point decided in the opinion on appeal was that the evidence was sufficient to support a finding that there was a warranty of germinating power, made with a view as to the soil in which the seed was to be sowed.

The plaintiff, however, contended that, even if such express warranty was given and made and even though it formed the chief inducement to the defendants for their purchase, it is not such a warranty as would be enforceable, for the reason that there are other elements which enter into the problem as to whether seed, however reinforced as to its germinating qualities, and however carefully or correctly planted, will germinate and grow to its expected maturity. These other elements, such as conditions of soil and location and also the particular climatic conditions of the season of the planting and growth of the seed, would always be beyond the control of the vender of the seed.

Failure of Warranty.

Overruling this contention, the higher court says, "The difficulty with this contention consists in the fact that, in so far as the matters of soil and location are concerned, the plaintiff knew at the time the warranty was given in just what soil and location it was to be planted. It was purchased by the defendants for planting in growth as a cover crop within their said orchard, which facts were fully known to the plaintiff at the time of the sale. With respect to the seasonal conditions, it is true that this would be beyond the control of the plaintiff, and that, if it could be shown that the seasonal conditions of the particular place where and of the time during which the seed was to be planted were abnormal and that whatever failure there was in the seed to germinate and grow was attributable to such abnormal conditions, this would be a good defense to the enforcement of such warranty. It must be conceded that there is some evidence to indicate that the season during which the seed was sown was unusual as to the time and amount of rainfall. This evidence, however, was educed from officials and employees of the plaintiff and evidently did not impress the trial court either as to its truth, or as to the sufficiency of its explanation why the seed sold by plaintiff to the defendants, and by them treated, planted and cultivated in all respects in conformity to the plaintiff's directions, neither germinated nor grew. Upon this subject the evidence is positive and direct that absolutely none of the seed so treated and sown by the defendants within their orchard either germinated or grew; and this failure of the defendants' seed to measure up to the plaintiff's express warranty the trial court finds to have been due to the breach of the warranty and not to the fact that any alleged abnormal seasonal conditions contributed to the failure of the seed to germinate and grow. We are of the opinion, therefore, that the plaintiff failed to sufficiently establish its alleged excuse for the failure of its seed to measure up to the requirements of its warranty."

Blotter Test Barred.

On the question of proof of blotter test, the District Court of Appeals added, "The plaintiff's next contention is that the trial court was in error in excluding certain testimony offered by the plaintiff with respect to certain tests made on portions of the particular vetch seed sold by it to the defendants and later returned to it. The tests to which the plaintiff's witnesses would have testified were made by taking 100 grains of the seed and, after placing them between moistened blotters, subjecting them to a temperature of 98 degrees for a specified length of time. The plaintiff offered to show that when the seed was subjected to this form of test a large proportion of its grains germinated. It will be apparent, however, that such a test as this would be one made under different conditions from those surrounding the planting and growth of the seed in an open orchard and under conditions as to soil, temperature and location entirely different from those under which the, so to speak, laboratory test proffered by the plaintiff was made. Trial courts are invested with a large discretion in the matter of the admission of evidence of this character and we are unable to say that the trial court in the instant case abused its discretion in its refusal to admit such testimony." S.

We force Lily of the Valley by the millions each year, maintaining a constant supply of Cut Valley on the Chicago Market.

You can force Valley like this for Easter

if you order pips of us now. We have a permanent representative at the source of best supply in Germany and we are the largest importer of Valley Pips in America. We import many more than we need for our own forcing, great as that number is, and we supply hundreds of florists who force Valley for their own retail trade or for some other wholesale market. We can supply YOU with the same grade of Pips we use ourselves.

FLORISTS' MONEY MAKER BRAND
$30.00 per 1000; $16.00 per 500
8.00 per 250; 4.00 per 100

Celebrated CHICAGO MARKET BRAND
$35.00 per 1000; $20.00 per 500
10.00 per 250; 5.00 per 100

We carry over 2,500,000 of the finest Valley Pips, in storage, and our facilities enable us to make shipments the same day or not later than the day following the receipt of order.

offers assortments of fruit-bearing, flowering and vegetable plants.

F. W. Kelsey Nursery Co., New York, N. Y.—An illustrated 6-page folder, containing wholesale lists of "some of the specialties in a complete assortment" of nursery stock. Tree seeds also are offered.

Quality Seed Store, Stamford, Conn.—A well printed, well edited catalogue of seeds, bulbs, roots, plants, roses, general nursery stock, tools and miscellaneous supplies; illustrated, eighty pages and colored cover.

Isaac F. Tillinghast, Santa Rosa, Cal.—"New Creations in Fruits, Vegetables, Grains and Flowers; Novelties and Specialties of Unusual Merit," an illustrated 32-page book, intended particularly to draw attention to the originations of Luther Burbank and other hybridizers.

May Seed & Nursery Co., Shenandoah, Ia.—An 8-page bulletin with reference to the "Shenandoah brand" of vegetable seeds and plants, farm seeds, nursery stock, tools and sundries. One page is occupied by a condensed list of "wholesale prices of grass and field seed sold direct to the farmer."

Memphis Plant Co., Memphis, Tenn.—"Plant Catalogue," illustrated; twenty-four pages, in pocket form. The greater part of the catalogue is devoted to vegetable plants and roots, but cannas, dahlias, gladioli, ornamental banana plants and Caladium esculentum form the subject of the last few pages.

R. G. Fraser & Son, Pasadena, Cal.—"What to Grow," an illustrated, well printed bulletin, containing a general list of the "Suntested" strain of seeds, but giving chief prominence to the Fraser novelties and specialties in zinnias, asters, petunias, etc. The front cover bears a colored picture of a new picotee zinnia.

Valker-Christensen Co., Minot, N. D.—Illustrated catalogue of seeds, farm and garden tools, insecticides and other supplies; fifty-six pages, in a colored cover of striking design. Enclosed are leaflets which contain revised prices of farm seeds and also quote prices on flowers and plants offered by Valker's Floral Co., of Minot and Devils Lake, N. D.

Job P. Wyatt & Sons Co., Raleigh, N. C.—An accurate, well arranged catalogue of seeds, bulbs, roots, tools and sundries; sixty-four pages, illustrated. The last score or so of pages are occupied by pictures and descriptions of garden and farm implements. On the cover are shown many varieties of vegetables and flowers in their natural colors.

Superior Dahlia Gardens, Los Angeles, Cal.—An attractive, well illustrated catalogue of dahlias; thirty-two large pages, clearly printed on enameled paper and bound in a durable, artistic, green-marbled cover. With the exception of two new varieties of the company's own introduction, the entire stock is arranged in one continuous alphabetical list, with the name of the type—cactus, decorative, etc.—immediately following the name of each variety.

FRAT-M'S

Frat-M's are a great help to florists who make funeral work. They are exact reproductions of the official emblems embossed in gold and the different colors as required by each Fraternal and Labor organization.

The florist is saved time and worry in the nuisance of lettering, as well as the keeping of such a stock of wire frames, and different colored flowers. Just use such flowers as you have and then attach a FRAT-M with paste to the chiffon, or by the hanger that comes for each, as a card, and that is all there is to it, excepting the comment and commendatory talk for the florist.

Just pick out a dozen of the most used from the list following, enclosing $2.00 per dozen, and if they don't make you ten times their cost, return those unused and get your money.

Square and Compass, Chapter, Commandery, 32nd Degree, Shrine, Eastern Star, Royal Neighbors, M. W. A., Maccabees, Odd Fellows, Red Men, Knights of Columbus, K. of P., Moose, Jr. O. U. A. M., B. of R. T., B. of R. Clerks, B. of L. E., Br. of Blacksmiths and Helpers, Eagles.

Just give Frat-M's a trial, you don't have to keep them. We are willing to send them to you and return the money if they don't pay you ten times their cost. Address

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

PRESIDENT LLOYD C. STARK is receiving many indications of support from members of the A. A. N. in his request that Secretary John Watson reconsider his resignation.

LINDENWOOD NURSERIES is the name given to the nursery established by the Doswell Floral Co., Fort Wayne, Ind., in connection with its new landscape gardening department.

LAST week the Peterson Nursery, Chicago, commenced its spring planting in earnest and several big orders were filled. This firm looks forward to a busier season than ever before.

SPRING orders are more exacting than fall ones. The customer may not mind waiting through the winter for his wants, but when it comes to waiting all summer for something that could not be delivered in the spring, most customers cancel the order and go elsewhere for stock.

THE Brainard Nursery & Seed Co., Thompsonville, Conn., reports a rather slow condition of trade. The annual catalogue has brought an abundance of inquiries which may result in orders later on, it being the opinion that ornamental planting will be indulged in more freely than for some seasons past, owing to the abundance of labor.

MANY nurserymen think that recent criticism of the industry as a whole is altogether uncalled-for. It certainly does not seem probable, to say the least, that a trade established country-wide should be in a state of universal moral unsoundness. If the bad and the good in the nursery business were compared with the two extremes in almost any other trade, there would probably be little difference seen one way or another.

MORE STRICT INSPECTION.

Ordered by F. H. B.

The federal horticultural board has found it necessary to cable the following instructions to foreign inspection officers: "Hereafter inspection must be made at time of packing and must certify freedom from pests and that roots are washed free from earth."

The requirement of inspection at the time of packing, according to C. L. Marlatt, chairman of the board, has been necessitated by the abundant infestation with brown-tail moth and other insect pests found notably in shipments of rose and fruit stocks from France, indicating perhaps that the inspection had been of a field nature earlier in the season and did not necessarily apply to the material at the time of packing. News statements have already been issued relative to this situation. The actual findings of brown-tail moth nests, for example, up to this time have amounted to eighty-six nests, substantially double the infestations found in the previous 8-year period under the quarantine. A radical improvement in the French inspection service and in the condition of imported stocks must be made or the department will be compelled to place an embargo on French importations.

Must Be Free of Soil.

The requirement that roots of ornamentals and other plants shall be washed free from soil has been necessitated by the various degrees of compliance by foreign exporters with this provision of the regulations. Many importations have come in with practically no effort at freeing the plants from soil. In aggravated cases the earth came in cubes as lifted with the spade. All shipments which have shown radical failure of observance of this requirement of the regulations have been and will be refused entry. To properly enforce this requirement of the regulations and to leave no chance for question, hereafter all rooted plants and plant roots other than clean bulbs will be required to be washed free from soil before shipment from the country of export and to be so certified by the foreign inspector along with the certification of freedom from insect pests and plant diseases.

Cites Japanese Example.

That such washing of plants is a perfectly possible proceeding, adds Mr. Marlatt, has been frequently demonstrated on the part of shipments notably from Japan. These shipments have included such plants as azaleas, for example, which have a dense, fibrous root system. Large shipments of such plants have been received with the roots thoroughly washed and rebound in bunches of moist sphagnum. Thus prepared, these plants have come through in perfect condition; in much better condition, in other words, than where an effort has been made to free the soil from the roots merely by shaking an then protecting them with a scanty an often indifferent packing of sphagnu or other material.

These requirements as to inspectio and certification apply to all shipmen from countries which have provide for inspection and certification in co formity with the requirements of th plant quarantine act; in other word both to general and special permit m terial. The requirement as to freein the roots of plants from soil by wash ing applies to all countries. Th authorizations which have been issue from time to time for the use of sub soil, dune sand, coral sand (Bermuda and ground peat for the packing o bulbs is not affected by this action. Such packing is, however, not author ized for plants other than bulbs.

SUPPLY AND DEMAND.

A Short Market.

We are all aware that good ornamental stock is short in our markets today. This is due to war conditions and the shortage of labor during the war period. Then, too, Quarantine 37 has proved a great loss and inconvenience to the American trade. Good stock of dwarf or low-growing evergreens is almost entirely exhausted. The same is true of hybrid rhododendrons and other evergreen shrubs, which have heretofore been imported in large quantities. True, there are many dwarf evergreens being propagated, but these are of the more common kinds which can be easily grown from seeds and cuttings and even these many items will be out of the market just when you want them. So why not get our Bulletin right now? A postal card with business address will bring it—and you must be interested in the following:

APPLES, a general list; good kinds, too.
PEARS, big quantity Bartlett. Also other varieties, 3 yrs. old, fine for retail trade.
DWARF PEARS, too, at right prices.
CHERRIES, not long on, mostly sour varieties.
PEACHES, take no back seat in growing this item. Lots of Elberta, Carman and J. H. Hale.
ORNAMENTAL TREES, Norway, Silver and Ash Leaf Maples, from 6 feet up to 15 feet high.
EVERGREENS, about cleaned out, except Arbor Vitae; a good quantity from 12 inches up to 6 feet.
BARBERRY THUNBERGII. You know we are the largest growers in the world. 2 to 3-foot, 18 to 24-inch, and 12 to 18-inch grades. Also seedlings.
CALIFORNIA PRIVET, some nurserymen say it is out of the market; come to us; can offer you 2 to 3-foot, 18 to 24-inch, and 12 to 18-inch, strong 2-year grade.
AMPELOPSIS VEITCHII, strong 2-year grade. Also Seedlings at very low prices.
FRENCH APPLE AND ROSE STOCK, quoted here at Manchester. Most of them trimmed ready to plant.
ORNAMENTAL SHRUBS, you should see our list before you buy.
ROSES, Climbing and H. P., a long list of scarce kinds.

Deciduous trees and shrubs, while temporarily scarce throughout the country, are easily produced and it is fair to assume that 10-cent shrubs will again be in evidence within a comparatively short time. They are being vigorously propagated in all sections.

The growing of roses requires more skill than that of other ornamentals. Since Quarantine 37 went into effect the rose stock of the country has been controlled largely by about a dozen or fifteen concerns. The surplus stock at present, which is by no means large, is practically all in their hands today. The Pacific coast is the principal source of supply, especially of the popular hybrid teas. Climbers are plentiful and are easily grown on own roots almost anywhere. My observation leads me to believe that the supply in 1921 and 1922 will be ample and at fair prices.

Fruit Stocks Easing.

The supply of fruit trees has been greatly curtailed on account of inability of growers to obtain suitable stocks. This, however, is being rapidly overcome. The plantings last year were large, and will be still larger this year, as millions of American-grown stocks are being offered. We can look for lower prices of fruit trees, especially apple and peach, within a year or two. Pears, plums and quinces, however, will probably be short for some time to come.

Perennials have been short, but on account of the ease with which they are propagated they should soon be plentiful, especially the more common varieties.

The demand for our products has in the last two years been more than equal to the supply. Supply and demand are, always have been and always will be, the principal factor in establishing prices. In other words, commodity prices are determined by the varying ratio between supply and demand and in turn both these elements are affected by circumstances which surround an individual commodity. True to instinct and fundamental conditions in the business world at large, prices begin to go up in proportion to the apparent shortage or demand. The nurseryman has thus been able during the last two years to fix a fair price on his product, which insured a reasonable return on his investment.

Coöperation vs. Competition.

It would be a happy day for all of us if this condition of things could be maintained. Our business, however, like all other lines, has its succeeding periods of prosperity, decline, depression and improvement, which are responsible for price changes, money rates, credit conditions and other major movements. It may be the day will come when all these conditions can be regulated. If we could instill into the minds of all nurserymen that coöperation is more to be desired than competition, in spite of the fact that "competition is the life of trade," we should all profit in greater proportion to the effort we make to succeed in this most interesting business in the world. To accomplish this, there are two things we must learn to regulate, plantings and the education of the buying public to demand our products.

This is more easily said than done. There are many elements entering into our problems of production which we have not as yet found means to control. There are also other conditions which we can improve through means of trade development.

NURSERIES IN NORTHWEST.

J. R. Gardner, of Kennewick, Wash., reports a fine demand for planting stock at the present time and most young nursery stock has carried through the winter in nice style. Apple planting is less heavy than is usual in eastern Washington, but this is counterbalanced by the greater activity in Bartlett pears. More interest than has ever been shown before in this section is seen in grapes and berries. Everbearing strawberries have produced such unusual returns to planters that there is a big demand for this variety and near Pasco and Kennewick a number of 10-acre patches are being set out. H. M.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The Market.

A general picking up of business was noticed by all of the retailers in the city last week and, in consequence, much of the surplus stock has been moved. Fortunately, funeral work has been heavy. Stock is plentiful and prices are somewhat low for the time of year. The stores are looking their best now and much stock originally planned to appear at Easter is here. This includes deutzias, rose bushes, cinerarias, bulbous stock, marguerites, a few spiræas and quantities of primroses.

GRAFTED ROSES

Five hundred thousand this year and half of them sold! The old, worn-out section won't do for the days that are to come—days when production will tell the story of profit or loss. Labor is plenty. Dig in and replant. We can still supply the best that can be produced, before-the-war quality; better shipping conditions, better deliveries than we have had in the past few years. Get good soil under and good roofs over our grafted roses and watch things grow!

Let us know the verdict!

FERNS

We wish to call particular attention to our fine stock of Ferns which we are offering at this time. We can give you extra value in all of the sizes and would recommend that orders be placed at once for whatever stock you need. These Ferns will often take the place of high-priced flowers and will give your customers good satisfaction. Just at this time we can give you exceptionally good value.

Nephrolepis Victoria (The Victory Fern). A beautiful, new, crested form of Teddy, Jr., 2¼-inch pots, $3.00 per dozen, $20.00 per 100; 3½-inch pots, 50c each; large specimens 8-inch, $3.00 each.

Nephrolepis Elegantissima Compacta. 3½-inch pots, 50c each; 6-inch, $1.00 each; large specimens, 8-inch, $2.00 to $6.00 each; 12-inch, $6.00 to $7.50 each.

Nephrolepis Muscosa. 3½-inch pots, 50c each; 5-inch, $1.00 each.

Nephrolepis Dwarf Boston. 6-inch pots, $1.00 each; 8-inch pots, $2.00 each.

Packing added extra at cost.

F. R. PIERSON, Tarrytown, N. Y.

Pussy willows are being used extensively here this season and the demand is unusually heavy. Extra fine stock reaches us. A good supply of violets is coming into the market. The demand for these was somewhat heavier last week, but the demand cannot be called good. The stock is good, but the closing of business, March 12, found them at 75 cents per hundred. Sweet peas are arriving in heavier supply, but cannot be called plentiful. There is a large quantity of short-stemmed stock. Carnations are in medium supply and the demand for them is good. Prices on these are on the incline. Calla lilies are plentiful, but a shortage on Easter lilies is noticed. Valley is plentiful, with only a medium demand. Orchids and gardenias are in good supply and move fairly well. There is a large supply of roses, including practically all the best varieties. Large quantities of pink shades are seen in each shipment. Mignonette, yellow and white daisies and a good supply of calendulas arrive daily. Snapdragon is arriving and is fine stock. Bulbous stock of all kinds is practically a glut on the market and has to be moved at a sacrifice in order to clear.

Various Notes.

Included in the list of visitors last week were Miss Mary R. Zimmer, of Dansville, N. Y.; Mrs. A. E. Dietsche, of Dansville, N. Y.; S. W. Morgan, of Le Roy, N. Y.; David Scott, of Corfu, N. Y.; Charles White, of Medina, N. Y., and William Lynch and J. Sullivan, of E. W. Edwards & Sons, Syracuse, N. Y.

Mrs. Anna E. Dietsche, sister of Miss M. R. Zimmer, of Dansville, N. Y., is opening a flower store at Geneseo, N. Y., which will be in readiness for Easter business.

The Allen Nursery Co. reports excellent business with spring orders, which at the present time are somewhat in excess of previous years.

Brooks the Florist, of Monroe avenue, is doing a satisfactory business in that section of the city.

The New York Florist, in the Reynolds Arcade, says that business is picking up considerably. The last week or two this store has moved a large quantity of cut flowers.

E. R. Fry, of West Main street, has just purchased a large quantity of Gainsboro baskets, which include practically one of each of the new Gainsboro line from the George B. Hart Basket Factory, in this city.

The monthly meeting of the Rochester Florists' Association was held at the Osborn hotel, Monday evening, March 7. The special speaker of the evening was David Scott, of Corfu, N. Y., whose topic, "The Growing of Sweet Peas," was intently listened to. Questions were asked and responded to by the speaker. He is a large grower and brought with him some well known varieties, such as Rose Queen, Venus and Christmas Pink Orchid. Hugo Teute exhibited a fine vase of Laddie.

Salmon, Cemetery Florist, reports an excellent business. The winter has been exceptionally open; more visits to the cemetery have been made and, in consequence, far more cut flowers have been used. H. J. H.

ATTENTION, FERN BUYERS

At this time you are no doubt considering buying or placing your orders for Ferns. We desire to call your attention to the fact that we specialize in ferns, and are prepared to supply you with as fine stock as can be grown. Why not prove to your own satisfaction what the quality of ferns bought from us will give? While the production capacity of our plant has been trebled during the past year, and we are in a position to take care of a large volume of business, yet we would advise the large buyers to protect themselves by placing orders early.

SAN FRANCISCO NOTES.

can be seen in the predicted shortage of potted lilies this year. Lily growers, henceforth, will want to know the market price before they order bulbs.

Domoto Bros. have some fine potted camellias, both white and red, coming from their nurseries every day, as well as large quantities of rubrum lilies, which they are now cutting. Both their violets and roses are in excellent shipping shape.

The Growers' Cut Flower .Co. is having alterations made at its city headquarters, 55 Saint Ann street, in order to be ready for the opening of the spring season.

Enomoto & Co. expect to have plenty of roses and cut lilies for the Easter trade. Tulips are coming in well from their nurseries and their violets are in good shipping shape, at least for the present.

The United Flower & Supply Co. has cut tulips coming in abundantly. Apparently there will be enough cut lilies to meet all the requirements of the Easter trade. March 8 and 9, sample shipments of lilies were sent east.

Joseph's has some ornamental fruit on display which has caused numerous discussions as to whether it is real or artificial. It is the latter, and is intended to be used with flowers for decorative purposes. The advent of the Golden Gate from eastern points and the departure of the steamship Hawkeye, on her maiden trip to Honolulu, have kept Joseph's busy.

Edward Goeppner is making a specialty of table decorations for Podesta & Baldocchi. Floral hats and other novelties of his designing are causing repeat orders.

2-inch .....$2.75 per 100; 3-inch, $3.75 per 100

AGERATUM, Fraserii

We feel confident in offering Ageratum "Fraserii" to our customers that we are offering what will be one of the most valuable acquisitions to the bedding plant line in recent years, that is a blue, a decided blue, that would be continually in bloom. In our trial grounds last summer "Fraserii" attracted more attention than any other bedding plant. It only grew about eight to ten inches high and was covered the entire season with what can easily be classed as immense trusses of flowers, as many of them were over 2½ inches across, while the individual flower would be ⅞ of an inch in diameter. The plant spread about 12 to 15 inches across. It can easily be used with Alternantheras as a border plant.

Being an early bloomer and dwarf, compact grower, it makes an excellent pot plant. 2-inch, $1.00 per doz.; $ 6.00 per 100. 3-inch, 1.50 per doz.; 10.00 per 100.

GET IN THE GAME

We are gradually catching up with our orders for Edna and Harvester. Have you received yours?

EDNA will undoubtedly make a splendid commercial red. It has all the present-day requirements of a scarlet for both large and small grower. We have shipped it to Washington, New York, St. Paul and many nearer points and it has proven itself an ideal shipper. You will make no mistake in planting it.

HARVESTER is one of those bread and butter sorts that go to work immediately after being benched and keep right at it clear through the season. You will like its pure whiteness and general all-around goodness.

CARNATIONS ROOTED CUTTINGS

HAPPY DAY

Our New Scarlet Carnation for Season 1920-1921

There are Reasons for All Growers Wanting this All-Purpose Scarlet Carnation.

1—Because it has the most brilliant color of all Scarlet Carnations. Color never fades under any conditions. A true Christmas color.
2—Size, full three to three and one-half inches.
3—Early and extremely free-flowering. Comes into crop with any of the earlier varieties.
4—Perfect calyx—no splits at any time.
5—Perfectly straight, stiff stems.
6—Growth is all that is desired in a commercial carnation.
7—An easy propagator. Makes strong plants that transplant without any severe check.

Price, $15.00 per 100; $120.00 per 1000. Delivery early in March.

Shellgrain & Ritter had many orders for floral offerings to honor movie stars, who held their annual ball at the Exposition auditorium, March 5. Local movie fans told of their admiration for their favorites in flowers and the result was a rush of business for a number of florists.

F. C. Jaeger & Son have been finding business so good on Saturday that every week they are practically sold out before closing time. They consider this an excellent argument for Sunday closing.

Fred Bertrand is having his Palace hotel flower store altered to resemble a conservatory. Mr. Bertrand had the table decorations for the dinner and dance in the palm court of the hotel, tendered by local society people to their favorites in the movie world. This affair was on the day preceding the big movie ball. M. M.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

The Market.

Stock was abundant for inauguration week here, but the supply was well taken up. American Beauties brought as high as $18 a dozen and long-stemmed roses as much as 50 cents. Tausendschoen rose bushes, lilacs and hydrangeas made their appearance. There are some fine Easter lilies and ferns for the Easter trade.

Various Notes.

Inauguration week was certainly a full one for local florists. Orders for hundreds of baskets poured in from all parts of the country and many small receptions kept the various staffs on the job. Gude Bros. Co. furnished about eighty baskets and also supplied the garlands of laurel and the flowers that decorated the stand from which President Harding delivered his address.

From all indications the incoming administration will entertain considerably. During the week E. B. MacLean gave a dinner at which covers were laid for 200. J. H. Small supplied the decorations for this event.

Local members of the trade were grieved to hear of the death of Mrs. Richard Vincent, Jr., of White Marsh, Md. William F. Gude, Mr. Bauer and J. Harper Hetherington attended the funeral. G. A. E.

Greenhouse Heating

Subscribers are invited to write the editor of this department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. When information is desired regarding the capacity of boilers, or the amount of radiation required for a greenhouse, the needed temperatures should be stated in the inquiry, as well as the amount of glass in the side walls, and the dimensions and general arrangement of the greenhouses. It is often helpful, also, to have a sketch showing the location of the houses.

COAL MARKET AT SLOWEST.

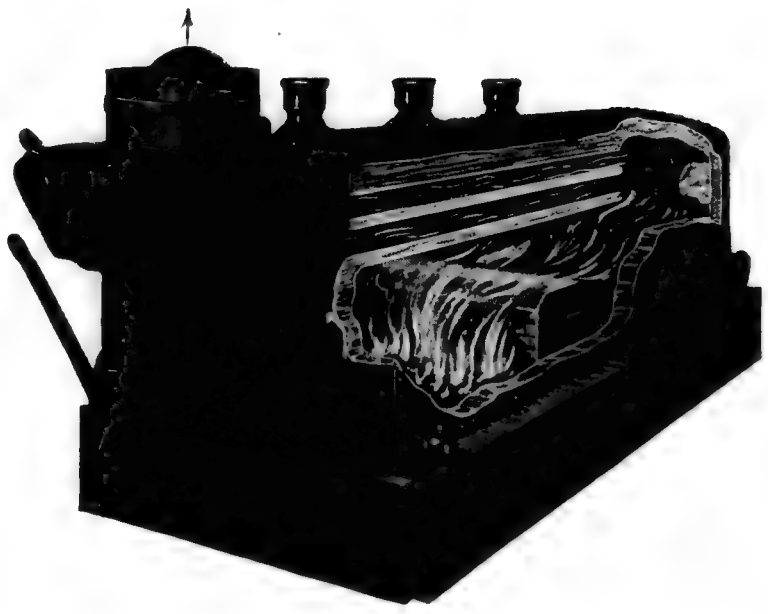
So little is stirring in industry that the railroads and the shippers of coal have less to do than at any time in the last six or seven years. Coal companies are figuratively tightening up their belts and sitting tight. The spot market is quotable more because of prices offered by shippers than by business closed. There seems to be a general feeling—possibly founded on hope—that the buyer is going to stay out of the market until the last minute and that when he does start to buy the rush will produce another sharp upward swing in prices and that next fall will witness a repetition of serious car shortage, according to Coal Age.

Opinion is not divided on the question of whether a strong demand next fall will produce a car shortage, but there is no unanimity in the views of different authorities as to whether the demand will materialize. It is being pointed out that the railroads, like the mines, are curtailing operations and releasing personnel and that if orders for coal and for coal cars are suddenly revived without warning, difficulty will at first be experienced in meeting the demand.

The production of bituminous coal, which for several weeks has been at a rate in excess of 7,000,000 tons, is considered to have reached bottom for the present, but lower figures are anticipated in April, when many of the contracts on which coal is now being shipped will have expired. To a limited extent some of the larger shippers have been able to renew these contracts, but they report that consignees for the most part hold out no assurance of taking more than the barest minimum quantity for the next few months.

INSTALLING NEW BOILER.

My greenhouse is 40x80 feet. The side walls are eight feet high, four feet being of glass. It is twenty feet to the ridge. The house is heated with hot water. There are two 3-inch flow pipes and thirty 1½-inch returns. The heat does not seem to work right, so I should like to put in a new boiler. I desire a temperature of from 55 to 60 degrees in weather 20 degrees below zero. I should also like your advice as to the piping of a small house, 22x35 feet, with 6-foot side walls, which is to be used for ferns and palms. How should I figure the radiation and how many 1½-inch returns to a 3-inch flow?



C. L. S.—Wis.

For ordinary winter temperatures the radiation stated is not far from correct, but for 20 degrees below zero we should increase it fifteen per cent.

However, we cannot ascribe the un-

The immense amount of direct self-cleaning heating surface and the thin vertical waterways cause this type of boiler construction to heat water quicker than any other form of boiler.

Hundreds of Florists' Review readers are using the Kroeschell Boiler and mighty is their praise. The year of 1920 has brought us an enormous number of new customers who have seen our boiler in operation at other places. We attribute the large sales of this season to the good work the Kroeschell Boiler is doing everywhere. Help Save the "White Coal of Industry"

The boiling hot water resulting from condensation in your steam lines is worth money. You have paid for it in terms of coal. It contains valuable heat units. It is the "White Coal of Industry"—it should not be wasted.

And it need not be wasted. The Morehead Back-to-Boiler System will save it for you by returning it to the boiler at temperatures as high as 400 degrees Fahrenheit. It reduces coal consumption an average of 20%. At the same time your steam will be "drier" and more efficient; your production speeded up and profits increased.

Write today for facts and figures on what the Morehead System will do in your plant.

satisfactory results reported entirely to a deficiency in the amount of radiation, but rather to the attempt to supply thirty 1½-inch return pipes with two 3-inch flows. It is not claimed that the actual radiation is too great, but the water in the returns will only have to circulate one-fourth as fast as in the flows. The result will be that, while a fairly good circulation may be secured in some of the returns, generally the higher ones, or those that run more direct, there may be little or no circulation in some of the others. This is particularly likely to occur when some or all of the returns are below the top of the boiler, as appears to be the case in this instance.

We are not informed regarding the location of the pipes, but infer that the flows are overhead and that a majority of the returns are on the side walls. Using the present piping, we should suggest that one 3-inch flow pipe be placed upon the side wall plates and that each of these supply a coil of eight 1½-inch pipes on the side walls. We would also run three 2½-inch flow pipes, placing one under the ridge and the others about halfway between the ridge and the plates, and, with each of these, supply five 1½-inch returns. If the house has solid beds throughout, we should arrange these coils either in the walks or on purlin posts. To favor the circulation, run the flow pipes at a slight downward slope, and, if possible, carry the returns higher than the top of the boiler.

Our choice of piping for such a house would be five 2½-inch flow pipes and twenty-five 2-inch returns.

If the 22x35-foot house has three feet of glass in each of the walls, we should use five 2½-inch flows and either fifteen 1½-inch or twelve 2-inch returns, or three flows and fifteen 2-inch returns.

In figuring the amount of radiation for a greenhouse, one should not only know the amount of exposed glass, but the minimum temperatures, both inside and outside. Allowance should also be made for the character of the construction of the house and the exposure to the prevailing cold winds. Where the mercury does not drop more than 10 degrees below zero, it is customary to use one square foot of hot water radiation to three of glass for 60 degrees, and to four square feet of glass if a temperature of about 50 degrees will suffice. For 20 degrees below zero, add twelve to fifteen per cent to the above radiation.

It is important that the number and size of the flow and return pipes be carefully adjusted to the various conditions. Thus, we should limit 1½-inch flow pipes to supplying 100 square feet of radiation; 2-inch flows to 200 square feet; 2½-inch to 400; 3-inch to 700 and 4-inch flow pipes to 1,400 square feet of radiation, including the radiation furnished by the mains themselves. This would be modified when the coils are quite short, as we do not advise having the sum of the cross-section areas of the pipes in the coils more than four times as great as the area of the flow pipe and, when small pipes are used for the coils, as in your case, this radiation should be cut down from one-third to one-half. Furthermore, we should limit the use of 1½-inch flows to houses fifty feet in length, 2-inch flows to 100 feet and 2½-inch flows to 200 feet. In selecting the size of returns for houses of different lengths, we should not use 1¼-inch returns in coils more than fifty feet long; rather, we should limit 1½-inch returns to a length of seventy-five feet and 2-inch returns to a length of 200 feet. However, except under special conditions, we favor using 2-inch flows and 2-inch returns in houses under fifty feet and 2½-inch flows and 2-inch returns in houses between fifty and 200 feet in length.

The number and size of pipes used would be varied by the height of the returns above the top of the boiler, and both might be slightly reduced if the system is placed under pressure.

SCRANTON FLORISTS ELECT.

At the regular meeting of the Scranton Florists' Club, at the Hotel Holland, Scranton, Pa., March 7, the following officers were elected for the year 1921: President, E. L. Keuling; vice-president, Anton Schultheis; secretary, Francis J. Moran, and treasurer, Miss Gertrude Schultheis. The trustees are Miss A. S. Besancon, Mrs. J. A. Wade, Mrs. William McDonald and Jacob Webster. Coöperative advertising was discussed, with a view to Easter publicity. Plans for a flower show to be held at Scranton were also proposed.

TRI-CITY FLORISTS MEET.

The Tri-City Florists' Club's members and their families were most pleasantly entertained at the Davenport Outing Club Thursday evening, March 10, by Victor De Lascaille, of Davenport, Ia., an ardent and enthusiastic member.

The early part of the evening featured a business meeting, at which time the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, C. Sorensen, Moline, Ill.; vice-presidents, R. DeRycke, Moline; John Tearney, Davenport, Ia., and M. E. Terry, Rock Island, Ill.; treasurer, William Knees, Sr., Moline; recording secretary, William Knees, Jr., Moline; financial secretary, L. Stapp, Rock Island; trustees, William Goos, Bettendorf, Ia.; Miss M. Tearney, Davenport, and S. A. Fidycke, Davenport.

The elaborate dinner was enhanced by artistic table decorations. Flowers in great profusion were everywhere in evidence. Especially unique were dainty corsage favors for the ladies. Hand-painted place cards helped in seating the guests at the numerous tables, illuminated with candles. Nor were the little tots slighted. All the cunning little creatures they associate with Easter were awaiting them.

Henceforth, informal sociability reigned throughout. The younger set were unable to resist the strains of enticing music coming from the spacious ballrooms. Some folks bowled and some chatted. An impromptu program of music and solo dancing followed. William Knees, Jr., Sec'y.

NEWARK, N. J.

The Market.

Prices of flowers are coming down and no one is more pleased than the retailers Many of them have confessed during the last year or two that they were ashamed to charge the prices they have had to, at the high prevailing wholesale figures. It is a fact that trade was driven away by high prices. Many persons who formerly made frequent purchases of flowers at $1 or $1.50 stopped buying entirely. Eventually, if lower prices continue, such small customers will come back, but it will take many months to get back to the former volume of business in this respect. Prices will jump again at Easter, but are not likely to go as high as they did last year.

Various Notes.

Charles Luthy, 363 Springfield avenue, reports much funeral work for the last few weeks, making aggregate returns quite satisfactory, considering the unsettled conditions.

Connelly & Plunkett, 149 Bloomfield avenue, report the volume of business done so far this year exceeds the amount done during the corresponding months of last year. The outlook for Easter is excellent. R. B. M.

BRAMPTON, ONT.

Everything points to an Easter that should delight the florists. There are plenty of fine lilies that will come in almost on the minute and roses are well timed likewise. Carnations will be more plentiful than last year and there are plenty of sweet peas and other stock to take the place of bulbous flowers, which carry so little profit. Violets may last out with cooler weather, but if spring continues in its present mood, the chances are against both quality and quantity in this article.

Business has been brisk with some and slack with others during the month of February, but W. G. Peacock, who has just returned from a trip to Montreal, found that there was plenty of funeral work going on in that city, owing to the influenza.

The mild weather has been responsible for a great saving in packing and delivery expenses this season, and a drop of 5 cents per pound in wrapping paper this week will be welcomed by all in the trade.

E. Dale is in the hospital, slowly recovering from an operation.

Mr. Brown, of the Dominion Floral Co., Montreal; W. Ramsay, of Edmonton; A. M. Henshaw, of New York, and S. T. Chase, of Wolfville, N. S., were visitors last week. W. G. P.

The Market.

Warm, bright weather has brought on heavy crops of everything in cut stock in the last ten days, which, arriving just between two holidays, leaves the market in a more or less demoralized condition, perhaps the worst in some time. Large quantities of bulbous stock have been moved, however. The outlook for Easter is splendid. Most growers of cut stock promise good crops. Easter lilies were never better. Bulbous stock, such as baby ramblers, ferns, etc., form the larger part of potted plants to be offered.

Various Notes.

The funeral of Fred Hall, March 10, prominent florist of this city, was largely attended by the trade. Death was due to a lingering illness, his health being poor for the last two years. Mr. Hall had been engaged in business here for the last thirty years, the present range growing from a small place on Montview boulevard.

Many florists of this city heartily enjoyed the hospitality of those at Colorado Springs Saturday, March 5. The feature of the evening was a bowling match in which the Colorado Springs' teams won two out of three games. A return match will be played on the Denver alleys, Saturday, April 2.

The Rockmont for Flowers will be the trade name of a new and most distinctive flower shop, which will open March 21, at 821 Seventeenth street. This location is in the heart of the banking and hotel district. The name Rockmont was taken from the Rocky mountains. The firm is incorporated, with a capital of $50,000. The proprietors are Carl L. Gross and Herbert A. Clausen, who are both well known to the trade here. Mr. Clausen recently sold his interest in the America Flower Shop. Mr. Gross for years represented several eastern supply houses in the match in which the Colorado Springs middle west and southern states and in recent years was connected with the Alpha Floral Co., of this city.

Packed for Retail Trade

In addition to the general line of fertilizers, we are offering to the florist pulverized sheep manure in paper-lined bags and leak-proof packages for the retail trade. The 5 and 10-pound packages have a blank space so that the dealer may stamp his own brand or firm name on the package. This should serve as an inducement to the purchaser, as this gives him a standard package ready for distribution.

The Market.

Stock of all kinds continued plentiful last week and there was practically no change in the condition of the market. The florists were kept busy with funeral work and several tried out the special day sales. They have worked successfully in most instances.

Various Notes.

The Flick Floral Co. furnished the decorations for an elaborate home wedding last week. Business is good with this firm and it has added a new delivery car to its equipment.

A novel floral piece was put out last week by the Lanternier Florists. It was ordered by the Pennsylvania R. R. Co. for the funeral of their wire chief, Harry Cowden. The piece consisted of two telegraph poles made of an assortment of flowers, one placed at the head of the casket and one at the foot, and stretched from pole to pole over the casket were telegraph wires made of chenille. One of the wires was broken and lay on the casket.

Miss Heine, secretary for the New Haven Floral Co., has returned to her duties after an absence of several weeks on account of sickness in the family.

A campaign is now being carried on energetically for the saving of Fort Wayne's shade trees, of which the city has always been proud. Adolph Jaeniche, superintendent of parks, is at the head of the movement.

E. G. Hill, of Richmond, Ind., was a visitor last week. Among other trade visitors were Mr. Peterson, of G. Van Bochove & Bro., Kalamazoo, Mich.; E. Petitt, of the Sefton Mfg. Co., Chicago; D. D. Johnson, of Chicago, and O. F. Rabbe, of the L. S. Shaw Co., Toledo, O.

How to Maintain Beautiful Lawns at Minimum Expense

Actual use by thousands of Ideal Power Lawn Mower owners has shown conclusively that this combination power mower and power roller keeps beautiful lawns in better condition than was ever possible with hand mowers or horse-drawn mowers.

Not only does the Ideal permit better care, but also effects a genuine economy in up-keep. For one man with an Ideal Power Mower can cut from four to five acres of grass per day with little effort and at small cost. Then the fact that the Ideal is also a power roller practically doubles its usefulness.

It provides exactly what is needed for the earlier spring rolling, and keeps the sod in excellent condition the season through.

Ideal Power Mowers are used in caring for the grass on industrial grounds, private estates, public parks, cemeteries, golf courses, college grounds, school grounds, polo grounds, etc. Here are just a few names from the thousands of Ideal users: Oak Hill Country Club, Rochester, N. Y.; Withunet Golf Club, Kennebunk, Me.; Marion Golf Club, Marion, Mass.; Allegheny Country Club, Pittsburgh, Pa.; Belvedere Golf & Country Club, Belvedere, California.

With riding trailer the Ideal makes one of the most practical and economical riding mowers possible to procure. Extra cost of trailer is very moderate.

Special putting green cutting unit can be provided for work on golf courses.

Any of our dealers will gladly demonstrate the Ideal for you. Special illustrated catalog upon request.

How a Well-known Authority Cuts Cost of Cultivating

SOLVES LABOR PROBLEM

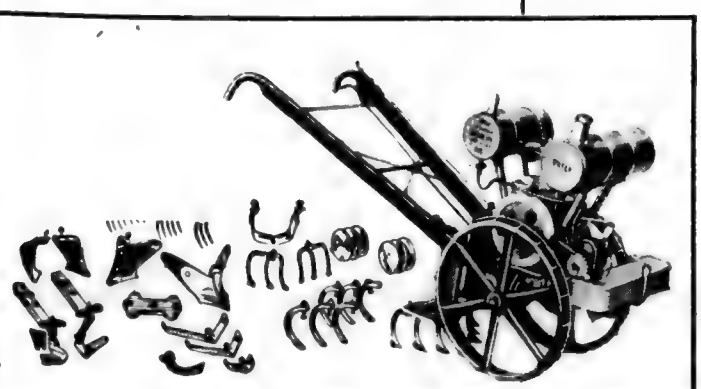
By A. F. J. Baur, Secretary of The American Carnation Society

From "The Florists' Review," Feb. 10, 1921

"Seeing a discussion in the columns of The Review regarding the merits of motor-driven cultivators, I feel impelled to add a word regarding our experience along that line. It is a most important matter to the trade and will be more so as time goes on.

"About a year ago we purchased a Merry Garden Cultivator. We judged that this implement was just about what we wanted here for cultivating young carnation plants in the field, and for any other cultivating of a similar nature.

"Up to last spring we had been using Planet Junior man-power cultivators. We were obliged to put four men in the field after every rain in order to secure the full benefits from the rain. During the past summer, with a slightly enlarged planting, we found it possible to do all our cultivation with this one Merry Garden Auto-Cultivator. It did the work in the same time as the four man-cultivators and did better work. We would not think of parting with this implement.



"We break our field in the late fall and work it down with the disk in the spring, using the team for both operations. After that, we need only the light cultivator and the Merry Garden is just the ticket for that."

A. F. J. BAUR,
Secretary, The American Carnation Society

Many Write Like This:

"The Merry Garden Auto-Cultivator easily pays for itself in labor saved every 30 days. On our place, one man cultivated, in 3 hours, a patch usually requiring two men, with hand cultivators, a day and a half. Besides, the job was done twice as deep."

BURKHARDT FLORAL CO.
10906 Avon Avenue Cleveland, Ohio

Do your cultivating in season—when it should be done. With a Merry Garden, you can cultivate a given area in just one-fourth the usual time—you can do it oftener, and better.
This wonder implement has changed cultivating, from back-breaking drudgery, to a chore of ease, pleasure and profit. The is easy to guide, back or turn. Straddles narrow rows—works between wider ones. Not only cultivates, but disks, harrows, weeds and operates a 30-inch lawn mower. Equipped with pulley and stand, it furnishes power for belt work.

Merry Garden Auto-Cultivator

The new model makes it possible for any floral grower to dispense with 3 or 4 hired hands.

TOTTY'S 'MUMS.

A familiar slogan for nearly twenty years. The stock we offer you today is absolutely free from the dreaded midge, having been propagated entirely from plants that have been grown outdoors all summer, lifted in the fall and housed solely for propagating purposes. It costs more to raise stock this way, but the results obtained more than justify the cost. The following varieties we can offer for immediate delivery in 2½-in. pots; planted out in a bench now and stopped, they will give you quantities of fine, clean cuttings during the next four months.
Remember we guarantee this stock is ABSOLUTELY CLEAN!

PELARGONIUM EASTER GREETING.

It is with no little pride that we make our appearance again in this column with 25 brother florists. It was March 6th, 1914, that we shipped the first of over 300,000 Easter Greeting and its sports. Lest you forget, we will remind you that we were the first to offer this sterling novelty in The Review. Then we were alone; now we have lots of company. Then we risked our reputation on this plant, and now, after 7 years, you say whether we made our statements too strong, or whether our reputation has suffered.

For three years we grew it in large numbers, then we slackened, thinking, naturally, that the demand would be supplied by the 25 others then offering it. We have been growing it largely since, but you must know that a great deal of trade would come to us automatically, as the introducers, and the high quality of stock sent out and our perfect system of packing.

It is very gratifying to us to note that the present prices of other dealers are higher than our introductory prices of a strictly new acquisition. This is very unusual.

We have now in preparation a fine lot of 4-in. especially for Mothers' day. These should be shipped to you about April 20th. How many of these do you want at 20 cents? We have a fine lot of 3-in. for you to shift for Mothers' day. These should be in your houses as soon as possible. How many do you want at 11 cents? Also a fine lot of 2¼-in. These should be fine for Memorial day if shifted soon; these go at 8 cents. How many for you?

Our reputation is back of this stock. The packing will be perfect, and no extra charge. What more do you want?
S. C. TEMPLIN & SON, GARRETTSVILLE, O.

PETUNIAS

PETUNIAS.

Diener's Ruffled Monsters, single. The largest and most beautiful ruffled variety of Petunias in existence. Ruffled Monster seed in separate colors, pink, red, variegated, white, red with black center, pale lilac, and all colors, mixed.

The following somewhat smaller than the Ruffled Monsters: Pearl of Kentfield, flesh pink frilled, dwarf, purple or blue and white frilled.
Price per packet, 50c.

Catalogue will be sent free on request. Write for it today.

Mr. W. L. Ferguson, Smiths Falls, Ontario, under date of Dec. 2, 1919, writes us the following in regard to our petunias:

"Last year I purchased Petunia seed from you. I think every seed germinated and the blooms were the finest ever seen in this part of Canada. Only about 8 per cent of the plants could be classed as common. I want more of the same quality each year."

Mr. Rudolf Nagel, Lancaster, Pa., under date of Dec. 14, 1919, writes us:

"I had last year just a few of your petunias, but I am sure I could have sold thousands of them. They surely came up to your claim and way ahead of my expectation."

THE DIENER TOMATO.

Increase your tomato yield 100 per cent b raising the new DIENER TOMATO. 30 to 4 tons of ripe fruit to the acre.
This tomato was raised last year all over th United States and Canada with the greatest sa faction.
As smooth as an apple and of a magnificen dark red color. Single tomatoes weigh up to lbs. each. The flesh is more solid than that o any other tomato. The fruit contains little see and is solidly filled out. This tomato is fre of the acid taste, and for dehydrating, eatsu and canning it is the best tomato in existenc today.
The DIENER TOMATO is blight-resisting a well as drought-resisting. It will not crack fro the rain and will not rot while lying on th ground in wet weather. This tomato will grow in almost any kind of soil and it commences t ripen the first part of August.
It is the greatest novelty in the tomato line and it will soon crowd out the present varieties from the market by its far superior qualities
Price of the DIENER TOMATO SEED. Sam ple package, 25c; one-quarter of an acre pack age, 50c; one acre package, $1.50.

DAHLIA SEED.

This seed is raised from the most up-to-date Dahlias in existence. No place in the world have Dahlias been brought up to such perfection as they have been around San Francisco. This mixture contains all colors and types of Peony, Cactus and Decorative varieties. The seed we sent out in previous years was highly praised by all who raised Dahlias from it, but this seed is far superior to what we have sent out in previous years. The seedlings will commence to flower two months after sowing and almost a month earlier than plants raised from bulbs.

Price 50c per package.

RICHARD DIENER,
Kentfield, Marin County, Cal

MOTT-LY MUSINGS

"Doubtless getting our share," said Alex Dallas, of A. Dallas & Son, Waterbury, Conn., and "undoubtedly feeling to some extent the effect of the general depression in manufacturing towns such as ours, but we are plugging away, hoping for a good Easter, for which we are well prepared."

• • • •

Ryan & Powers, Waterbury, Conn., are not complaining, according to George Ryan, who incidentally mentioned the successful formation and progress of the Connecticut State Florists' Association, of which he is chairman. It numbers twenty-five active members.

• • • •

At the usual meeting of the Hartford Florists' Club, March 9, considerable progress was made, although the greatest work is looked for after Easter. N. C. Osborn, of Coombs' Flower Shop, Hartford, is treasurer and humorously asserted his ability to secure satisfactory bondsmen as soon as it may become necessary.

• • • •

Notwithstanding the heavy draft upon the stock of A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn., for the international flower show, at New York this week, there is a splendid line of Easter stock in both plants and cut flowers.

• • • •

The Geduldig Greenhouses, Norwich, Conn., are producing some of the finest single violets and pansies seen in this locality. Funeral work is good. Proprietor Otto Ernst is suffering from a chill caught in a peace drive, but Mrs. Ernst and daughter are equal to the occasion.

• • • •

The Whiting Greenhouses, West Hartford, Conn., are enjoying a good run of retail business, with pot plants equaling cut flowers, auguring well for Easter, which Proprietor T. Peterson is anticipating with a fine lot of giganteum lilies and potted roses.

• • • •

Blatchley's Flower Shop, Meriden, Conn., is receiving sweet peas from W. W. Thompson, of West Hartford, Conn., that, for length of stem, size of standard and for color are unsurpassed.

• • • •

William Rowden has withdrawn from the firm of Rouden & Mitchell, Wallingford, Conn. George Mitchell will continue the business under the old name.

• • • •

W. A. Dawson, Willimantic, Conn., expresses what appears to be the accepted opinion, that prices on bedding plants, geraniums especially, will be lower than last year, influenced, of course, by local conditions, which usually govern in any case, as has been proved where a standard form of price has been set.

• • • •

Joseph J. Sokol, New Haven, Conn., is one of the few who have built up a good connection at the greenhouses by publicity, surrounded by real estate that is the result of careful investment of the profits from the business.

• • • •

"Old Sol will be welcome," commented Fred Goldring, of Slingerlands, N. Y., "for our Easter stock is all sold, subject to being in bloom on time. Lilies and hydrangeas are giving us some anxiety."

• • • •

The Randall Flower Shop, Worcester, Mass., radiant with Dutch bulbous stock in every conceivable form, is calling attention to special Lenten prices and getting flower lovers in line for Easter.

• • • •

Frank Edgar, Waverley, Mass., who by virtue of his office keeps in close touch with the affairs of the flower market, describes the situation as being extremely complex, with many suggestions offering as avenues leading out of the difficulties. "Imagine," observed Mr. Edgar, "you are standing upon the suspension bridge, watching the mighty Niagara tumbling down and through the rapids into the whirlpool beyond, ultimately passing into a smooth current of clear, bright water. We hope ultimately to reach that end, and the sooner the better." Easter stock is fully up to the usual high standard here and the first bright day happening at this time had its usual sympathetic effect.

• • • •

L. W. Acheson, Pittsfield, Mass., admits the season has surpassed his most sanguine expectations. The last two months exceeded any previous record, and so a good Easter, he feels, may reasonably be anticipated.

• • • •

The Viale Floral Co., Pittsfield, Mass., has the newest range of glass in this region and has built up a good connection. Prospects, both in stock and orders for Easter, are bright.

• • • •

L. D. Robinson, Springfield, Mass., has some unusually fine Dutch bulbous stock, which will find a ready sale at popular prices at Easter. St. Valentine's day was a record-breaker at this store, prices being in keeping with the times.

• • • •

Higgins the Florist, Ostermann & Steele and Meacham & Hassell, Springfield, Mass., all look for a big Easter business and are filling up their several stores with choice stock, much of it from A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn.

• • • •

W. W. Hannell & Son, Watervliet, N. Y., have much of their Easter stock spoken for. Ramblers and French hydrangeas head the list.

• • • •

"The buds are there, but will they open on time?" queried Francis I. Drake, of F. I. Drake & Co., Pittsfield, Mass. "This dull weather keeps us guessing." A fine crop of Matchless and Laddie is in sight. Laddie is a high liver and pays for good feeding. Max Engleman, in charge of the store, reports good business; never better, in fact.

• • • •

The Volz Floral Co., New Britain, Conn., speaks encouragingly of the outlook, with an abundance of stock at popular prices to meet the changed conditions. It is noted that bulbous stock hangs fire, owing, doubtless, to the prevailing mild weather.

• • • •

The Jewett City Greenhouses, Jewett City, Conn., specialize in Carnations Enchantress Supreme, White Enchantress, Benora and Laddie. Proprietor William Young mentioned his inability to secure 500 2-inch pot plants of Laddie, evidence of its popularity and the scarcity of this stock.

• • • •

Smith T. Bradley, Fair Haven, Conn., was caught on the fly, as it were, being in a hurry to test the new Ford tractor purchased for use on the 60-acre farm nearby, where small fruits, gladioli, dahlias and the like flourish.

• • • •

The Folwell Greenhouses, Pittsfield, Mass., are reveling in prosperity, according to Proprietor H. Stentiford, who expressed himself rather strongly regarding the party who accepted an order, with accompanying cash, last October for geraniums and now, after several proddings, returns the cash with the succint comment, "Unable to supply." Incidentally, it was mentioned that the order was not made up from an advertisement in The Review.

"Do the bees cause carnations to split the calyx?" queried William J. Schlatter, of William Schlatter & Son, Springfield, Mass. "My reason for asking is that we always supposed the continued dull weather was responsible, yet here is the opinion of a prominent grower in the middle west giving this as the reason for requesting a rush shipment of staples. Sales of staples totaled more than 1,000,000 last month, with orders from everywhere and new customers swelling the list. We give The Review the credit."

"Saw the handwriting on the wall some time ago," observed Mark Aitken, Springfield, Mass., "and fell for it, realizing that as a combined grower and retailer one had the opportunity. The result is seen in our patrons showing practical appreciation by purchasing as freely as ever, although at lower prices. While the net profit is much less than it was last year, we are cleaning up quantities of stock that we feel sure would, under any other conditions, remain unsold. This is where salesmanship may shine, in sizing up one's customers and adapting oneself to the situation." W. M.

BARGAIN GREENHOUSES

Have fooled many a good buyer. On paper they may look—and figure out—all O. K. The estimate is usually low—and many of us look only at the figures at the bottom of the page—but there are often many "extras" that bring up the first cost.

FOLEY GREENHOUSES

Are built to stand—they are tight when built—and they stay tight. They are so rigid that glass breakage is reduced to a minimum. At times our estimates seem higher at first glance, but we figure in all the extras. So Foley Houses are lower in first cost and lower in upkeep cost.

Let us show you how

SKINNER SYSTEM OF IRRIGATION.

Which Man Do You Think Is Crazy?

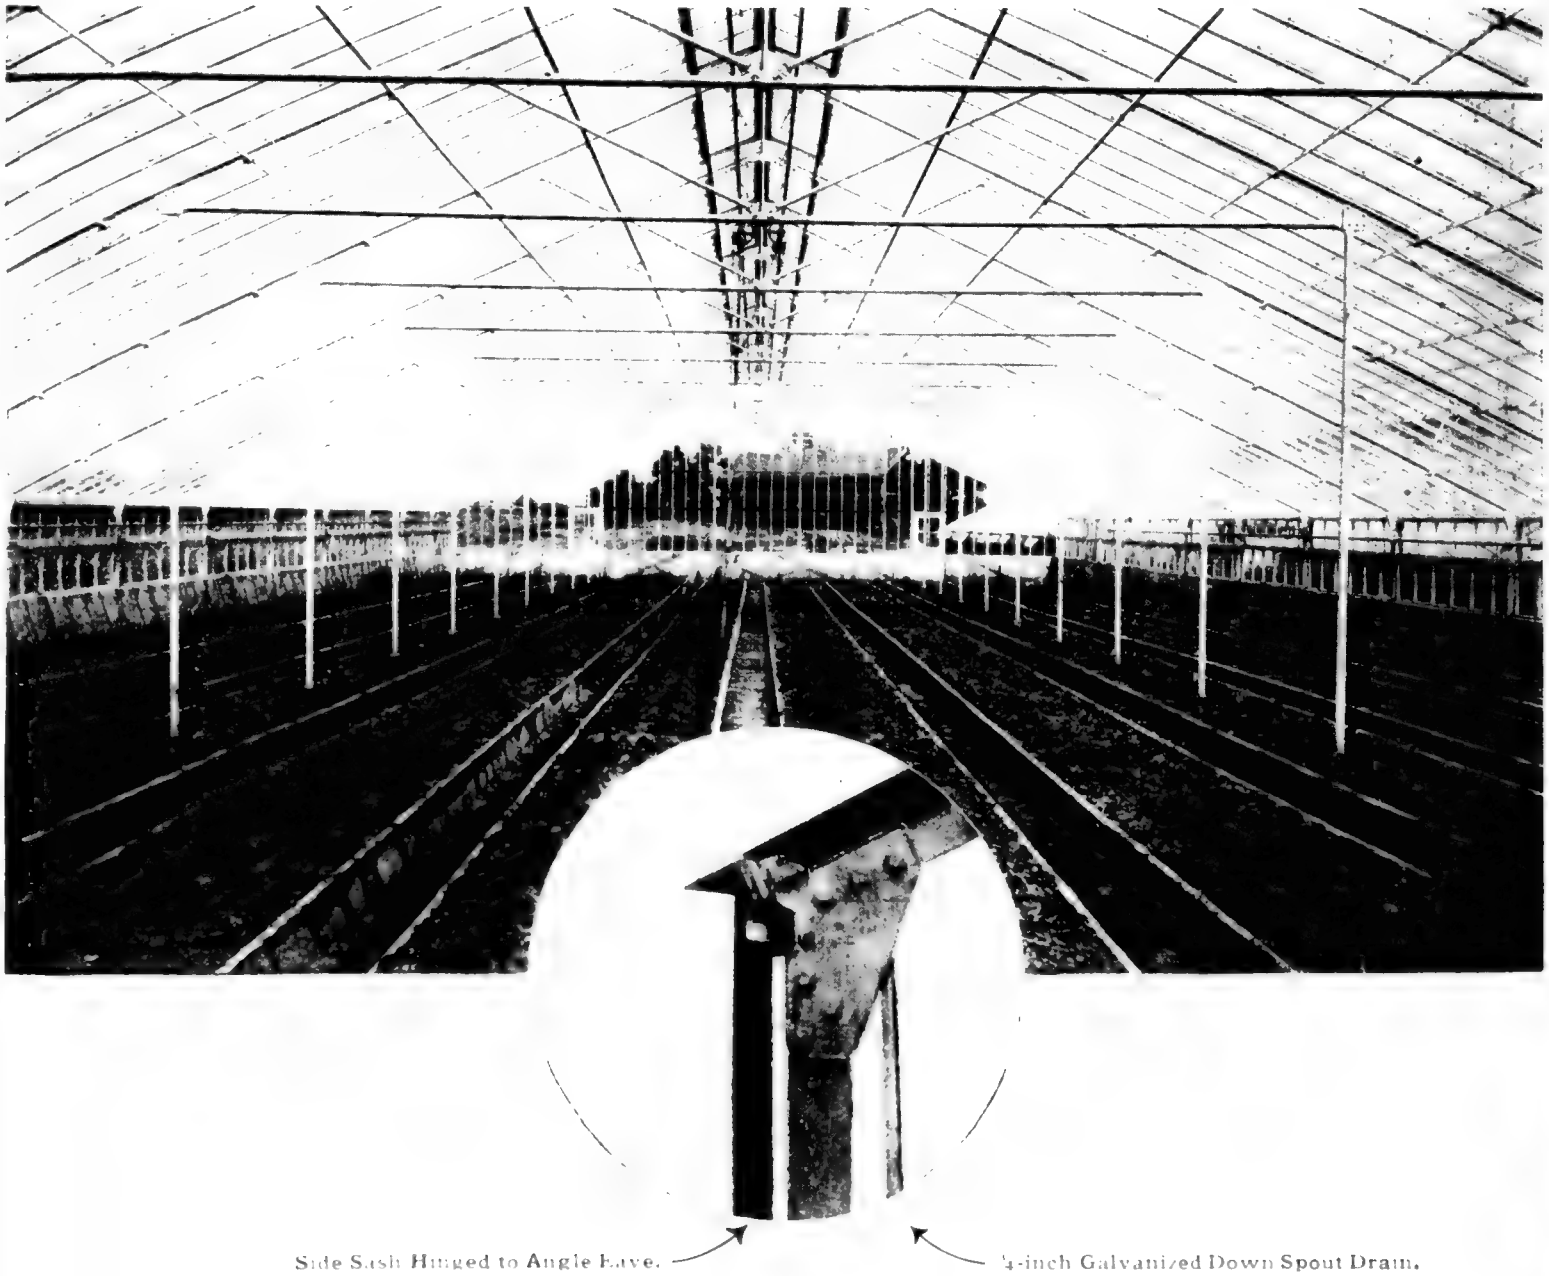
Any fire insurance agent will write you a policy protecting you against loss by fire, at a very low rate.
What really happens is that his company bets you about 200 to 1 that you won't have a fire.

And yet, knowing that the chances are 200 to 1, or even greater, against your having a fire, you think it's mighty good business to take out a policy and you sure are right!

Now, along comes the Skinner Irrigation Co. and wants to insure your crops against dry weather.

Your own experience has shown you that every season at some time or other, you have found yourself wishing for rain.
It's so year after year.

Occasionally, there are years when too much rain falls. But there are infinitely more "average" years when there is too little. It is well to remember that there are "dry" years, as well as wet ones.



You don't call a man who insures his house against fire, crazy. But what about the grower who won't insure his crop against dry weather?

You'd be surprised to know how little your first policy will cost.

Write today and find out how little that little is.

King GREENHOUSES

Side Sash Hinged to Angle Eave. ¼-inch Galvanized Down Spout Drain.

A 50-foot King house with a larger detail of our angle eave and post connection—proof enough why our houses cast so much less shade than others.

3 x 2 x ¼ angle.

Galvanized after all fitting and drilling.

Good, big galvanized drip pans, 1¼ wide, 1¼ deep.

Drained every 25 feet with a ¼-inch galvanized pipe.

Malleable casting eave connections used in pairs, specially designed to hold rafter, post and eave together in one rigid joint.

Eave overhangs so that side sash are hinged directly to it with galvanized hinges.

A good, strong, stiff job. Simple and practical.

When you think of good greenhouses think of "KING."

AGMCO AGMCO

Why do you have greenhouses?

Simply because you can grow things in them the year round—grow them at the season when they'll bring the best price—and grow them more rapidly than you can outdoors. And—there's money in doing this or you wouldn't be in the greenhouse business.

But even with the smallest plant there is an overhead—and your problem is to keep it down so your greenhouse profit has a fair chance to show on the ledger.

The best way to do this is to build, for you can do this without adding appreciably to your overhead, and at the same time increase your income.

Build NOW and Reduce Your Overhead.

CROSS SECTION.

We show here a cross section of a greenhouse which we call our "General Utility House" You can grow anything in it from radishes to orchids. Of course if you are going in for a specialty crop such as roses or carnations exclusively we would not recommend this width, but for general purposes, as, for instance, in connection with a retail store, you will find this a handy and economical greenhouse.

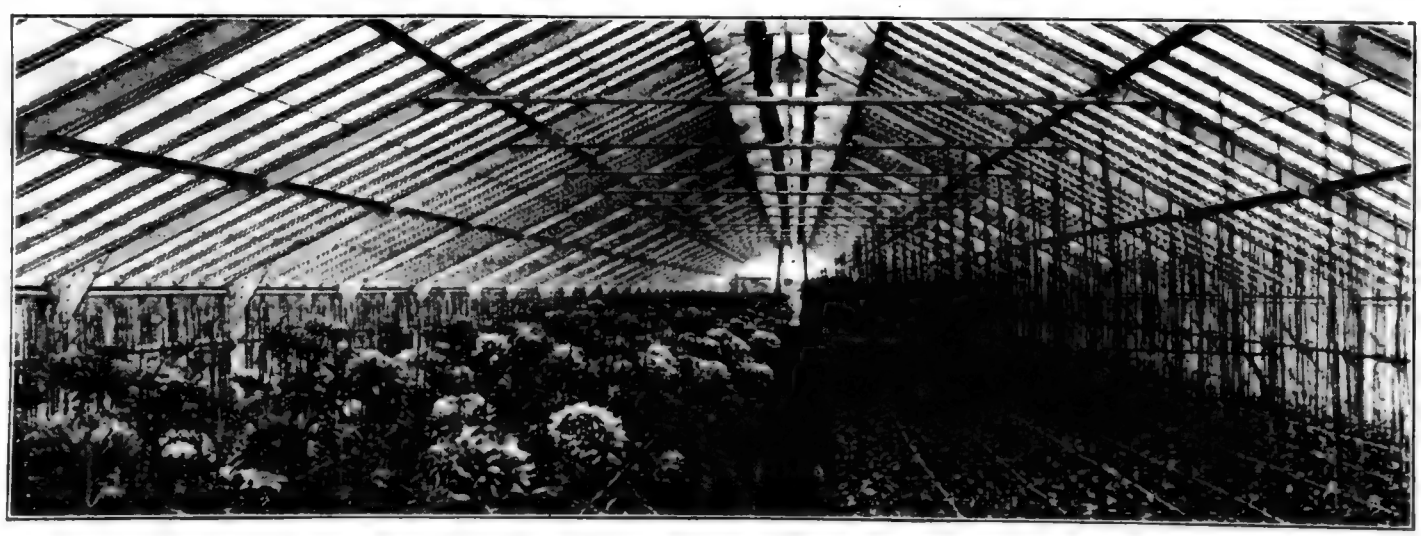
Greenhouse Builders

When cypress was highest when glass w s on its tiptoes, when labor was independent as ding, Joe Hill built this whale.

Climbing The Hills With Joe Hill



Joe Hill, sure is a worthy son of his Dad.
"E. G." didn't develop his world-famed roses by continually wetting his finger and holding it up to see which way the wind was blowing.
He didn't care a hoot what growers thought or said.
He had things in the back of his head that poets call ideals.
You can't stop men with ideals.

Joe Hill, before he turned a shovel of dirt for his first greenhouses, had in the back of his head a picture of the ideal range he some day would have.
That ideal called for building at certain well defined periods.
He has stuck to his ideal.
He built against the advice of his friends at a time when they said materials were 'way too high.
He never stopped to hold up his finger to the wind.
He simply kept holding tight fast to his plan.
Has it paid?
Ask any of the bankers in the city of Richmond, Indiana, how Joe Hill stands.
You'll have your answer in their answer.
Joe Hill climbs hills.
So can you.
When ready to talk building we are ready to talk to you.

Joe Hill knew that it would cost him less to build this house than not to. Less, because the decrease it meant in his overhead would more than take care of the extra cost of building on a high market. Joe Hill doesn't do any guessing.

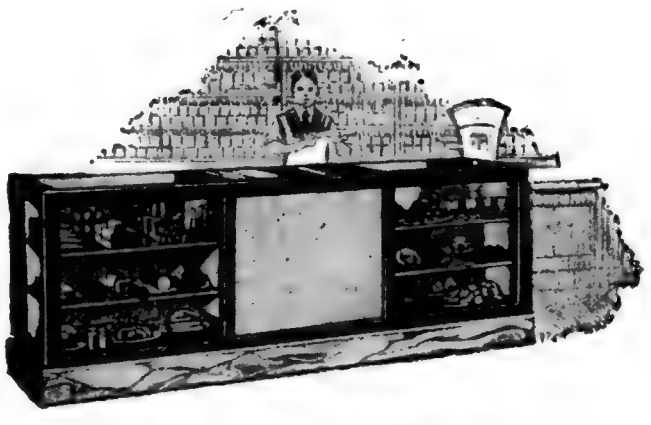
McCRAY
REFRIGERATORS FOR ALL PURPOSES

McCRAY builds refrigerators for every kind of business. Thousands of florists' shops, stores, markets, clubs, restaurants, hotels, hospitals, institutions and homes depend on McCray for efficient, economical refrigerator service.

For Florist Shops in Particular—McCray Refrigerators are best because they are made to conserve flowers, and at the same time give proper display to floral goods. In appearance the McCray will make any floral store more attractive. Viewed solely from the selling end, the McCray has superior qualities—for it aids in selling flowers and at the same time puts a stop to waste from spoilage.

Remember—Thirty years of continuous development have resulted in the perfected McCray System—by which fresh, cold air is kept in constant circulation through the storage chambers. The McCray System assures perfect preservation of flowers.



McCray features of convenience and appearance are of the highest type—and in the McCray you are certain to obtain years and years of satisfactory refrigerator display service. Only in the McCray will you find concentrated thirty years of unquestioned leadership in refrigerator building. Our position of leadership is a tribute to McCray quality.

Our Catalog, illustrating various models of McCray Refrigerators for Florists, will gladly be sent to your address—just write us for it: No. 74 for Florists; No. 94 for Residences.

THE FLORISTS' REVIEW

AN EXPERT'S VIEWS ON VIOLET GROWING

To think of Rhinebeck is to think of the violet; the town and the flower are inseparably associated in the mind of the florist. They are closely associated, also, in this article, for it was written by a Rhinebeck grower—one of the most successful growers of double violets.

By ETHAN A. COON.

ONE HUNDRED miles north of New York city, nearly opposite the majestic Catskills, lies the town of Rhinebeck. For over thirty years the home of the double violet has been here—the only place in the United States where this modest little flower can be grown with any marked degree of success. Seemingly the nature of the soil is not the chief essential to the growth of violets, as good ones are produced in all kinds of soil, varying from a coarse, gravel-like material to heavy loam. Even black muck grows violets to perfection. But the requisite seems to be atmospheric conditions such as prevail here, and no doubt the Marie Louise, which is the leading variety grown in Rhinebeck, can be grown successfully elsewhere if the same conditions exist.

Suitable Houses.

Suitable houses are necessary for the culture of violets. Those used here—and they are probably the most practical ones—are 20x150 or 20x200 feet, with three solid beds and two walks.

Each year, at the close of the blooming season, the soil is removed to the depth of eight inches. It is replaced with soil well mixed with about one ton of stable manure for a space to be occupied by 500 plants. After the new soil is in the beds, it is spaded and raked to make the beds level.

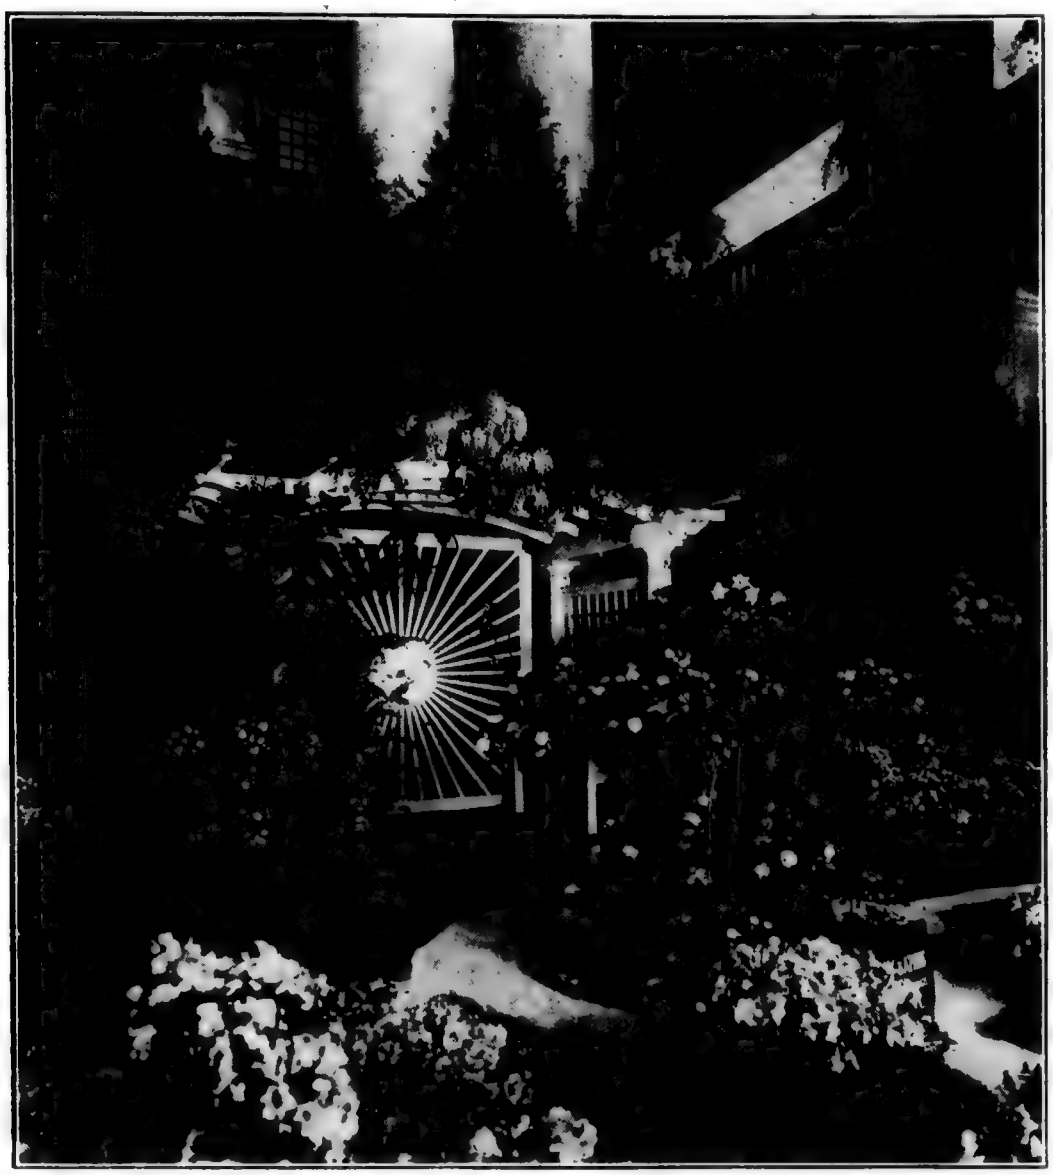
During the month of April runners should be taken from the healthiest stock, trimmed down to one crown leaf and two inches of stem and then placed in the sand to root.

Care of the Cuttings.

Now the most important work for the grower begins; namely, care of the cuttings. Watering must be done only on bright days. The cuttings must not be allowed too much water; neither must they become too dry. After the roots have started, the lower part of the cutting bed must never be allowed to become dry. Great care must be exercised at this time, for a violet cutting properly rooted is half grown! By the middle of June, usually, the roots of the cuttings should be two or two and one-half inches long. Then they are ready to be set nine inches apart each way in the beds where they are to remain. Next comes the problem of shading. The writer uses lime in such a way as to let in as much light as possible, still keeping out the direct sunlight.

After the plants are set, the soil must be kept wet—not muddy. If the weather is intensely hot, more water is needed than in cool weather, when evaporation is slow. The surface of the soil should be kept mellow by stirring it occasionally with a five-finger.

In four or five weeks buds and runners will appear. These must be kept off. Never allow the runners to grow longer than four or five inches, as they reduce the vitality of the plants.



Ethan A. Coon.

Temperature.

About the end of August or the first part of September, a mulch of coarse stable manure to the depth of one-half inch is highly beneficial.

No artificial heat is necessary until the first frost appears. However, the temperature of the houses should not drop below 45 degrees Fahrenheit, as such a drop would cause too sudden a check of growth. Buds may be left on as soon as the weather becomes cool enough to develop them—usually in the last part of September. To secure the best blooms, the day temperature should be about 56 degrees and the night temperature 45 degrees.

In conclusion I wish to emphasize the following points, as fundamental principles in violet culture:

1. Mix the fertilizer thoroughly with the soil.
2. Get sand-rooted cuttings from a reliable grower.
3. Water only when necessary and not too much at a time.
4. Never allow runners to remain on the plants during the summer. Stir the surface of the soil every ten days with a five-finger.
5. Have the houses well ventilated from the top, but never allow strong winds to blow over the plants.
6. Keep the plants free from red spider by spraying with cold water. Keep the plants free from green and black aphis by using tobacco fumigation or hydrocyanic acid gas.
7. Last, but not least, maintain eternal vigilance.

VIOLETS IN COLDFRAMES.

I am growing a limited quantity of violets and, having no tight house in which to fumigate them, am keeping them in the open in coldframes. How would you fight the insect pests?

N. R.—Del.

You can fumigate the violets in coldframes as well as in greenhouses. If the sashes are not tight, lay some mats or cloth on them. Tobacco dust or one of the tobacco papers will clean out aphis. As the cubic space to be fumigated is small, it will take little paper or dust to finish the aphis. Ventilate early the day after fumigating, and if the day promises to be hot and sunny, spray the plants over before the sun hits them, to prevent burning. C. W.

CALLAS IN BENCHES.

Please give me some information about calla lilies. I have some growing in benches and another lot growing in pots. The ones in the benches are not flowering half so well as those in the pots. I give them bone meal about every ten days or two weeks. Those in the benches are about two and one-half feet high and are from large bulbs. The leaves are of a good color and in growth they are excellent. Perhaps they were planted too late; it was about November 1, 1920. The ones in the pots are Godfrey callas. What could be the cause? A. L.—Mo.

Callas in pots or boxes with a rather limited root run will flower much more abundantly in winter than when they are planted out in benches or solid beds. Perhaps your plants in the bench are the old variety, æthiopica. This variety does not flower nearly so freely as the newer and purer Godfrey calla. November was rather a late date to start your plants. Another season rest your callas from the end of May until the middle of August and then pot up. Started this early, you will get flowers quite early in winter and by feeding with bone, one of the best stimulants for callas, you should be able to cut flowers for a period of at least six months. Three of the largest bulbs in 9-inch pots and three somewhat smaller in 8-inch pots give much better results than when they are grown singly in smaller pots. C. W.

REST ISMENE BULBS.

Kindly give me information regarding ismene bulbs. I purchased 100 2-inch bulbs last year and not one of them ever showed a sign of a flower.

C. B. C.—Mass.

Ismene calathina, also called hymenocallis and Pancratium calathinum, is a native of Peru and Bolivia. It is a summer or late-blooming variety in your latitude and needs pot culture in a fairly warm greenhouse. The plants must be rested and kept quite dry in winter. Perhaps you have not given your plants the necessary rest, or, as seems more probable, the bulbs have been of insufficient size to flower.

C. W.

SOUR COMPOST.

What is the matter with my potting soil that I am using in the greenhouse? It is made by rotting June grass sod and horse manure together in a pile. This is thoroughly mixed and then I add a little tobacco dust and hydrated lime to it before using. It seems to be sour just the same, because the soil on top of the pots turns green shortly after the plants are potted up. I have been told that at some large establishments the soil is sterilized by heating or baking it. I shall be thankful for any information you can give me in regard to the matter. H. S. H.—Mich.

Your potting compost seems to be prepared all right. If you had a heavy mat of June grass and used fresh horse manure it would have a tendency to sour, even if some lime were added. Mow the grass off closely before cutting or plowing up your sod. Use well decomposed, rather than fresh horse manure in layers through the sod and do not use the compost for at least six months, by which time it should, when chopped down, be in fine condition for potting. If you add some coarse sand or fine charcoal to your soil, it will help to sweeten it. Sterilization of the soil kills weed seeds and all fungoid affections. It helps to improve old soil, but its application should not be necessary for new compost. C. W.

FOR PRIMULA POISONING.

In The Review for March 17 I saw several remedies for primula poisoning. The remedy I use is simple and effective and it is always easily procured.

If I have to handle the plants or flowers, I wet my hands in clear water and, while they are wet, rub common baking soda on them thoroughly and plentifully, letting it dry on. If this is done soon after handling the plants, there will be no sign of poisoning.

Minnie E. Ruckman.

I have tried many remedies for primula poisoning, among them some of those mentioned in last week's Review. All failed to effect a cure for me. My only remedy is a few applications of any laundry soap rubbed on when wet enough to lather. Before using the soap remedy I had both hands and both arms poisoned to the shoulders. The soap remedy cured me at once.

NEW YORK'S BIGGEST SHOW

RECORD ATTENDANCE MADE.

Eighth International Flower Show.

The most successful show in the history of such affairs at New York was brought to a close Sunday night, March 19. Records of attendance show that all previous totals have been beaten and the eighth international flower show, from the point of view of the public, stands as the last word. The entire week an enthusiastic attendance displayed active interest in all that was progressing. The features for special attention each day of the week and the much advertised tea garden helped to keep up interest.

Further awards announced on succeeding days after those reported in last week's issue of The Review are given below.

Next to the exhibits of gardens in point of interest were the dinner table decorations, which changed as to the stock used each day of the show week. These exhibits were all by private growers.

Dinner Table Decorations.

Tuesday, March 15, tables were exhibited furnished for eight. Roses were the only flowers allowed. The awards were: R. E. Tyson, gardener for Mrs. H. McK. Twombly, Madison, N. J., first; George Ferguson, gardener for Mrs. Payne Whitney, Manhasset, N. Y., second; S. Goldring, gardener for Mrs. Ridley Watts, Morristown, N. J., third; Peter Smith, gardener for Mrs. Percy Chubb, Glen Cove, N. Y., honorable mention.

Carnations were the only floral decorations permitted Wednesday, March 16, and awards were as follows: Thomas Aitchison, Mamaroneck, N. Y., first; S. Goldring, gardener for Mrs. Ridley Watts, second; George Ferguson, gardener for Mrs. Payne Whitney, third.

Thursday, March 17, miscellaneous flowers, other than those permitted in other classes for table decorations, were in order and Thomas Aitchison again won first prize. Other awards were: A. Sailer, gardener for W. R. Cross, Morristown, N. J., second; S. Goldring, gardener for Mrs. Ridley Watts, third; George Ferguson, gardener for Mrs. Payne Whitney, honorable mention.

Sweet peas were the only blooms allowed in the series for Friday, March 18, although foliage other than sweet pea was permitted. S. Goldring, gardener for Mrs. Ridley Watts, won first place and R. E. Tyson, gardener for Mrs. McK. Twombly, was awarded second place.

Cut Roses.

Of particular interest Thursday, March 17, were the displays of cut roses, covering 300 square feet and containing from 500 to 1,000 blooms. The awards were based upon quality of blooms, artistic arrangement and general effect and F. R. Pierson, Tarrytown, N. Y., was awarded the first prize of $500. The second prize, $300, went to A. N. Pierson, Inc., of Cromwell, Conn.

The classes calling for cut roses of different types and varieties attracted much attention. Some of the blooms staged were of surprising excellence and augured well for the quality of stock to be expected for the Easter sales. This group was staged Friday, March 18, and the awards were as follows:

One hundred Columbia—L. B. Coddington, Murray Hill, N. J., first; A. N. Pierson, Inc., second.

One hundred Mrs. Charles Russell—F. R. Pierson, first.

One hundred Ophelia, or any of its sports—A. N. Pierson, Inc., first; Duckham-Pierson Co., Madison, N. J., second.

One hundred Premier—Duckham-Pierson Co., first; A. N. Pierson, Inc., second.

One hundred any red variety—L. B. Coddington, first; Duckham-Pierson Co., second.

Fifty Crusader—Rowayton Greenhouses, Rowayton, Conn., first; A. N. Pierson, Inc., second.

Fifty Mrs. Aaron Ward—Rowayton Greenhouses, first; A. N. Pierson, Inc., second.

Fifty Sunburst—William W. Vert, Madison, N. J., first.

Stage Carnations.

Cut carnations were staged Wednesday, March 16, and an excellent showing was made by the exhibitors. An exhibit by Strout's, Inc., of Biddeford, Me., of fifty specimens of a new variety not in commerce was awarded a silver medal. The other awards were as follows:

One hundred white—Springfield Flower Co., Springfield, N. J., first; F. B. Abrams, Blue Point, N. Y., second.

One hundred light pink—Springfield Flower Co., first; M. Matheron, Hempstead, N. Y., second.

One hundred dark pink—M. Matheron, first; Springfield Flower Co., second.

One hundred red or scarlet, to cover all shades generally included in those colors—Springfield

Garden of John Scheepers, Inc., Which Won the $500 Sweepstakes Prize Last Week at New York.

Flower Co., first; Lecluse & Lecluse, Blue Point, N. Y., second.

One hundred crimson, to include all shades known as crimson or maroon—Strout's, Inc., first.

One hundred white variegated—Strout's, Inc., first.

One hundred yellow or yellow variegated—Strout's, Inc., first.

One hundred Laddie—S. J. Goddard, Framingham, Mass., first; Springfield Flower Co., second.

Other Exhibits.

In the sweet pea classes staged March 18 for commercial growers, John Cook, Tarrytown, N. Y., carried away all but one of the first prizes awarded. This went to the W. Atlee Burpee Co., Philadelphia. H. Mamitsch, Rockville Center, N. Y., was awarded second prize on one exhibit.

In the display of carnations, staged March 18, the first prize went to Hession, Flatbush, N. Y. The Springfield Flower Co. took second place.

New Yorkers Give Dinner.

The annual dinner of the New York Florists' Club in connection with the show, held at the Hotel Biltmore, Wednesday evening, March 16, was a complete success, over 300 guests being present, among them many out-of-town visitors to the flower show. Music and dancing were prime features of the occasion, and the entertainment continued until long after midnight. Ex-President A. M. Henshaw was presented with a silver service by his many friends in the club, Joseph A. Manda making the presentation address, to which the recipient made an eloquent response.

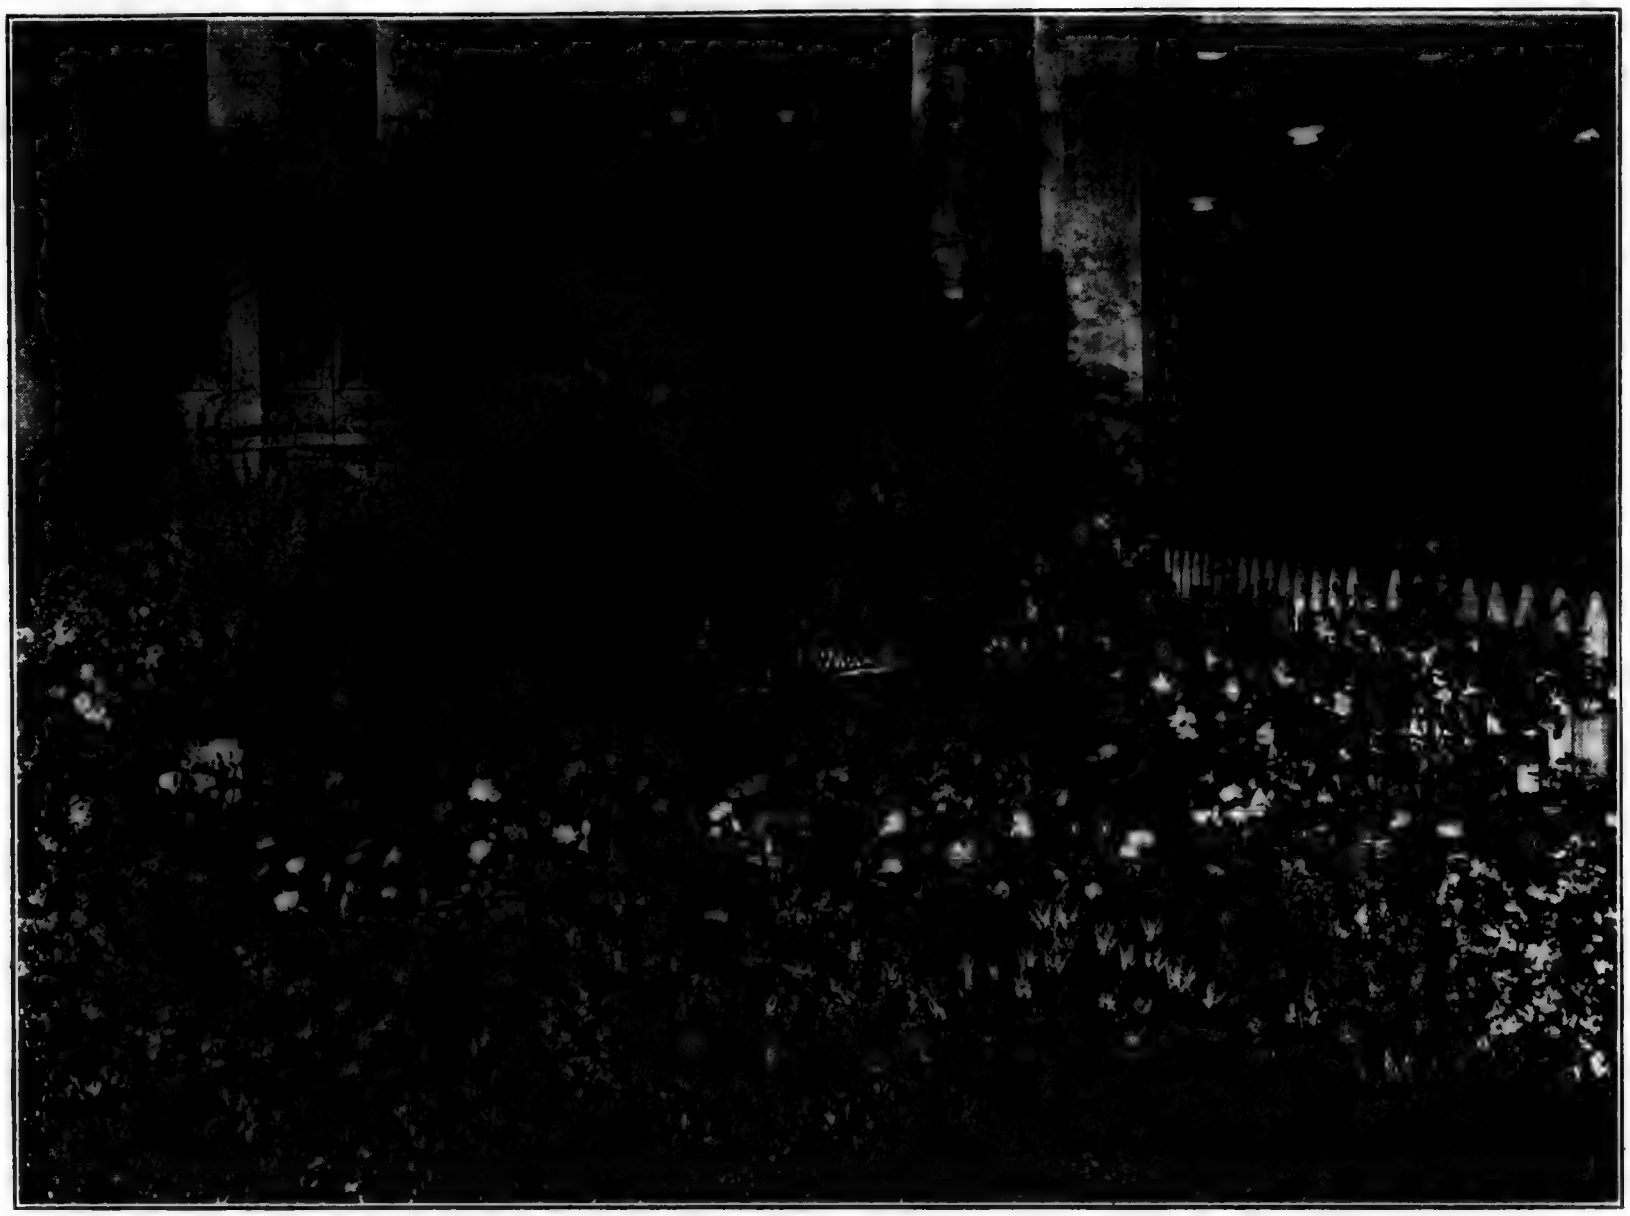
BEAUTY AND THE BEST.

Results from the Flower Show.



Shows may come and shows may go, but crowds go on forever. There were crowds at the silk show a few weeks ago in the Grand Central Palace, New York city, and there were crowds at the flower show there last week. Why did those crowds—or that crowd, for it was probably about the same one—come and what did they find? The crowd found beauty in abundance; it learned, particularly in the silk show, how it was produced; it saw myriad varieties, each in its best quality; it saw how that beauty could be used. And that is probably about what the crowd came for.

The details of the flower show—the exhibits, the awards, the social features, etc.—have been reported for The Review by those most competent to do it. Here are just a few suggestions on what such an exhibit means to the crowd on the one hand and the trade on the other.

Slogan and Show Together Go.

Ever since the slogan of the florists' trade began to win its now well established reputation, its influence has been in the direction of using flowers as the expression of a particular sentiment. Whether it be joy or sorrow, congratulation or sympathy, in celebration of the living or in memory of the dead, it was to be said with flowers. This has tended to increase the importance of particular occasions and days, of weddings, funerals, dinners, dances, birthdays, memorial days and other holidays.

On the other hand, the flower show helped, in the main, to emphasize the use of flowers as a normal part of everyday life. They were shown in gardens, on the dinner table, in vases suitable for the home. There were two or three exhibits of furniture and art objects which would coöperate with flowers to beautify the home. There was equipment for the chicken raiser—which would both be of direct interest to the seed trade and help indirectly to stimulate interest in gardening. Various kinds of floricultural apparatus were shown. Finally—yet first of all—there were the flowers themselves, silently yet powerfully working to arouse in the crowd that love for living beauty which would find satisfaction only in being surrounded with flowers.

What They Add to Advertising.

Indeed, the slogan and the show typify the two main currents of thought in effective florists' advertising. Either flowers are to be bought for a particular purpose which only they can adequately fulfill—and which the advertising will vividly suggest—or they are to be bought "just to have around," and the advertising will, perhaps less pointedly, remind its readers of the abiding pleasure of living with flowers.

Of course, too, what the flower show did for a single week in the year, but with a large magnificence, the florist's window may do in a small way, but fifty-two times as often. The show in the window will not receive awards from a committee of formally appointed judges. But it will, if effective, receive the yet more valuable award of attracting a crowd of purchasers, who are in the end the most important judges.

W. A. H.

'ROUND THE NEW YORK SHOW.

"Look, ma!"

"Yes, dear, but don't touch; they are wax," replied "ma," touching a pod of garden peas to convince herself and surprised to find they were natural and, as W. F. Gude and Philip Breitmeyer remarked later, during an early morning round, most appetizing. This exhibit of vegetables by Mrs. Charles M. Schwab, of Loretto, Pa., won the gold medal and was one of the most attractive features, keeping Gardener N. Ireland busy explaining the method of forcing. All were plainly labeled, in striking contrast to the several exhibits of Holland bulbs, some of which were not labeled and some incorrectly, which means disappointment to the purchasers, who note the names and expect to get what they will not.

The exhibits of Bobbink & Atkins, the Julius Roehrs Co., F. R. Pierson and A. N. Pierson, Inc., were favorably commented upon.

Carl Hagenburger and Herman Knoble made notes for use at the Cleveland show next year, agreeing that the whole aggregation was the greatest yet attempted and certainly was an inspiration to the promoters of what is to come.

A host of visitors came from near and far, professionals and amateurs, all to see the products of Flora, as J. D. Eisele, president of Henry A. Dreer, Inc., expressed it, an exhibition truly international insofar as the plants themselves are concerned, for which a full measure of praise is due the growers of the magnificent stock, whether blooming plants, foliage plants or cut flowers.

EDUCATING THE PUBLIC.

"What do you owe to a flower?" reads a query in the Arizona Republican for March 13. Almost two columns of space is devoted to a contest based upon this question. Each contestant must write a letter of not over 250 words in which he describes some important happening in his life which was connected with a flower. As a prize for the best letter received by this newspaper, a choice package of Luther Burbank's seeds is to be given to the winner. Other newspapers in other cities are running this flower letter contest and the grand prize for the best letter discovered will be an autographed edition of the 12-volume set of "Luther Burbank, His Methods and Discoveries."

Other Exhibits.

In the sweet pea classes staged March 18 for commercial growers, John Cook, Tarrytown, N. Y., carried away all but one of the first prizes awarded. This went to the W. Atlee Burpee Co., Philadelphia. H. Mamitsch, Rockville Center, N. Y., was awarded second prize on one exhibit.

In the display of carnations, staged March 18, the first prize went to Hession, Flatbush, N. Y. The Springfield Flower Co. took second place.

everyday life. They were shown in gardens, on the dinner table, in vases suitable for the home. There were two or three exhibits of furniture and art objects which would coöperate with flowers to beautify the home. There was equipment for the chicken raiser—which would both be of direct interest to the seed trade and help indirectly to stimulate interest in gardening. Various kinds of floricultural apparatus were shown. Finally—yet first of all—there were the flowers themselves, silently yet powerfully working to arouse in the crowd that love for living beauty which would find satisfaction only in being surrounded with flowers.

What They Add to Advertising.

Indeed, the slogan and the show typify the two main currents of thought in effective florists' advertising. Either flowers are to be bought for a particular purpose which only they can adequately fulfill and which the advertising will vividly suggest—or they are to be bought "just to have around," and the advertising will, perhaps less pointedly, remind its readers of the abiding pleasure of living with flowers.

Of course, too, what the flower show did for a single week in the year, but with a large magnificence, the florist's window may do in a small way, but fifty-two times as often. The show in the window will not receive awards from a committee of formally appointed judges. But it will, if effective, receive the yet more valuable award of attracting a crowd of purchasers, who are in the end the most important judges.

'ROUND THE NEW YORK SHOW.

"Look, ma!"

"Yes, dear, but don't touch; they are wax," replied "ma," touching a pod of garden peas to convince herself and surprised to find they were natural and, as W. F. Gude and Philip Breitmeyer remarked later, during an early morning round, most appetizing. This exhibit of vegetables by Mrs. Charles M. Schwab, of Loretto, Pa., won the gold medal and was one of the most attractive features, keeping Gardener N. Ireland busy explaining the method of forcing. All were plainly labeled, in striking contrast to the several exhibits of Holland bulbs, some of which were not labeled and some incorrectly, which means disappointment to the purchasers, who note the names and expect to get what they will not.

The exhibits of Bobbink & Atkins, the Julius Roehrs Co., F. R. Pierson and A. N. Pierson, Inc., were favorably commented upon.

Carl Hagenburger and Herman Knoble made notes for use at the Cleveland show next year, agreeing that the whole aggregation was the greatest yet attempted and certainly was an inspiration to the promoters of what is to come.

A host of visitors came from near and far, professionals and amateurs, all to see the products of Flora, as J. D. Eisele, president of Henry A. Dreer, Inc., expressed it, an exhibition truly international insofar as the plants themselves are concerned, for which a full measure of praise is due the growers of the magnificent stock, whether blooming plants, foliage plants or cut flowers.

EDUCATING THE PUBLIC.

"What do you owe to a flower?" reads a query in the Arizona Republican for March 13. Almost two columns of space is devoted to a contest based upon this question. Each contestant must write a letter of not over 250 words in which he describes some important happening in his life which was connected with a flower. As a prize for the best letter received by this newspaper, a choice package of Luther Burbank's seeds is to be given to the winner. Other newspapers in other cities are running this flower letter contest and the grand prize for the best letter discovered will be an autographed edition of the 12-volume set of "Luther Burbank, His Methods and Discoveries."

SWEET PEAS

PEAS: PAST AND PRESENT.

Winter-Flowering Varieties.

To the best of my knowledge, winter-flowering sweet peas were first seen on the Chicago market in 1899.

In the fall of that year we sowed some of Burpee's Earliest of All, a pink, more or less as an experiment. Winter peas were not known to the buyers; hence there was not much of a market for them. But we took a fancy to growing them and in the following season we sowed Mont Blanc, a white, and Sunbeam, a primrose color, in addition to Earliest of All. These peas were of the grandiflora type, the stems averaging but six to eight inches. About ten years later an improvement was offered in the Unwin type, the variety Wallacea ranking as the best of this type.

In 1913, Anton Zvolanek introduced the well-known Butterfly, or orchid-flowering, varieties, which are now grown practically exclusively. I believe that with the introduction of these varieties Mr. Zvolanek has done more to promote the growing of sweet peas than any other producer known to me. At that time he undoubtedly offered the best commercial varieties, but at the present day there are many other varieties offered by other concerns as well.

Plant Across Beds.

I do not want to touch on the growing end of sweet peas at all, but I do want to take this opportunity to say that after experimenting season after season we have come to the conclusion that the best method of sowing sweet peas is across the bed and not lengthwise, because of the mere fact that more flowers are thus obtainable to the square foot of bench room.

By using solid beds we have found that longer stems are obtained, also that the season of production is longer, hence more flowers are picked. Solid beds eliminate the trouble and expense of changing the soil yearly. We have on our establishment beds which have not been changed since the erection of the houses thirteen years ago.

Our picking season extends from the first part of October to the end of the following July. Most of the peas which are picked in June and July are the summer-flowering kind, or spring peas, as they are commonly known. These peas are seeded in January or February in pots or flats, as one sees fit, and by the time the early winter peas are torn out and the beds prepared these will be in fine shape for planting. They flower in about ten weeks from the time of planting.

Interesting History.

According to Zvolanek's little pamphlet, the first sweet pea was discovered in 1695.

In the year 1889, D. M. Ferry introduced the famous Blanche Ferry. It was the best seller in the early days and is the best seller to this day in its color. In 1893 Peter Henderson & Co. introduced the wonderful long-stemmed, snow-white sweet pea, Emily Henderson. This and Blanche Ferry were the most popular varieties grown.

About twenty years ago our method of culture was altogether different. We grew carnations on high benches and planted these peas along each purlin post in August. In the following April these plants covered the entire greenhouses, the stems being exceedingly long. Since then we have changed our method of growing. We dropped carnations; pulled out our high benches; built solid beds, and sowed, or planted, our winter-flowering peas in July and followed these with the summer-flowering peas as mentioned before. We picked about 1,500,000 last season.

Paper on "Sweet Peas" read by Henry Wehrman, of Maywood, at the meeting of the Commercial Flower Growers of Chicago, March 17.

TRANSPLANTING SWEET PEAS.

I sowed some sweet peas March 7 in small pots and put them in coldframes. When and how would you transplant them into the open? Did I sow them too late? N. R.—Del.

Your sweet peas might well have been sown two or three weeks earlier. They can safely be planted outdoors in your latitude from April 1 to April 10. Place them twelve inches apart in the rows and furnish good brush to support them. Provided your soil has been well enriched and prepared, the plants will easily cover the supports with stout haulm. Watering, of course, in dry weather will greatly benefit them, also a mulch of old manure, straw or hay. C. W.

CINERARIAS FOR EASTER.

Can cinerarias be sown in October in a house with a temperature of 40 or 45 degrees, be transplanted when they come up and be ready for sale at Easter? N. R.—Del.

It would be preferable to sow cinerarias in September in the temperature named and, by running them cool all the time, they can be held until April 16, 1922, the date of the next Easter. I have heard of few cinerarias being too cool. Anything above freezing will suit them. C. W.

MURILLO TULIPS.

We have mailed you two Murillo tulip bulbs in bloom. There is something the matter with the stems. Our other tulips are not affected, as far as we have noticed, but just this variety. R. L. C.—Mich.

It is difficult to determine what is the trouble with the Murillo tulips from plants so badly dried out. Murillo is a late variety and you are liable to have trouble with it if you start it early. For Easter it is excellent, but attempts to force it into bloom with the standard early varieties will cause many to come blind. The condition of the stems might be due to excessive dryness at the root, followed by soakings of water. C. W.

FERTILIZER

BONE MEAL OR PHOSPHATE?

Members Mistake Meaning.

I read with great interest the paper printed in The Review March 10, headed "Foods for Flowers," which was prepared by Dr. P. A. Lehenbauer and given at the meeting of the Illinois State Florists' Association. In discussing this paper with some of the members present at the meeting I find that, unfortunately, a good many carried away an impression that may result in an unfairness to the fertilizer trade and also to florists in general, unless the point is brought out.

In his paper Dr. Lehenbauer states that "one hundred pounds of purchased acid phosphate contain approximately forty-six pounds of actual acid phosphate and fifty-four pounds of gypsum." In speaking of bone phosphate he states: "Good bone meal should contain on the average about twenty-two per cent of phosphoric acid and steamed bone from twenty-eight to thirty per cent."

Those members present to whom I spoke came back from Urbana with the impression that Dr. Lehenbauer told them that the acid phosphate contained forty-six per cent of phosphoric acid, while bone meal contained only twenty-two for raw and twenty-eight to thirty per cent for steamed bone.

Price and Proportion.

In his table of comparison of acid phosphate and bone meal on roses he shows the correct analysis of both; namely, seven per cent of phosphorus, equal to sixteen per cent phosphoric acid, in acid phosphate and 12.6 per cent phosphorus, equal to twenty-eight per cent phosphoric acid, in bone meal.

In the table referred to, he shows that acid phosphate at $15 per ton is more economical to use than bone meal at $28 per ton, but he also shows that the present price of acid phosphate is $35 per ton, which is also about the present price of steamed bone. I am sure Dr. Lehenbauer does not claim that it is more economical to buy acid phosphate for use as fertilizer on roses in greenhouses if the price is the same as steamed bone meal, containing nearly double the percentage of acid phosphate, in addition to one or two per cent of nitrogen. From personal experience I should like to say that as long as the price of acid phosphate remained about half the price of bone meal I found it more economical to use acid phosphate, but since the price of acid phosphate rose to nearly the same as bone meal I much prefer to use bone meal. W. J. Keimel.

PUTTING OVER A PARK

THE VILLAGE BEAUTIFUL.

A Case of Determination.

This is the true story of something that couldn't be done; that is, just about everybody said it couldn't. Not only did men say it, but experience seemed to prove it.

Happily for us all, there are certain men of vision and indomitable courage who are ever doing the things that "couldn't be done."

When Conrad B. Wolf talked of beautifying the streets of Hibbing, Minn., by planting shade trees, he was looked upon as a dreamer. When he talked of a city park with trees, flowering shrubs, blooming flowers and restful green grass, they rather thought a commission should be appointed to examine his head.

What! Make trees grow and flowers live and bloom on this lean soil and in this rigorous climate? Why, the man is a fool! Still, he kept right on fooling that same fool way. As a result, Hibbing eventually had its joy spot in the center of the village, a spot of contentment and inspiration to its 16,000 inhabitants.

If you have been trying to promote the floricultural aspect of your town and think you have a hard time "getting things," as you call improvements, read the rest of this tale of Wolf and the Hibbing parks.

Richest Village in World.

At Hibbing twenty years ago, when the land was stripped of its timber, iron ore was discovered. There were iron ore deposits that in richness and quantity surpassed all the fairy and pirate tales of discovered treasure. Here was ore, hundreds of feet deep, that could be shoveled out as you would a sand pit—a billion tons at least of high-grade ore right on the banks of Lake Superior, where it could be shipped at low cost.

The town itself stood with both feet on top of the richest of the riches. All buildings were on leased lands. What use then to spend money on parks and shade trees, when any day the town itself might be ordered off, to satisfy the hunger for ore of the army of huge steam shovels?

To talk of spending the public's money that way just made people boil over.

Still the "big little giant" or "fighting mayor," as the villagers are fond of calling their progressive executive, Victor L. Power (by the way, Mr. Power was recently reëlected mayor to succeed himself for the ninth time), and the park commissioners kept hammering away until finally a small acreage was granted them in the center of the village.

The Pushing Park Superintendent.

Astute Start.

Their first move was an astute one of self-convincement. They started in as soon as possible by "Saying It with Flowers." A cheap greenhouse of temporary construction was put up at a cost of less than $5,000. In it, thousands of bedding plants were grown, which in their ultimate beauty made the strongest kind of convincing appeal to the public.

Trial grounds were established, where perennials, shrubs and trees were given 2-year and 3-year tests to find out if they had the backbone to stand that climate and thrive in that lean soil.

Soon the results of this began to show. Things not only lived; they grew most convincingly. It began to look as if somebody knew what he was talking about. It was then not so difficult to get the tax-payers to "loosen up" for two more greenhouses of better design and construction.

Moving Day.

Through all the long, weary months of that northern winter, these flower-filled houses gave cheer and happiness to all who would but turn the knob. "Saying It with Flowers" again did its good work.

It did it so well that when the ore land owners gave notice that the village and its parks must "move on," among the first things done was to select a new park site and immediately start developing it.

Then it was that the project for an extensive ornamental range of greenhouses of permanent construction found almost immediate favor.

From their first expenditure of less than $5,000, they increased to many times this amount, and now have an ornamental palm house and wings, with three practical purpose houses back of them, joined to a fine service building by two lean-to houses. These are in the new park, two miles from the first one. It is a Lord & Burnham iron-frame range such as serves parks in large cities.

Think what all this means. It means that a village of 16,000, of whom seventy-five per cent are miners, had in a few short years turned from antagonism to the park idea to one of demanding that their parks and streets shall both be beautiful. They demanded larger greenhouses, where flower shows, real flower shows, could be going on all the winter through.

And so a new park was started two miles away, and the village is soon to follow its move, body, boots and baggage. In a short time the old city site will be but a vast pit, hundreds of feet deep. But, regardless of how deep the pit or how valuable the ore taken from it, Hibbing's park still exists. In the loss of the first one they gained another, larger and better in every way.

Sentiment Succeeds.

But, best of all, they have developed in the hearts of those thousands that latent love of flowers and growing things which is in all of us, whether miners or milliners. Hibbing's taxpayers think that they only granted permission to have a park and build greenhouses, a bandstand, a rest house and a swan lakelet, but that is only the frame of the picture.

The picture itself is the full measure of joy it has given to so many, the planting and blooming within them of the love of the beautiful, a love that is an exhaustless source of contentment.

All of which may verge on pure sentiment, but, happily for the progress of the world, more and more thinking folks are realizing that all things

The Fighting Mayor of Hibbing.

Here Is the Newly Completed Range at Hibbing, a Small Town in Numbers, but Big in Actions.

abidingly worth while are either founded on, or made possible because of sentiment.

Show me the man or the concern that says and lives up to the statement that "there is no sentiment in business," and I'll show you a failure, insofar as the real, enduring things of the world are concerned. Show sentiment. Say things with flowers, not with a frown. Try Conrad B. Wolf's way of getting your message across.

LAPORTE, IND.

Business Is Good.

That the flower business should be so good as it is seems a matter of surprise to many people. This is a manufacturing city and none of the factories is operating at full capacity, the largest here, engaged in making agricultural machinery, being down to less than half and a big piano factory closed completely. With so much unemployment, it is inevitable that retail business in all lines should be affected. Curiously, perhaps, the flower store is holding up better than any of the others.

For its size, Laporte has few florists. There is a population of over 15,000, catered to by one exclusive downtown flower store, that of the Kaber Co., and one store combining candy and flowers, that of I. M. Hoffman. The Kaber Co., established about thirty years ago, is owned by the two daughters of the founder and is managed by Miss Ella Kaber. This concern also has the principal range of glass in this section, about 17,000 feet, devoted principally to pot and bedding plants. A general business is done, including everything from a boutonniere to a job of landscape gardening. Sales recently have not averaged so large as a year ago, but they steadily grow more numerous. The location of the store, adjoining the Rumely hotel, is advantageous. Most of the cut flowers are obtained from Chicago.

The Hoffman store is on Lincoln way, once Main street. J. C. Hennessey, 312 Pine Lake avenue, caters to the trade in the vicinity of his greenhouse. C. A. L. Wuellner, 412 John street, is both nurseryman and florist. Mrs. William Crawford grows summer stock.

A Supply Center.

In the florists' trade throughout the country Laporte is known as the home of the Ove Gnatt Co. Mr. Gnatt and family have just returned from a trip to Denmark and through central Europe. The company, of which Fred Hennock is the financial head and George Husmann the chief of the factory and sales staff, has a fine layout, only a hundred yards from the express office and not much farther from the New York Central freight depot. The factory building has several acres of floor space, affording splendid facilities for such operations as basket-making and the preparing of natural foliage, which call for plenty of room and low overhead expense. The Gnatt business extends to both coasts. At present large quantities of green painted Italian ruscus are being prepared for the New England Memorial day demand. Mr. Hennock says business thus far in 1921 has held nearly even with the boom months in the first part of 1920. There has been an increase in the number of orders shipped, but the average size has been smaller. In the first fifteen days of March fifty more orders were shipped than in the same period last year, but the quantity of goods sent out did not increase enough to offset the lower prices, so there was a small decrease in the billings. Mr. Hennock sees no prospect of immediate change in the trade's attitude toward conservative buying, but he believes prices are not likely to fall farther; indeed, much stock on hand costs less than it can now be replaced for.

That the flower business is more active than most lines Mr. Hennock attributes largely to the trade publicity. He believes the coining of the slogan, "Say It with Flowers," was worth all the national campaign has cost and that it will continue to be a powerful factor in developing the business as long as individual florists feature the slogan in the advertising matter they put before their local patrons.

BROOKLYN, N. Y.

Joseph Trepel, owner of fifteen stores in Brooklyn, applied March 11 to Justice Van Siclen in the Supreme court for an injunction to restrain his alleged second cousin, Joseph Trepel, and Henry Landsmann, a former employee, from using the name "Joseph Trepel" in a florists' business. The plaintiff said the defendants had opened a store displaying a sign bearing the same name as that of the plaintiff, in the same script and in the same neighborhood, and that his trade had suffered thereby. Joseph Trepel denies knowledge of a second cousin of the same name. The decision in the case was reserved.

The Brooklyn Citizen for March 6 quoted Edward J. McCarthy, president of James Weir, Inc., for the statement that business conditions in the florists' business were not at all bad. The same week a decided drop in the price of flowers was commented on favorably in the New York Herald, the Paterson, N. J., News and the New York Telegraph.

CARRYING OVER CYCLAMENS.

Will you tell me how to carry over cyclamens until another winter and if those which have not bloomed this year are worth carrying over?

J. J. B.—N. Y.

Unsold cyclamens can be carried over for another season, if desired. A few years ago a good many were grown the second Easter, especially on private estates, but the number grows less each year. There is little advantage in carrying plants over when 16-month-old plants can be grown sufficiently large to fill 10-inch and 12-inch pots, carrying scores, if not hundreds of flowers. It would be inadvisable to carry over unsold plants, but if you desire to do so, you should commence to rest the plants gradually with the passing of the January season. You must not lay them on their sides under the bench, forget them until fall, and then expect to start them up and make presentable specimens of them. Keep the plants on a bench in a sunny greenhouse until the weather warms up, say about the end of May. Then set them in a coldframe. First, furnish enough water to prevent complete shriveling. Early in August shake out the plants and reset them, placing either in a coldframe or a greenhouse where shade from strong sunlight can be afforded. I question if, given the best of care, these carried-over plants will equal in quality those sown in August or September last. C. W.

TO SOW CLEVELAND CHERRIES.

Will you kindly tell me when is the best time to sow seeds of Cleveland cherries so as to have them in bearing for next Christmas? L. G. B.—Ind.

Sow seeds at once. Prick off into flats as soon as they are large enough to handle and plant outdoors fifteen inches apart as soon as danger from frost has passed. C. W.

LEAF-SPOT ON VIOLETS.

I have mailed you a specimen of my violets. Can you tell me what the trouble is and what I should do?

C. S.—Ia.

The plant forwarded was covered with leaf-spot and if the other plants are in like condition you should pull them out and burn them. There is no known cure for this disease. Hand-picking of the diseased leaves, perfect cleanliness and abundant ventilation are necessary, with a night temperature in winter of about 40 degrees for best results. C. W.

CULTURE OF HARDY PHLOXES.

I am writing for information on the culture of hardy phloxes. I have trouble every year with mildew. The leaves turn white and then shrivel up. Would spraying help this? If so, what spray should I use and when?

J. C. B.—Ga.

Perennial phloxes are subject to attacks of both red spider and mildew. The former comes when the plants get an insufficient amount of moisture at the roots. Mildew appears usually in late summer, when cold nights follow hot days. Spray with Bordeaux mixture as soon as your trouble appears and continue to spray to keep the foliage clean. Flowers of sulphur, blown on the plants early in the morning while the dew is on them, also acts as a remedy. Phloxes should have soil well enriched and deeply plowed or spaded. In poor soil they are much more susceptible to attacks of spider and mildew than when placed in richer soil. C. W.

ROT ON LETTUCE.

I am sending you a plant of Big Boston lettuce. The edges are turned brown. What is the cause and what is the remedial treatment? I keep the greenhouse at from 45 to 50 degrees.

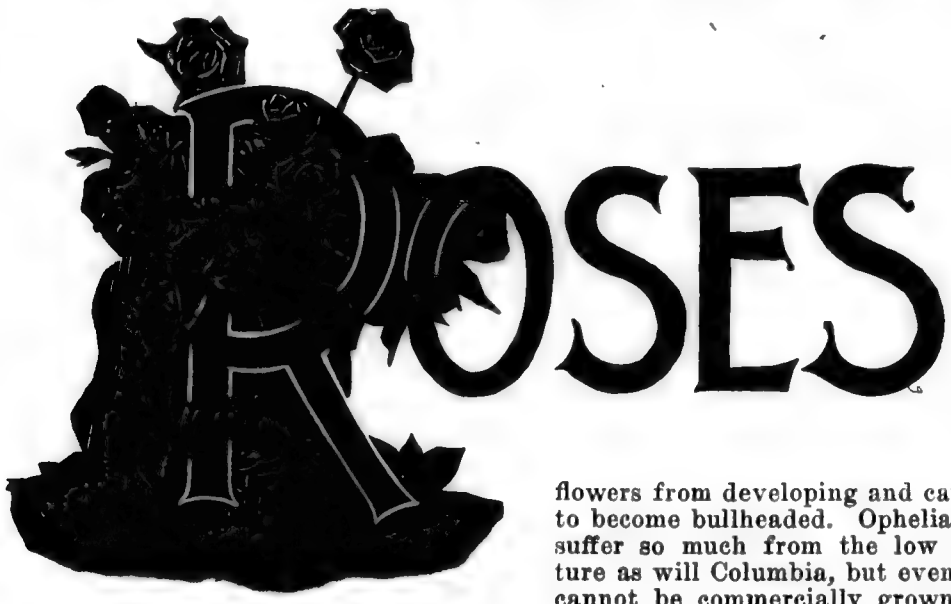
G. H.—Ill.

The burning of the foliage on your lettuce is most probably due to a warm, clear day following several sunless ones. This frequently causes this scalding or rotting of the leaves, particularly if the plants are not quite dry when the sun hits them. Ventilate early and abundantly on clear days which follow dark spells. The trouble is most likely to occur if the ventilators are left closed too long and the house gets quite warm before an air current passes through it. A temperature of 48 to 50 degrees is sufficiently high. Provided your plants are in solid beds and that these are well soaked when your plants are set out, no further watering should be necessary until your crop is cut. Watering is dangerous on head lettuce in winter and early spring, owing to our erratic climatic conditions, and will greatly aggravate this rot. C. W.

SEEDLING VEGETABLES.

Our plants, cabbage, tomatoes and cauliflower, are ready for transplanting and we find that many of them are diseased just above the ground. We used the same soil we had last spring, but it was only used three months, the remainder of the year lying idle in the benches. We added some manure and considerable acid phosphate fertilizer to the top soil. This soil was quite sandy and dry and loose all last summer and winter. Our heating pipes are directly under the benches and quite close to the bottom. We have kept the soil damp since sowing the seed. Can you give a solution to our trouble and is it likely to ruin our plants for this season?

G. H. A.—O.



Probably your trouble is due not so much to using old soil as to adding the acid phosphate to it. It is dangerous to use fertilizers in any form for seeds. A little old manure, well screened, is safe, and so is leaf-mold or compost from an old hotbed. You will probably lose many of your seedling plants. It would be inadvisable to use acid phosphate or any other chemical fertilizer in future composts. C. W.

WHO'S WHO IN THE TRADE AND WHY

JOHN J. WALSH.

DO you want an illustration proving that this is a young man's age? Well, here is one also demonstrating that the florists' business holds unexcelled possibilities for those who are willing to work. John J. Walsh will not be 31 years of age until June 10. He was born in 1890. He was 20 when he started work for the Chicago Flower Growers' Association as packer. Industry brought advancement and he became a salesman. From September, 1919, to January, 1921, he sold cut flowers at wholesale for the Joseph Foerster Co. Having saved some capital, in the latter month he bought a retail store, the Avondale Flower Shop, 3182 Milwaukee avenue, Chicago, and now is on the way to build up a business of his own, proving again that "where there's a will there's a way."

BADLY AFFECTED BY THRIPS.

Please give us any information you can in regard to the roses we are sending you. The foliage appears to be in good condition, but the flowers fail to open up well. W. S. H.—Ia.

The rose bud on arrival was badly wilted and the edges of the petals had turned brown, so that it is uncertain what is causing the flowers to fail to open. From the appearance it seemed to be badly affected by thrips, which cause the malformation of buds and prevent them from opening perfectly.

A solution of Paris green should remedy this trouble. Give the roses a weekly spray of Paris green and brown sugar, five parts of sugar to one part of Paris green. Dissolve about one ounce in a gallon of water. This spray will keep the thrips in check.

W. J. K.

TEMPERATURE TOO LOW.

Under separate cover I am sending a number of Columbia roses and should like to know the cause of the trouble with them. The plants were fine until the beginning of January, up to which time I had been growing them at a temperature of 70 degrees during the day and 60 degrees during the night.

After January 1 I began to grow them at 60 degrees during the day and 50 degrees at night, and a few times the buds became almost bullheaded. They would partly open and then drop off. I then gave them manure water, but they began to show brownish stripes on the stems; so I discontinued the manure water and gave them blood, bone and soot every ten days. I kept the soil just wet enough so that I could insert a pointed stick with slight pressure. The climate is extremely damp here, but we have had a fair amount of sunshine. I have a bench divided between Columbia and Ophelia and, although I treated the Ophelia the same as the Columbia, the former are doing well. When filling the bench last August, I used seventy-five per cent heavy black loam and twenty-five per cent cow manure. J. W.—N. Y.

The Columbia rosebuds were dried up when received and nothing could be learned from their appearance, but if the temperature of the houses was kept down to 60 degrees during the day and 50 degrees at night, there is no doubt that it would prevent the flowers from developing and cause them to become bullheaded. Ophelia will not suffer so much from the low temperature as will Columbia, but even Ophelia cannot be commercially grown at that temperature successfully.

Keep the temperature from 68 to 72 degrees on sunny days and 64 to 66 degrees on cloudy days. At night during cold weather they should be kept at from 58 to 60 degrees and when the weather is mild the temperature should be 60 to 62 degrees, with a little ventilation whenever possible, to prevent the plants from becoming soft.

At the low temperature you mentioned the plants stand practically dormant and are unable to assimilate the fertilizer. This will do them more harm than good, causing them to act as you described, but at the higher temperature the plants should start a strong growth at this time of the year and will stand considerable feeding. W. J. Keimel.

BLOOD FOR BEAUTIES.

Is fresh blood from the slaughter house good for American Beauty roses? J. S.—Ill.

It might be well to go a little slow in the use of fresh blood for any greenhouse crop. M. P.

CULTURE UNDER BENCHES.

Is it possible to get stems and foliage on Narcissus poeticus ornatus, as with Paper Whites, by resorting to the underbench method, with heat and darkness under the bench? R. W.—Mass.

This useful narcissus can be grown and flowered by under-bench methods, but you will not get the same quality of either flowers or foliage by adopting this plan. It is all right to place your flats under the bench for a short time, but if you want blooms and foliage with substance, give them a position well up to the light in a bed or bench and in a house which is not too warm. The writer's first batch of this variety flowered this season February 20, in a cool house with a night temperature averaging 45 degrees. C. W.

Marion, Ill. — F. B. Bell, of Creal Springs, Ill., has entered into partnership with Harry Shafer and the two are building a store. The firm name will be Shafer & Bell.

RUST ON ENCHANTRESS.

I have sent you a cutting of Enchantress carnation, which, to my mind, is badly infested with rust. J. I.—O.

The carnation cutting is badly infested with rust. I would advise that you procure stock that is clean for the coming season's planting, because the chances for success are against plants from cuttings badly infested with rust.

M. P.

FRESH MANURE HARMFUL.

I am sending a few specimens of my carnations, which are badly affected with something that I am not able to get under control. I know that they have been infested with thrips, but I have sprayed for the riddance of them, and there are none to be found now.

The plants never have done well since they were benched. Two other houses of carnations, however, are not affected in this way. I have grown carnations for ten years and never have I had plants act like this. Practically every shoot on the plants is affected.

The soil had been treated with fresh horse manure before I benched the plants. Even freesias, which I planted along the edges, are affected, the plants being yellow and of inferior quality. Can you tell me what the trouble is? J. T. F.—Okla.

The fresh manure in the soil is probably the cause of your trouble. These specimens showed only the natural results of failure on the part of the plants to take hold properly after being benched. There are signs of red spider and thrips, but not enough to stunt the growth. It would have been better to leave the fresh manure out of the soil and later on supply fertilizer in the shape of top-dressing and mulch.

A. F. J. B.

TOPPING CARNATIONS.

What is the proper time to top carnations? We grow several varieties. The plants are over six inches high and are strong. How far should they be topped? J. D.—Ill.

The proper time to top young carnation plants is when they have made sufficient growth to show the stem plainly between the joints. Sever the stem above the highest joint that will throw a strong break. Varieties will differ somewhat in this and you will have to be guided by the kind of cuttings that were used and the condition of the plants. A joint that will throw a weak shoot or a bud should be taken off. A. F. J. B.

Catonsville, Md.—Mrs. R. C. Gast contemplates entering the trade as a grower of cut flowers.

Clinton, S. C.—Mrs. Nonnie D. Young is preparing to build a greenhouse and go into the florists' business.

Harrodsburg, Ky.—The Standard Floral Co. recently increased its capital stock from $10,000 to $30,000.

St. Marys, O.—E. E. Stinson recently moved from Jamestown, O., and has begun the erection of 12,000 feet of glass here.

Bradford, Pa.—William H. Barber, a former member of the trade, expects to engage in the greenhouse business here soon.

Worcester, Mass.—The Hotel Warren recently opened a shop in the hotel lobby, under the management of Miss Marks.

Sheboygan, Wis.—The Altman Flower Shop has removed to its new quarters, at 1119 North Eighth street, and is ready for business.

Lincoln, Ill.—E. H. Deakins, a member of the staff of Gullett & Sons, is contemplating the erection of a greenhouse next summer.

Springfield, Mass.—L. D. Robinson, 182 Main street, has been enjoying good business and as a result is forced to build additional greenhouses to meet the demand.

Gross Point, Ill.—E. D. Meier, proprietor of the Meier Greenhouses, a truck gardener and florist, is erecting a house 28x120 feet. He now has 12,000 feet of glass. He plans to have a large crop of asters this year.

Kankakee, Ill.—The Art Floral Shop is a new establishment which will be opened in this city shortly. L. Gagnier and C. Jennings are promoting the project. Mr. Gagnier has had extensive experience as a designer and practical florist.

Scottsbluff, Neb.—T. M. Howard, proprietor of the Howard Flower Shop, recently moved his stand from the Ideal Laundry building to a location in the Orpheum theater building. The new location includes much more room, with better conveniences.

Moundsville, W. Va.—Ben F. Miller, proprietor of Miller's Flower Store, at Wheeling, is the head of a company which will soon construct an extensive greenhouse range here. Plans are for the building of six houses, each 75x200 feet. It is not expected to begin work on them until next fall.

St. Louis, Mo.—Max Koehler recently entered the trade as a grower of dahlias, gladioli and perennials.

Washburn, Wis.—Joseph P. Zaugg, for seven years in the employ of Will Bros. Co., Minneapolis, Minn., is starting a retail place here.

Council Bluffs, Ia.—W. L. Landon has completed a greenhouse and is contemplating the erection of additional houses in the near future.

Medina, N. Y.—Ralph H. Welsh, formerly of the firm of Hudson & Welsh, Lyndonville, N. Y., has sold his business and has moved to this town.

Ardmore, Okla.—Robert Westler, a former employee of Woerz Bros., has purchased some land here on which he intends to erect a number of greenhouses.

Dayton, O.—J. W. Rodgers, together with Clarence Siebenthaler and William Madden, compose a committee which is to start a caterpillar extermination campaign.

Mansfield, O.—J. Wiparins, 299 Newman street, has material for a small house, 16x25 feet, which he intends to put up this summer as a start towards establishing himself in the business here.

Columbus, O.—Julia's Flower Shoppe is the name of a new retail establishment which opened on East State street March 1. Miss Julia McGannon, formerly with the McKellar Flower Shop, is the proprietor.

Lyndon, Ill.—A greenhouse, 25x50 feet, is planned for erection by C. L. Sharp. He has been a grower of vegetables and flowering plants for the last three years and is contemplating growing flowers more extensively.

Enid, Okla.—The Enid Floral Co. has a large house of sweet peas which are of exceptionally fine quality. The sprays have stems eighteen inches long with three or four blooms on each. Andrew Freeborough is in charge.

Springfield, N. J.—A certificate of incorporation was filed March 9 for the firm of Andrew Wilson, with an authorized capitalization of $60,000. The incorporators are Russell Marrison, M. R. Wilson and Andrew Wilson, subscribing 312 shares at par value of $100 a share.

Lebanon, Tenn.—The Anderson Floral Co. believes the trade may be considered as pretty well fed up on the Enchantress varieties of carnations. A Classified ad in The Review just one week cleaned out the surplus cuttings of all varieties except Enchantress. Three lines offering tuberose bulbs did as much for that item.

Clovis, N. M.—Mrs. H. L. Patton is contemplating opening a store here and entering the florists' business.

Belle Plaine, Ia.—A new shop was opened recently by C. A. Ford, under the firm name of Ford's Flower Shop.

Worcester, Mass.—Leonard C. Midgley has sold his greenhouses in Grafton, Mass., to Arthur A. Phelps, of Northboro.

Crete, Neb.—Vit Jelineke has taken over the retail business here formerly run by Mrs. Jessie C. Ireland. The new proprietor reports good business.

Angola, Ind.—George M. Eggleston recently purchased land on which he intends to erect greenhouses. He has been a grower of vegetables, asters, pansies and salvias for the last fifteen years.

Larned, Kan.—Mrs. E. M. Andress, of the Broadway Greenhouses, opened a downtown store March 12. The store will be supplied from the greenhouses and will carry a full stock of plants and cut flowers.

Pleasant Hill, Mo.—Lonsdale Copeland, formerly with Gullett & Sons, Lincoln, Ill., has accepted a position with Hembreiker & Cole, Springfield, Ill. Mr. Copeland has just left the Pinehurst Floral Co.

Dunkirk, N. Y.—P. J. Gibson has been managing the business formerly conducted by his father, George E. Gibson, who died some months ago. The firm continues operations under the firm name of Gibson's Greenhouses.

Rhinebeck, N. Y.—Ethan A. Coon, who started growing violets sixteen years ago with one house, 20x200 feet, now has 37,000 feet of glass, and is reputed the largest grower of double violets in this largest producing center of these flowers.

Gross Point, Ill.—Frank Hlavech, a former member of the trade who has been highly successful, purchased the range of Frank Felke last week, and will take possession July 1. The range is composed of about 22,000 square feet of glass and he intends to have a complete stock of cut flowers and plants.

Allegany, N. Y.—Elmer Rawlings has placed an order with the King Construction Co. for another greenhouse, with the aid of which he hopes to be able to keep pace with the flow of orders for geraniums next season. He has enjoyed a steadily increasing business for several years and this season has shipped every day but Sundays—and still the orders accumulated. With 50,000 in pots and as many more in sight, he feels that a good season's business will be rounded out.

FLORISTS' REVIEW

Entered as second class matter Dec. 3, 1897, at the post-office at Chicago, Ill., under the Act of March 3, 1879.

Subscription price, $2.00 a year. To Canada, $3.00; to Europe, $4.00.

Advertising rates quoted on request. Only strictly trade advertising accepted.

RESULTS.
We give them. You get them.
We both have them.

THE day of the knocker is not past. It was never present. His is always an off day.

THE weather man favored the growing of plants for Easter. Now hope is that he will favor their sale.

NEW ideas are constantly making money for other florists. Do not be afraid to expose yourself to them.

FLORISTS invariably advise their customers to change the water daily in their vases, but how many practice what they preach?

GET a postcard printed. Acknowledge with it every order which cannot be shipped the day it is received. State on the card when shipment will be made.

WASTE cuts down some florists' profits more than does the spring glut. A dime goes here and a nickel there; the total at the year's end is more than the earnings.

WITHOUT crowding your store, it is wise to display all the goods you can. Certain flowers or plants sell themselves to certain customers, while you would lose the sale by drawing their attention to something else.

JUDGING by the reports of advertisers in the Classified department, the demand for spring stock, relative to the supply, is even stronger than last year. It may be another case of the early bird catching the worm, as it sometimes has happened that a scarcity in March will be followed by a surplus in June.

IN response to the many complaints last season, the British Chamber of Horticulture is gathering data with a view to seeking legislative relief from dumping of foreign horticultural produce in British markets. By this means low-priced lots of surplus bulbs may be excluded under seasonal regulation of importations.

WHAT the florists' business needs more than all else is an infusion of modern ideas of management. No business can develop beyond a narrow limit until an adequate and effective system has been developed for handling details. And the test of adequacy is not the owner's idea of it, but the ideas of his customers. The complaints are the surest guide, but at present the one least heeded.

DON'T spend a few dollars on advertising and then say, "Advertising doesn't pay." It's continuous advertising that pays.

REGARDLESS of personal political predilections, recipients of the Harding calendar for 1921 from the C. C. Pollworth Co. are glad to have so appropriate and patriotic a wall decoration, the more because the likeness of the new first citizen is an excellent one.

COLLECTIONS in this trade still are good for those who work at the job. The days when any of us can just "watch the money roll in" are passed, but if we each refuse credit to those who do not pay when they should, we can keep our individual business and the trade as a whole on a sound financial footing.

CUT DOWN THE OVERHEAD.

Two nationally known growers, one of roses, the other of carnations, were discussing a greenhouse range they had just visited.

"If I had that place, I'd sell half of it. Why? Because I could put everything there is in the whole range in just half the space. The empty benches are not merely waste; they're criminal negligence. The owner of those greenhouses is throwing away money faster than if he walked down the street tossing dollar bills into the air."

Agreeing with his companion, the other replied: "That place illustrates my belief that the most profitable ranges in the country are those of from 100,000 to 150,000 feet of glass. The owner is then looking for a place to put stock, rather than hunting for something to fill empty benches. Intensive culture pays better in our business than in most others."

"I'd be inclined to say that 200,000 to 250,000 square feet was the most profitable," was the response. "The overhead on a place bigger than that is tremendous. On the other hand, the waste on some smaller places is just as tremendous."

The most profitable size of range is not the point. That varies in each person's opinion. But the waste in many greenhouse establishments, large and small, is extremely important. It will pay you to take an afternoon off some day to ponder just the one question, "Am I using all the space I can to the best advantage in my houses?"

DON'T DO IT ALL YOURSELF.

Many a florist has built up a thriving business of good size from a beginning so small that he himself performed every duty about the place. The first help he hired was of the type that required his constant direction. And from that day to this he has been in the habit of carrying the whole business on his own shoulders. He assumes charge of the utmost detail and never finds a moment free. He reads of many ways to aid his sales, but he hasn't time to try them. He hears of means of improvement, but he can't find a moment to investigate. Vacations or holidays are unheard-of. He hasn't even time to be sick. If he is, the business meantime goes to the dogs, and if he dies, his widow, instead of receiving a regular income from an established business, is lucky if she can raise a fair amount by selling it.

Don't try to do everything yourself. Divide responsibility. Put some of it on a head clerk, if you have a store. Let your chief helper, if you haven't a foreman in the greenhouses, take charge of part of the work there. Find out the special fitness of each person in your employ and give him or her something to answer for. It may not be much at first, but if you don't break them in gradually, you can't put the whole burden on them sometime when you'd like mightily to get away to a convention.

The proprietor of a not large store is fond of giving his employees titles. Everybody on the force, though they number but half a dozen, is "head" of something or other—sales floor, stock room, delivery department, etc. Each one is anxious to carry more responsibility, and none could be enticed away by a competitor by the offer of a couple of dollars a week more as a mere clerk.

Cultivate responsibility in your employees and you will win their loyalty and gain for yourself time in which to consider those things to which you've never been able to give a minute before.

STILL OTHERS HELP US.

Apparently all people have to do to be talked about is to talk about themselves a while. The florists' trade has been talking about itself and about its flowers and the public has heard almost enough to do the rest of the talking itself. For instance, read this leading paragraph to three-quarters of a column which appeared in the New York Garment News, a newspaper devoted to the clothing trade, March 16:

"The flowers that bloom in the spring are having much to do with the case of properly presenting merchandise, according to display men and others in New York city. They declare that linking merchandise with beautiful flowers, blending the call of the spring with the lure of the merchandise, has an almost miraculous effect in sales promoting. The general floral atmosphere being utilized by the stores is accentuated by the offerings of the city's florists, who are stacking Easter plants before their shops."

There is a suggestion as well in this paragraph as to the recognized growing importance of flowers as an accessory in other lines of business. Florists will do well to cultivate their use in this way among their business neighbors.

WORKING BOTH WAYS.

Some people think the measure of the success of a business is its ability to earn money, but in the long run the money-making ability of a business is measured by ability to please its patrons. In the newspaper business there are two classes of patrons to please, but please the readers and the advertisers are sure also to be pleased. Like this:

Am writing to thank the editor of the Greenhouse Heating Department for his plan for heating our house. We followed it in detail and it is extremely satisfactory. In fact, we want to thank The Review in general, for until we obtained the first copy we did not know of many of the best sources of supply. With the aid of your paper we expect to build up a good business.—Wm. C. Smith, Newfield, New Jersey, March 8, 1921.

The other side of the story follows as a matter of course:

Will say we never had better results from anything than from our recent ad in The Review. We had calls from every part of the U. S. and are shipping stock everywhere.—Tipton Nursery, Inc., Little Rock, Ark., March 12, 1921.

If you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising you can be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

OBITUARY

Arthur J. Bauscher.

Arthur J. Bauscher, president of the Bauscher Bros. Floral Co., Freeport, Ill., died in a Rockford hospital early Thursday morning, March 17, as a result of a self-inflicted bullet wound. The cause of suicide is attributed to unrequited love. Mr. Bauscher was well known in the trade and was considered quite wealthy. The firm's greenhouse range covers 100,000 square feet. It was started by his father, John Bauscher, in 1887 and rapidly grew to its present size. Arthur J. Bauscher had been president of the firm for the last ten years.

Mr. Bauscher was born in Stephenson county thirty-three years ago. He had been married, but his wife died July 5, 1920. Two children, Arthur Harrison Bauscher, aged 5, and Delavan Prael Bauscher, aged 6, who reside with their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Prael, at Freeport, survive him, as do his mother, four brothers, George, Lester, Clarence and John, Jr., and one sister, Mrs. Florence Burchkardt, all of Freeport.

Mr. Bauscher was a thirty-second degree Mason, being a member of Tebala temple, and was also a member of the Freeport lodge of Elks.

The funeral was held Saturday afternoon, March 19.

Stewardson Brown.

Stewardson Brown, curator of the botanical department of the Academy of Fine Arts and vice-president of the Germantown Horticultural Society, died at his home, 20 East Penn street, Germantown, Philadelphia, Monday, March 14, after a long illness. He was 54 years of age. Phil.

John F. Hayes.

The death of John F. Hayes occurred at the Westbrook hospital, Portland, Me., March 11, after a long illness. For many years Mr. Hayes conducted a greenhouse and retail store and was well known in Westbrook. He was 66 years of age and leaves a wife and one son. The funeral was held from the home, 78 Rochester street, March 13. Burial was at Woodlawn.

Willis E. Hamilton.

Willis E. Hamilton, well-known florist of Belfast, Me., died at his home, on Franklin street, March 10, after a long illness. Mr. Hamilton was born at Swanville, Me., March 22, 1857. He leaves his widow, one son and one daughter. The funeral was held from his late residence, March 12. Interment was made in Grove cemetery.

Mrs. Elizabeth K. O'Connor.

Mrs. Elizabeth Kidde O'Connor, widow of Timothy O'Connor, who was for many years preceding his death in 1915 one of the leading greenhouse men and retail florists of Providence, R. I., died at her home, 87 Barnes street, Saturday, March 19, after an illness of a few weeks. She was married in Providence May 14, 1861, and is survived by two sons, William H. O'Connor, manager of the greenhouses belonging to the estate on President avenue, and Timothy L. O'Connor, who has charge of the retail business on the corner of Union and Fulton streets. Mrs. O'Connor was well known throughout the city and was a liberal contributor to every philanthropic and benevolent movement. W. H. M.

Max Aronson.

Max Aronson, one of the best known and most highly esteemed salesmen at the Boston Coöperative Flower Market, died March 13 at Boston, Mass., after a short illness. The deceased was attending to his duties as usual on the preceding day. Mr. Aronson, who was 42 years of age, came to America from Russia twenty-eight years ago. For some years he operated a flower stand at the Crawford House, near Scollay square. A few years ago he went to the Boston Coöperative Market as salesman for Anderson Bros., of Woburn, E. P. Matson, of Reading, and other growers.

Funeral services were held from his late home, 21 Holbrow street, Roxbury, March 15.

The deceased leaves a widow and two children. Two brothers and two sisters are in America, and his father is in Russia. W. N. C.

Jacob T. Schoaff.

Jacob T. Schoaff, aged nearly 91 years, head florist at the Glen Oak park conservatory, Peoria, Ill., since it was opened twenty-five years ago, died March 11, at his home, 1504 North Monroe street, Peoria, Ill., after an illness of six weeks.

He was born at Williamsport, Md., July 3, 1830, and went to Peoria about seventy years ago. For many years he followed the occupation of stencil cutter and engraver.

When a conservatory was opened at Glen Oak park about twenty-five years ago, he became head florist and held that position until sickness compelled him to relinquish his duties six weeks ago.

He is survived by his widow, one daughter, one granddaughter and a great-grandson. Funeral services were held Sunday afternoon, March 13. Interment was in Springdale cemetery.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

With a few days of warm spring weather, the supply of flowers has increased largely, meeting a demand that has not increased in proportion, although it is better, consequent upon lower cost of material in a few lines. Tulips and roses show weather effects and clearances are not easy. Quantities of Darwin tulips are arriving. Other tulips are moved with difficulty at a low price range.

American Beauty roses are in better supply and prices have gone down. Hybrid teas do not show any material decline. Much open stock is in evidence and iceboxes tell a story.

Carnations are plentiful and move fairly well. Laddie sells at a somewhat higher price than other varieties, owing to the limited supply.

The supply of cattleyas is smaller than usual, but the quality of the arrivals is not of the best. Gardenias continue in large supply. Lilies are plentiful, with the prospect of a good supply for Easter. Lily of the valley is somewhat poor in quality.

The supply of miscellaneous flowers is increasing. Spanish iris is coming in and moves slowly. Sweet peas are arriving in tremendous quantities and are hard to clear. Cut primulas move slowly and dephiniums, mignonette, myosotis, stocks, pansies, violets, calendulas and wallflowers meet a moderate demand. Narcissi move slowly. Shrub flowers are arriving in the usual quantity at this season, Deutzia Lemoinei being the latest arrival. Retailers are busying themselves largely with plant stock, which appears to be in good shape for Easter.

Various Notes.

Adolph LeMoult has commenced business in his new quarters, at 51 West Twenty-eighth street. After May 1 the store on the Bowery, occupied for so many years, will pass out of existence and all business will be transacted at the new address.

Arthur Cowee, the gladiolus grower of Berlin, N. Y., was a visitor at the flower show. He has been an assemblyman at Albany for six years and was able to divulge much information as to matters pertaining to horticulture engaging the attention of the legislature.

Dean & Campkin is the title under which a new concern has gone into the seed business, at 19 Park place. Both members of the firm have for some time been connected with the establishment of A. T. Boddington, on Chambers street. J. H. P.

Alex McConnell, on his European trip, was last month registered at the Ritz hotel, Paris, after having visited Cannes.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

Business improved steadily as last week developed and at the close of the week there was a much more optimistic feeling than had existed during the days of slow demand. It is commented that city business is dull, that the buyers do not need much stock and that they persist in shopping for what little they want. With supply somewhat exceeding the demand, they are able, sooner or later, to find all the flowers they need at prices which looked extremely low to the growers. The absence of activity locally is attributed to the low death rate; there is comparatively little funeral work being done. In the first place, the death rate has been little more than half what it was last year and, in the second place, people who spent $10 for a design last year are spending $5 now. Otherwise the retailers do not call business unusually dull.

The shipping trade has been more than the mainstay of the market; it has been its life. There are more buyers calling on the Chicago market now than at any other time in the history of the trade. Whether or not orders are large, an immense amount of stock is sent out of town each day. As a rule the out-of-town buyers want first-class flowers. They have found that cheap stuff does not pay. It is more work to handle the shipping trade than it is to sell the flowers locally, but the man who wants good stock carefully handled usually is willing to pay a fair price for it.

Although the demand grew steadily last week, it did not keep pace with the supply of flowers. The weather was more like May than March, and it is feared that a good many flowers were marketed last week which should have contributed to the Easter supply. This is particularly true of bulbous stock and lilies. There was no shortage of anything, and the fact that the large receipts were moved so well is a cause for congratulation and a reason for confidence in the aggregate of the Easter business.

Plenty Stock after Easter

You can count on plenty of stock at Amling's after Easter. Keep pushing—the spring is the most profitable season for all Florists who work to sell. Quality is fine in all Amling's Flowers—but prices are not high. After Easter we expect values will be so good the public cannot refrain from buying wherever Amling's flowers are shown.

At the end of last week there was a good flow of Easter orders and most of the men in the wholesale market came around to the opinion that Easter is going to be better than fair. By March 18 it became difficult to buy lilies. Few were flowered in pots this year and the pot stock that looked good was picked up some time ago; indeed, many of the growers oversold and have been breaking the news that they could not fill orders in full. By the end of last week most of the wholesale houses had as many orders for cut lilies as they felt safe in promising. As the end of the supply came into sight prices stiffened; 30 cents was asked on any orders taken March 19 and the prediction was made that the market will be 35 cents for any good lilies offered toward the end of this week.

There is some difference in the situation of individual growers and wholesalers. Some of them have more or less of certain items, but on the whole it looks as though there will be enough flowers so that all orders can be filled except for lilies. The weather will be a factor. March 19 and 20 were almost summer days; then the temperature fell. The heat was pushing the stock along too fast; the change was beneficial, in that it held the flowers back a little and restored their crispness and quality.

The buyers were a little slow in placing Easter orders. Toward the end of last week mails became heavy and there was a flood of requisitions March

21. After thinking it over, a large percentage of the buyers have placed orders for the same quantity of stock as last year. Some have bought more, but no great number have bought less. In the aggregate the number of orders and the quantity of stock called for booked up to March 31 was about the same as up to that time last year. Every wholesaler knows of many buyers who are still holding off. They must send orders before the end of the week and a big run of late business is expected. Nearly every wholesale house has made unusual preparations for handling the last-minute demands, which it is thought will be a more important factor than in any recent year. The general idea is that there will be enough flowers to fill all orders and most of the wholesale houses will be open until noon on Easter Sunday, to supply the city trade and to take care of out-of-town buyers who need stock for Monday.

Bulb Forcers Prepare Contract.

Dissatisfaction with the prices they paid for bulbs last year and with the results obtained from forcing them this spring has caused the members of the Chicago Bulb Forcers' Association to determine to purchase only on their own terms this year. A good many have signified their intention of markedly reducing their plantings. Those which they do order will be bought only if the seller will sign a contract which Chairman Peter Pearson and his attorney have drawn up. By this "memorandum of agreement" the seller and the purchaser bind themselves to agree to the following conditions:

1. These stipulations, terms and conditions shall be and at once become binding upon the parties hereto, irrespective of any and all terms and conditions submitted by the seller which are in conflict herewith.
2. All goods are purchased f. o. b. shipboard, Rotterdam or Amsterdam, Holland, plus actual cost of containers and marine insurance on shipment.
3. All bulbs are purchased for the purpose of forcing in flower earlier than at their natural time for blooming, when not forced. It is therefore understood and agreed between the parties hereto that all bulbs are sold for the flower they produce, and further, that the purchaser will not be required to pay for any tulip or narcissus bulbs that fail to produce standard flowers under normal forcing conditions.
4. The seller hereby agrees that all goods shipped in excess of this order, or goods of the same variety, but smaller in size than ordered, are not necessarily a part hereof, but may be rejected by the recipient at his option. In event such goods are tentatively accepted and are planted, the question of fixing the price on such goods shall be left entirely to recipient, and such goods shall not be subject to list price as quoted.
5. Purchaser must notify shipper in writing within reasonable time of any known defects in goods received.
6. All bulbs used to fill this order are guaranteed to be free from disease and decay.
7. This order not valid unless signed by both parties or their representatives.

Growers Hold Sweet Pea Night.

Sweet peas were the feature of the exhibition at the Hotel Randolph Thursday evening, March 17, at the meeting of the Commercial Flower Growers of Chicago. They were exceedingly good stock, all of them, as were also the vases of other flowers of miscellaneous kinds that were shown. George J. Ball's array of vases looked especially fine, and included the new variety Annette, a splendid cerise that is particularly brilliant under artificial light, where other pink varieties appear to less advantage. This received a certificate of merit. Hans Jepsen's vases included one of 100 sprays of Zvolanek's Rose, on remarkably stiff, straight stems averaging fourteen inches in length. One would have to go far to find better grown stock, if, indeed, one could. He also exhibited some exceedingly fine General Pershing freesias. Henry Wehrman, who read a short paper on sweet peas, printed on another page of this issue, gave evidence of splendid results from the methods he advocated by several vases of various varieties. G. Swenson showed four fine vases. A. E. Hunt & Co. displayed excellent annual lupinus and yellow and white daisies of Mr. Hunt's own strain, as well as a vase of an attractive blue daisy.

The judges, George J. Ball, A. Hunt and William Duntemann, rendered the following report:

Exceptionally well grown vase of Zvolanek's Rose sweet peas, exceptionally well grown General Pershing freesias, and Sweet Peas Blue Jacket, Melody and Bluebird, by Hans Jepsen, Maywood.

Well grown stock of Asparagus Sprengeri, by Henry D. Neve, Des Plaines.

The chief matter of business was the passing of a resolution giving the support of the growers of the association to the wholesalers in the latters' collection, from the buyers in the Chicago market, of one per cent on all sales of their flowers. This proposal was warmly debated. H. V. Swenson, secretary of the Allied Florists' Association, was present and outlined the plan proposed for making the assessment upon growers and retailers cover all transactions in this market. The wholesalers, upon obtaining the assent of all of their number to the plan, would give bond of $1,000 each, to be forfeited upon proof of laxity or absence of uniformity in collections. Since practically all growers are contributing, it is proposed to extend the assessment of one per cent to all retailers who buy here, as a service, or advertising, charge. A petition in Mr. Swenson's hands showed the names of seventy-five retailers, some of them not before members of the Allied Florists' Association, who are desirous of making such assessment uniform on all buyers of cut flowers, including street venders and department stores.

R. J. Windler suggested that the growers petition the authorities at Washington to add Holland bulbs to the list of those items now prohibited importation. Bulbous stock, he said, has not proved profitable to the growers of it in the last two years, it is responsible for spring gluts and it competes with American-produced flowers to the detriment of the latter. He believed that the present administration would consider such action as in line with its general tariff policy and that the arguments which the growers might use effectively to gain their point were numerous. Peter Pearson confirmed Mr. Windler's statements regarding the unprofitableness of bulbous stock and announced his own determination to largely reduce his plantings another a retail florist can most intelligently buy Cut Flowers through the use of our MARKET LETTERS by having direct connections with just what is in the market "IN and OUT" of season?

With such direct information a retail florist knows whether the market is "ON CROP or OFF CROP," whether the demand for any one particular variety of flower is on the "SHORT SIDE" of the market or whether it is in heavy supply.

Since it is a part of your business to know the quality of every flower you buy and its market value, you then know what the cut flowers are going to cost you at the time your order is written.

Various Notes.

Bassett & Washburn have counted the panes of glass broken by hail in the storm of March 7 and find that it figures out just a little over 106,000 square feet of glass. The hail insurance is at the rate of 7 cents per square foot, so that the Hail Association will have a bill of just a little more than $7,040. It constitutes the second largest loss in the history of the organization, that of C. P. Mueller, Wichita, Kan., holding the record. Bassett & Washburn's loss on stock has been slight. The plants were not badly cut by the falling glass and the weather following the storm was mild. The holes in the glass were closed by cutting pieces of muslin just a little larger than the broken panes and tacking it from sashbar to sashbar with a cleat of thin wood to hold it in place. More than 50,000 of these pieces of muslin were put on in ten days. Reglazing began at once. It will be a long and expensive job. Because of the scattered character of the breakage and the necessity for removing the glass with care to avoid damage to the plants below, the glaziers are charging 13 cents per pane for replacing the glass. The labor bill alone, therefore, will approximate the amount of the hail insurance.

steamer to New Orleans and home by way of Memphis. On the way they called on some of their trade connections, but kept as far from business as they could. Eric Johnson, whose interest is in cut flowers, went to Chestnut Hill, near Philadelphia, to visit the Beauty growers, Myers & Samtman. He was greatly pleased with the new rose there, American Legion. Myers & Samtman are planting this largely, for cut flowers, and will participate with the originator, Edward Towill, in its dissemination. American Legion is distinct in color, cerise, and has received numerous awards at eastern shows. It has attracted visits from several western growers and Mr. Johnson believes it will be widely planted here when stock becomes available.

The funeral of W. W. Barnard, which was held March 16, at Bethany Union church, at Washington Heights, was largely attended, and the high esteem in which he was widely held was evident by the profusion of flowers. Henry R. Singler and A. Lange, as well as other florists of the city, furnished beautiful wreaths and other tributes. Among those who attended the funeral were Leonard Vaughan, S. F. Leonard, Peter Hollenbach and John Steinmetz. Rev. Clyde McGee, pastor of the Bethany Union church, to which Mr. Barnard belonged, gave a most touching address on Mr. Barnard's Christian spirit and his devotion to the church.

Returning from St. Louis on St. Patrick's day, M. C. Wright carried in his pocket two contracts for Lord & Burnham houses there. At Charles Meier's range, at Webster Groves, will be added two semi-iron, 32x150 feet, and one semi-iron, 28x50 feet. Joseph Witek, sometimes called "the Max Schling of St. Louis," will have built a curvilinear iron-frame conservatory as a show house in connection with a splendid store to be erected a few doors from his present site, 4748 McPherson avenue.

At the Art Institute the Woman's National Farm and Garden Association is holding a spring exhibition of architecture, applied arts and landscape design, March 8 to April. The rooms are appropriately decorated with tubbed evergreens, potted tulips and hyacinths, ferns and other foliage plants, contributed by the E. Wienhoeber Co., the George Wittbold Co. and the Henry Wittbold Co. A lecture on "Design and Planting of Home Grounds" will be given March 30 by F. A. Cushing Smith and Mrs. Ralph E. Milman.

Sam Pearce passed another milestone last Sunday. He was born March 20, 1859.

John J. Walsh seems to have things coming his way. A baby boy arrived at his home Palm Sunday.

Frank Pavel, who has been an assistant to Paul Williams, superintendent of St. Adelbert's cemetery and manager of the Niles Florist, is starting in business for himself in Norwood Park. He has placed his order for a Randall refrigerator and work bench.

Bert Cole has joined the staff of George Wienhoeber.

John J. Healy is opening a new flower store at 339 Austin avenue, with refrigerator and other fixtures obtained of the A. L. Randall Co.

The Van Buren Florist was fortunate in obtaining the use of a vacant store two doors west for an Easter overflow.

J. C. Nielsen has returned from a business trip through the south, to remain until after Easter, when he and Mrs. Nielsen will again take the road in their car. Mr. Nielsen was at Tupelo, Miss., soon after the hail storm struck there. He says he never saw a more complete wreck than was made of the houses of the Tupelo Floral Co., nearly every pane being broken. The spring stock was badly cut up.

The truck of the E. C. Amling Co., in the hands of an unauthorized driver, ran amuck March 19 in the congested loading court beside the store. A locality which has had many excitements seldom has experienced a livelier time while it lasted. Only one man, a passer-by, was injured. The company is fully covered by insurance.

Guy French returned last week from a trip to the Pacific coast which occupied nearly five months. He found few florists with any serious complaint to make and booked an order nearly every place he called.

A. T. Pyfer & Co. have rebuilt and enlarged their icebox to provide for the steadily increasing quantity of stock handled.

Lincoln park has an exceptionally fine Easter flower show, the work of W. J. O'Carroll, head gardener. There is a big collection of lilies splashed with azaleas, rhododendrons, cinerarias, deutzias, hydrangeas, roses, primulas, orchids and bulbous stock. The show is attracting many visitors.

Visitors.

With Easter only a few days away, there have been many visitors in the Chicago market during the last few days. Most of them were buyers.

Miss M. Tierney, successful, progressive proprietor of the Bills Floral Co., Davenport, Ia., devoted March 19 to Easter purchases and spent Sunday with friends. She says business steadily has been good and she expects it to continue so.

Earl Mann, of Richmond, was here last week as the representative of the Florists' Hail Association to inspect the Bassett & Washburn and other losses caused by the storm of March 7. The breakage at Greggs Station is estimated at 50,000 large lights.

Miss Kate Harris, of the Flower Shop, Memphis, was here last week on her usual Easter errands. The Flower Shop

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

List prices give little idea of the real condition of the market for cut flowers from March 14 to March 19. Business was dull. The appearance of some traders from another city who would take flowers from the day before, anything in exceedingly large number, provided they got them at their own price, was an event of moment. It meant the clearance of an accumulation. It was not considered as selling, the sum realized was too small; it was just a good riddance.

This little instance is given to show the condition of the market. Sweet peas and roses were in heaviest supply. Carnations were lighter. Even with the arrivals of improved stock from the south, daffodils were less overdone, although there were enough of them to keep down the price. There were considerably more gardenias. Snapdragon is becoming more and more plentiful. Daisies are a factor. Ten weeks' stocks have appeared. There is a good supply of lilies in all three varieties.

Easter Prospects.

The cut flower market at Easter is strongly influenced by the weather and by the plant market. Given favorable weather and a good demand for the plants that the retailers have bought so generously, there are excellent prospects for a good market.

The Plant Market.

Reports from the many establishments that make a specialty of Easter-blooming plants indicate a heavy demand. Orders are going out in large numbers. Much of the stock is fine. Some is poor. Some will be late. On the whole, prospects are excellent.

Our Boys.

A friend calls attention to an article in a daily criticising the throngs who attended the New York flower show last week for their heartlessness because, while the show was in progress, long rows of boxes brought over from France were being piled on the pier at Hoboken. It was said the show flowers should have been used for our boys who had given themselves for their country.

This is a mistaken view. The idea that national amusement should be given up for prolonged sorrow is wrong. Our boys would not wish it, nor would they wish to have this flower show transferred to Hoboken pier; it would be senseless.

Our hearts have bled for our boys. We have admired them. We have suffered for them. The mere thought of them is like a touch to a wound, causing sharp pain. We are divided about bringing them home. For those that come let it be as quietly and reverently as for those who stay elsewhere.

Berger's.

"Berger's" is the name on the window of the leading flower shop of an influential suburban district of Philadelphia.

BETTER ROSES

We never had a better supply of better varieties than we can offer you at the present time.

If you have no Roses of your own, and there is no reliable source nearby, why not arrange with us for two or three regular shipments of Roses a week? It is well for you to look for your supply where there is a big supply to draw from. If you will carry some of our Roses in stock all the time, you will find that your sales will be increasing.

Our Roses will make money for you.

Real estate experts will tell you that Berger's is situated in the heart of the best location for miles around. Berger's has worked up to this dizzy altitude, slowly and steadily, from a small beginning. History is not the subject of this paragraph, but news of the present. Improvements have just been completed at Berger's that have given the place the impress of refinement for Easter. An ordinary, well equipped flower store has been transformed into a parlor, tastefully decorated, with the atmosphere of commerce hidden away in the background. This atmosphere is provocative of liberal buying. It is hard to draw the purse strings tight when everything about suggests liberality. There is the dainty basket arranged with beautiful color combination in the window, the American Beauties in a tall vase on a table near the door. An exquisite rose bush, a Tausendschoen, is just beyond on another table. Then there are a few pretty vases on the shelves that might go with flowers of certain shades of color. A little farther back is a dainty room with desk and chairs, where writing materials are waiting. There are pretty electric lamps, shedding subdued light on a charming scene. The icebox and the office stand like sentinels in the rear, quiet and unobtrusive.

BEAUTIES

For the past six weeks or more we hardly dared take an order on Beauties—so few of them. Now, we are in strong with good supplies of the usual Burton stock and Burton quality.

Various Notes.

The Leo Niessen Co. is receiving beautiful ten weeks' stocks.

Henry I. Faust, of Merion, has grown an exceptionally fine lot of French hydrangeas this season. Specimens of these plants were exhibited at the City Club March 1, at the Florists' Club's regular meeting. They attracted much attention.

Pennock Bros. have had a wonderful rambler on display in their store this week.

John Beavis and Joseph Beavis, Jr., trading as Joseph Beavis & Son, will plant Premier and Columbia in place of Killarney. This is of especial interest because the Beavis place on Lime Kiln pike has been the last Killarney stronghold. From there came the wonderful Christmas crops that startled the experts two years ago.

The price of lilies this Easter is 20 to 25 cents. It is confidently predicted that good stock will bring these prices.

William Lynch made a flying trip south to insure the safety of a large order sent out by the Philadelphia Wholesale Florists' Exchange.

Samuel S. Pennock will sail for Europe March 26. Phil.

"Shell Crater Farming Over Here and Over There," will be the title of an illustrated lecture given by Hal B. Fullerton, director of agriculture of the Long Island Railroad Co., Medford, N. Y., at the Ambler School of Horticulture for Women, April 5. The lecture is the third of a series of free lectures the first Tuesday in each month. The event will begin at 3 o'clock and afternoon tea will be served. Visitors are cordially invited to share the benefits from these

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The Market.

The volume of business last week was large. The unusually mild weather brought on a great and unlooked-for quantity of stock, the greater part of which was excellent. This has moved well and the business has been steady. There is a fair abundance of all varieties on hand. With this steady influx of stock, there is naturally some surplus, and this is used and disposed of as best may be. The street venders are moving large quantities of this stock, for which fair returns are made.

Roses last week were in fine shape and excellent stock of various grades arrived daily. Quantities of Columbia were seen and were in good demand. They certainly had first place in pink roses in this locality. Ophelia was also in good demand. Premier, Maryland, Crusader, Pilgrim, Shawyer, Hadley, Francis Scott Key, Hoosier Beauty, Ward and Sunburst were all in good supply. Cecile Brunner was also plentiful, with a fair demand. American Beauties were of excellent quality, but there was only a small demand for them. Sweet peas were of varying qualities. The medium and best grades were fine, with good stems, and the shorter-stemmed stock, though good, could only be used for funeral work.

The weather has been quite warm for violets and, unfortunately, they have been poor. There has been a heavy crop of carnations on hand and these, too, have suffered more or less from the warm weather. Orchids and gardenias were in good supply and the demand recently has been good for them. Callas were plentiful and moved at low prices. Acacia was plentiful. Snapdragons were in meager supply. Calendulas were plentiful and sold fairly well. Scotch heather was used quite extensively. Daffodils, tulips, Paper Whites, freesias, mignonette, myosotis, baby primulas and pansies were all in good supply, especially bulbous stock. Pussy willows were plentiful. As far as could be seen, the crop of Easter lilies will not be overlarge.

line of vegetable and flower seeds, as well as farmers' supplies. Charles H. Vick will manage the branch store.

Starky the Florist, of Clifford avenue, reports good business in his locality. The demand has been good, although he finds a decided difference in the business this season, compared with that of last year, which was much heavier.

Alberts the Florist had an attractive window display for the week-end, comprising an advance Easter show of all potted plants. Outside his store window, window boxes of privet and cinerarias were seen, Saturday, March 19.

Horace J. Head made a business trip in Pennsylvania last week. H. J. H.

BOSTON.

The Market.

The cut flower market a few days before Easter is in a healthy condition and not overburdened with flowers. The weather, with the exception of March 19, has been remarkably mild, and this has greatly favored the plantsmen in making their deliveries. Last week business was fairly good and steadily improved near the close. The present week opened with favorable weather and flowers in some lines had a slight upward tendency.

Roses are not yet overdone and are cleaning up satisfactorily. The demand is particularly good for Ophelia, Mme. Butterfly, Dunlop, Premier, Columbia and Hadley. Prices do not show any decided change from a week ago. A better supply of American Beauties is now offered and these are in good demand. Carnations are creeping up a little in price. Last week-end they closed at $6 to $8, and this week $8 is being asked, with somewhat higher prices probable later in the week.

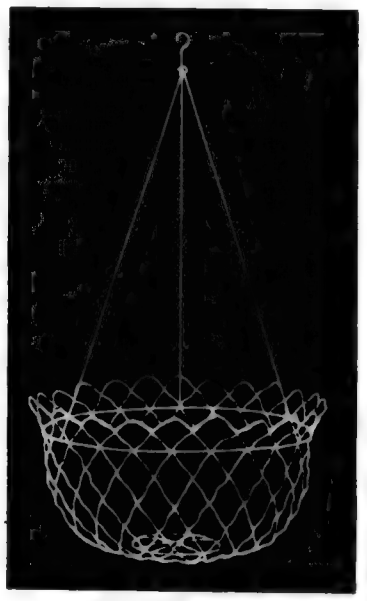
There is no change in violets, 50 cents to $1 being quoted prices. These will be advanced later in the week. Sweet peas are selling well; some short-stemmed flowers go as low as 50 cents to $1, but good flowers make $2.50 to $3. Cut Easter lilies and calla lilies remain about the same. Some good formosum lilies are offered on long stems.



A generous supply of bulbous material is coming in. Fancy narcissi, like King Alfred, Silver Spur, Van Waveren's Giant and Victoria, sell well, while Golden Spur and the coarse Double Von Sion are druggy. Darwin tulips sell well, freesias and Paper Whites poorly. Pansies are abundant and fine in quality. Marguerites are seen in greater abundance and bring $1 to $4 per hundred, according to quality.

For lily of the valley the demand is lacking. Cattleyas are abundant. Trianæ is passing and most of the flowers now coming in are of Schroederæ. There are good supplies of cymbidiums, dendrobes and other seasonable orchids.

Pot plant trade is now remarkably brisk and is being pushed by all the retailers more than ever before. Lilies are evidently in abundant supply and the quality generally is good. Some of the giganteums, however, are dwarf. Roses are available in large numbers, not only ramblers but also hybrid teas, polyanthas and hybrid perpetuals. Tausendschoen remains far the most popular pot rose. The French hydrangeas are abundant and well flowered; so are genistas and ericas. Large quantities of tulips, narcissi and hyacinths in pans are offered, also primulas, cyclamens, cinerarias, polyanthus, geraniums, bougainvilleas and acacias. So warm has the weather been that plants have needed little wrapping.

Club Meeting.

There was an excellent attendance March 15 at the meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club, over 100 members being present. A. K. Rogers reported that he had attended a meeting at the State House regarding a big union meeting of agricultural and allied bodies, which would probably be held next winter in Mechanics building. The president appointed Messrs. Downs, Ryan and Burke a committee to represent the club. The question of a dinner to visitors at the spring show came up and Messrs. Kennedy, Methven and Rogers were appointed a committee to confer with other committees and arrange for the event.

Seven new members were elected. Exhibits included a collection of narcissi, tulips and annuals from W. N. Craig, fine Phelps' White snapdragons from James Methven, and narcissi, carnations, annuals and biennials from James Donald, each being awarded a vote of thanks.

Robert Cameron, superintendent of Castle Hill Farm, Ipswich, gave an exhaustive lecture on "Annuals and Biennials for Use in the Flower Garden," which held the close attention of the members for one and one-half hours. Mr. Cameron mentioned the geographical distribution of annuals, which showed that each continent in the world contributed to our available supply. All the best annuals were named; seed sowing, transplanting and other essentials of culture were described and their use in the flower borders were gone into in detail. Many color schemes were described. To give pleasing effects, blue should be largely used in gardens, also white and pink.

Red and yellow must be used much more sparingly and could, in fact, be dispensed with entirely. Scarlet salvias and other overdone annuals did not appear in the lecturer's list at all. Well known biennials, like hollyhocks, Canterbury bells, foxgloves, daisies, pansies, rockets, honesty and others, were commended and their proper place in the garden suggested, and a list of annuals best adapted for cutting was given.

It was the best lecture on annuals ever given before the club and, after considerable discussion, Mr. Cameron was accorded an enthusiastic vote of thanks. Refreshments were served as usual and the meeting adjourned at 10:30 o'clock.

Flower Growers' Association.

A rather hurriedly called together meeting of New England growers was held at the Boston City Club April 18 and forcible addresses were given by J. F. Ammann and George Asmus. The attendance was not so large as on former similar occasions, due to the shortness of the notice and the near approach of Easter, but what the meeting lacked in numbers was made up for in enthusiasm.

Various Notes.

D. F. Hutchinson, the well known Lexington florist, with his wife and daughter, are making an extended visit to California.

March, 1921, promises to easily break all records for mildness. The mean temperature for March for the last eighty-two years is 32.98. For the first eighteen days of the present month it has averaged 42.5. There could not have been a more favorable season for the plant growers. With Easter coming so early, it was feared that many growers would fail to get their lilies, roses and hydrangeas in on time, but the warm season has entirely changed all this.

Harold J. Patten, of Tewksbury, has returned from a visit to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Patten, at Lakeland, Fla. Carnations at the Tewksbury establishment look remarkably well, the new Thomas C. Joy being splendid.

The salesmen at the Flower Exchange made up a handsome hamper containing fruits, flowers, chickens, eggs, etc., March 18, and sent it per Albert Strumpf and Harry Ward to F. J. McNamara, salesman for the Montrose Greenhouses, who had just reached his home after an operation for appendicitis at the Homeopathic hospital.

William Miller, of Lynn, who is a great globe-trotter and mountaineer, returned March 19 from a six weeks' visit to Porto Rico with his daughter. There are few parts of the world's surface which Mr. Miller has not explored.

William H. Elliott & Sons are so well pleased with Rose Mme. Butterfly that they will plant 16,000 of it at their Madbury, N. H., establishment next season. Ophelia is largely grown and succeeds well and Mme. Butterfly grows well and sells on sight. George T. Elliott says that the first cut of Kaiserin was made at Brighton April 21.

Owing to April 19, the regular date of the next club meeting, falling on a holiday, the meeting will be held April 20. B. F. Letson, manager for Carbone's, Inc., and president of the Boston Florists' Association, will lecture on "Floral Arrangement" and give practical demonstrations.

Several entries for rose gardens have already been made for the Boston spring show, which will open April 6. In addition to roses, there will be large displays of orchids and other seasonable plants and flowers. There will be lectures on roses during each day of the exhibition. Meetings of the American Rose Society, American Orchid Society and National Association of Gardeners will take place during the show.

E. D. Kaulback is building a large and up-to-date garage at Malden, 150x200, two stories high, absolutely fireproof, to accommodate 400 cars.

The New York flower show attracted a large attendance from here, and all agree in pronouncing it the finest show New York has yet staged. The gardens proved potent attractions.

The Boston Sunday Herald of March 20 contained a full page "Say It with Flowers" advertisement, advocating the purchasing of Easter flowers, contributed by leading wholesalers, retailers, growers and sundries men of Boston and vicinity.

The Easter lily crop here is an excellent one. The following firms, among others, have extra fine lots of plants: W. W. Edgar Co., Frank Edgar, A. Leuthy Co., W. T. Walke, Neal Boyle, Wollrath & Sons, Janiten & Kunan, Borowski & Son, Harold A. Ryan, A. M. Davenport, John McFarland, Wm. Hannan & Son.

There was an exhibition of bulbous flowers at Horticultural hall March 19. April 30 there will be a free illustrated lecture on the Arnold Arboretum, by Loring W. Underwood.

Seed stores are now exceptionally busy and having all they can do to keep abreast of orders. Local nurseries are busy shipping and planting trees, shrubs and hardy perennials. Not for years has the ground opened at so early a date and there was never less winterkilling. Local landscape firms are all getting quite busy, also.

March temperature records have shown remarkable variations. March 18 the maximum was 37 degrees. March 20 the temperature was 80 degrees, the

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

The feature of last week was the effort of the growers to hold their stock back for Easter. Some of them have lost out, with the result that there is an unusually large amount of potted stock in the market, especially bulbous stock. With almost the warmest March weather ever known, blooms have literally got away from the growers in many instances, but, nevertheless, the indications are for a supply that will surpass any previous year. A conservative advance in prices will not seriously retard the market, but in case of boosting prices to the sky, as has been done on some of the floral feast days, it is doubtful if there will be the general purchasing public in evidence that the retailers are counting on.

Business has held fairly well for the Lenten season, although there has been a noticeable decline in funeral demands and, with no social functions, the stores have been somewhat dull. March 17, however, there was a slight flurry, especially in the demand for small potted shamrocks and all varieties of green flowers. Several St. Patrick's day banquets and dances helped the week out materially.

Various Notes.

Eugene McCarron was one of the Providence florists at the New York flower show last week.

Ed Brooke, of T. J. Johnston & Co., is recovering from a severe cold that has troubled him for several weeks.

William Marshall, of the Fruit Hill Greenhouses, was among the visitors at New York last week.

Charles Hunt is preparing for a complete overhauling and rearrangement of his greenhouse, at South Providence, this spring.

William A. Bowers, of Washington street, was a business visitor through Connecticut last week, looking for Easter novelties.

Reuben Popkin, doing business as Smith the Florist, has given up his store at 200 Washington street and consolidated at his other store, 67 Washington street.

W. E. Barrett Co. has been sending out the new catalogues of seeds, vegetable, flower and field; garden tools and farming machinery.

E. Carlton Scott, D. Burton Stewart and Isabel F. Scott are the incorporators of Scott the Florist, that was granted a charter last week under the laws of Rhode Island, with a capital of $25,000, in 250 shares at $100 each, to conduct a general florists' business.

M. B. Saunders Co., of 638 Public street, has a retail store on Elmwood avenue, during Easter.

T. J. Johnston & Co., Edward Brooke proprietor, is preparing to remove from 107 Washington street early in April.

William E. Chappell had the decorations for the fiftieth anniversary celebration of Swarts Lodge of Odd Fellows.

Maurice Miller, 637 Westminster street, has taken three small stores in different parts of the city for the Easter trade.

Eugene McCarron, Hope street, has several large wedding decorations ordered for April.

The Boston Store opened a special department for potted plants for Easter last week.

The Pawtuxet Valley Flower Store, G. W. Fraser proprietor, in the Denommee building, Arctic, R. I., reports a big business last month.

Oliver H. Lowe, who has been head gardener at Shadow Farm, Wakefield, for a number of years, will finish his duties there April 1.

Page F. Potter, of the Colonial Flower Shoppe, was in New York last week and attended the big flower show.

Samuel Kinder has been appointed tree warden at Bristol for the coming year.

S. W. Johnson attended the international flower show at New York last week. W. H. M.

JAMAICA, N. Y.

Miller Will Build.

A. L. Miller, president of the S. A. F. during the year 1920, has just placed an order for six greenhouses, each 20x150. The type of construction of the superstructure will be standard steel frame. Heretofore Mr. Miller has built his greenhouses of pipe frame construction, but has come to the conclusion that the increase in cost of the steel frame over the pipe frame is so slight that the florist is warranted in taking the steel rafter construction, which is far more durable.

The houses will be furnished with cypress benches, supported by pipe post legs. The houses will be glazed with double-thick glass, 16x24 inches. Continuous ventilating sashes on each side of the ridges will furnish the necessary ventilation.

Concrete walls, four inches thick, will be built around the sides of the houses, extending about two feet four inches above grade. This takes the place of the usual double boarding and will last indefinitely. The sides of the houses above the concrete wall will be constructed of glass.

The houses will be heated throughout by hot water, circulated through 2-inch steel pipes. A new L. & B. sectional cast-iron boiler will be added to the already extensive heating plant of Mr. Miller.

The contract for the greenhouses has been awarded to the Lord & Burnham Co., Irvington, N. Y. This firm has built all of Mr. Miller's greenhouses.

It is gratifying to note the steady and healthy growth of Mr. Miller's business at Jamaica. Starting with a few houses, he has gradually added to them, and today he has one of the largest, if not the largest, range of greenhouses devoted exclusively to the growing of plants. A constantly increasing number of visitors from among the trade testifies to Mr. Miller's reputation and fame as a plant grower. A visit to his establishment is well worth while, especially just before Easter and at Christmas time.

Kokomo, Ind.—Mrs. Josephine S. Bitler is now proprietor of Bitler's Flower House. W. A. Bitler, formerly connected with the firm, was accidentally shot, February 1, in Brown county. He died inside of an hour. Interment was in the family lot in Crown Point cemetery.

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, H. G. Hastings, Atlanta, Ga.; secretary-treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

A PRECOCIOUS spring is causing counter trade to open earlier than in any recent year.

WHOLESALE seedsmen at Chicago report a heavy run of fill-in orders, indicating that their customers have been doing a good business.

THERE is reported to be a great demand for lawn grass seed, which is explained as the result of the light winter, since lawns seem generally in poor condition.

IN his long experience in the seed business John P. Degnan cannot remember a season so early as this one. It is, he says, two weeks ahead of any other he can recall.

THE birds in the city street and the chickens on the farm are having their annual treat. Voters have received the packets of seed sent as thoughtful remembrances by their congressmen.

THE expectations of a heavy insecticide demand as the result of the open winter have not so far been fulfilled. Though the bugs have appeared earlier than usual, measures against them do not seem to have been correspondingly instituted.

ESTABLISHING a selling service, G. Willett Warren, St. Louis, Mo., is undertaking, on a commission basis, the assistance of seed growers in that field and acting as a clearing house for jobbers in seeds, bulbs, nursery stock and allied lines.

SINCE there are between 200 and 250 Holland bulb salesmen in this country, whose expenses here will, it is said, average between $2,000 and $3,000 for the season, it may be calculated that half a million dollars will be spent to sell bulbs whose total value is about five times that sum.

A. HENDERSON, Chicago, has become a believer in the psychology of the open door. He has demonstrated to his complete satisfaction that to do counter trade a seed store should have its door open to the public. If the store becomes too crowded, close the door for a few minutes and the customers will melt away; open up and business will revive.

THE general belief is that, while farmers have not bought more seeds than usual this season, the city dwellers will do so. For the last several years workers in factories, stores and offices have had too much money and too many lighter pleasures for them to care for gardening. Unemployment is expected to increase the number of kitchen gardens. As a rule this demand goes to the local seed store or the commission box on the grocer's counter.

POPPIES FROM FLANDERS.

Since the poppies of Flanders fields have become symbolical of the sacrifices of the soldiers of the allied armies, to the extent that the American Legion has adopted the flower as an Armistice day token, it is quite appropriate that to deliver free to customers seeds harvested from the poppies growing on French battlefields should become the idea of Howard & Smith, Los Angeles, Cal. An advertisement appeared in a Los Angeles newspaper recently which described the firm's offer, the result of Fred Howard's European trip in 1919.

"Lest we forget the poppies of Flanders field," reads the headline. The remainder of the advertisement runs as follows:

While abroad during the summer of 1919 on a horticultural commission for the French government, the president of our company had an opportunity of visiting some of the recent battlegrounds of France and of viewing the disaster wrought by modern warfare. The devastated cities and towns, the chaos of forest and field, the ruined cathedrals and desolated homes, the homeless wandering aimlessly about with only a bare existence confronting them and all the joy of living gone—all these sights bore mute testimony to the curse of autocracy's ambition.

As he stood in contemplation of this hideous mockery of man's effort and achievement he was impressed, as with a miracle, by the beauty and promise of the poppies everywhere existent. In the abandoned trenches, in the shell holes, in the very ruins of buildings, on the roadside and in the deserted street and on the fields of carnage where the martyrs to a cause gasped an end to earthly life, there, blood red, symbols of the life blood of the heroic dead, grew the poppies.

And thereupon a thought occurred to him, and of that idea was born a mental vision of those same poppies growing in a land where the highest ideals of mankind have birth and fructify; growing along our magnificent boulevards, in beautiful gardens and public parks; growing in memory of the sons of America and the sons of our allies, who gave to the full measure of their devotion that liberty and justice should not perish from the earth.

And of this was born the resolution to crystallize the thought into accomplished fact—but free of any commercialism. Arrangements for harvesting the seed and its shipment to us were undertaken and perfected, but unavoidable delays have just placed us in possession of it. It is now ready for distribution without charge to anyone who regards the ideas as commendable and who wishes to take part in its fulfillment.

As long as the supply lasts the seed will be distributed with the compliments of Howard & Smith.

STERILE PACKING FOR BULBS.

The federal horticultural board has authorized from time to time various packing materials for bulbs. Notifications of such authorizations were given at the time of issuance to the countries and inspectors concerned and were later brought together and published in the service and regulatory announcements for January-April, 1920. This statement from these announcements is now reissued in the form of a horticultural board letter for use in correspondence. Such packing is not authorized for plants other than bulbs.

Amendment 1 to Quarantine 37 provides that the requirement as to freedom from sand, soil or earth shall not apply to sand, soil or earth used for packing the articles enumerated in item No. 1 of regulation 3 when such sand, soil or earth has been previously sterilized in accordance with methods prescribed by the federal horticultural board under the supervision of an authorized inspector of the country of origin, such sterilization to be certified to by the duly authorized inspector of such country of origin. With respect to this amendment, the board has authorized the use of certain materials as fulfilling the requirement of sterilization, such materials, however, to be subject to certification, as to compliance with the required conditions, by the duly authorized inspector of the country of origin. The following substitutes for sterilized soil have been authorized:

(1) Subsoil from Japan—The authorization of the use of subsoil from Japan was based on the results of an investigation made by the bureau of plant industry of the Department of Agriculture, which indicated that unsterilized subsoil contains less organisms than loam or top soil, even after the latter has been submitted to the standard processes of sterilization. The conditions of the use of such soil are indicated in the paragraphs quoted below, which were submitted for approval by Dr. S. I. Kuwana, director of the imperial plant quarantine station, Yokohama, Japan:

"All soil used in packing bulbs to be shipped to the United States to be collected and handled under the supervision of the director of the imperial plant quarantine station at Yokohama, Japan.

"The director of the imperial plant quarantine station will certify that the soil used in packing is subsoil taken from two to three feet below the surface; that it has been sieved, sifted, dried and stored so as to prevent contamination by insects and diseases and that no dangerous insects or diseases are known to occur in the locality where the soil is secured."

(2) Dune sand from Holland.—On representations made by N. Van Poeteren, chief of the phytopathological service of Holland, the board has authorized the use, when properly certified, of dune sand taken from a depth of five feet or more from the surface.

(3) Coral sand from Bermuda.—Similar arrangements have been made for the use of unsterilized coral sand uncontaminated with surface soil for use in packing bulbs shipped from the Bermuda islands when properly certified by the director of agriculture of those islands.

(4) Ground peat.—The use of ground peat for plant packing has been authorized by the board. Peat as commercially mined can be considered as substantially sterile with respect to infestation with plant diseases or other plant pests. For packing and greenhouse use it is dried, ground up and powdered, and in this condition can undoubtedly safely be used as packing for bulbs and its use in such condition for this purpose has been, therefore, authorized.

CATALOGUES RECEIVED.

Naperville Nurseries, Naperville, Ill.—General catalogue of nursery stock, both fruit-bearing and ornamental; hardy herbaceous plants are included; twenty-two pages, printed on lemon-colored paper, with a neat cover of the same hue.

W. A. Toole, Baraboo, Wis.—"Hardy Plants for the Home Garden; My Choicest Selections of Perennials and Other Plants," including "a limited list of the more popular shrubs;" a tasteful 20-page book, in a cream-tinted, brown-printed cover. The name of Mr. Toole's farm, "Garry-nee-Dule," is also used, he says, as a "mark of distinction for varieties of stock of special merit."

Perry's Hardy Plant Farm, Enfield, England.—"Perry's Supplementary Catalogue of Rock and Border Plants," forty-eight closely packed but clearly printed pages, with concise descriptions. In spite of its being only "supplementary," the list is exceptionally wide in its scope, comprising great numbers of new, rare and standard varieties of floating aquatics, submerged aquatics, bog and rock plants, besides the many types that are included in the ordinary collections of hardy herbaceous stock.

Palisades Nurseries, Inc., Sparkill, N. Y.—Two catalogues, general and wholesale, offering perennials, shrubs, vines, vegetable plants and roots, fruit-bearing plants and a few varieties of climbing and rambler roses. The general catalogue, entitled "Palisades Popular Perennials," consists of twenty-four unusually large pages, printed on enameled paper and bound in an attractive black and white cover; at the end is a page of "cultural directions for the perennial garden." Enclosed is a list of seeds of perennials. The wholesale list is condensed to eight pages.

SEEDSMEN'S SERVICE.

Service is the slogan that is sweeping the country today, wrote W. S. Harmon, manager of the seed department of the H. M. Sanborn Co., in the Oakland Enquirer recently. We see as the motto of one of our foremost clubs, "He profits most who serves best," and again, "Service, not self." Everywhere one turns the idea of service in business is being emphasized.

The question is, "What is the seedsman doing about service?" If he is up-to-date and awake he is studying all the improved varieties of flower and vegetable seeds that are being introduced from time to time; he is learning the amounts of seed required to plant a unit of space; the best variety to plant; the proper time for planting; cultural directions; adaptability of soils; fertilization methods, etc., and when the customer purchases only a small 10-cent packet, the seedsman should be ready instantly with all the required information to help the customer realize on his gardening efforts.

"Now," said the amateur, after he had finished explaining the circumstances in his case and stating what he wanted, "which would you advise me to buy—Pacific rye, blue grass, clover, or plant a mixture?" The seed dealer scratched his head. "I wish I knew," he said, "but I am a seed dealer and not an agricultural expert. I have the best quality of all those seeds you mentioned, and I would be glad to sell them to you, but I don't know exactly what you do need."

The disappointed amateur left the store and started up the street. A block up he passed the store of another seed dealer—a young man who had recently come to town and advertised that he wanted the amateurs to bring their planting troubles to him. The amateur entered the store and was approached courteously and promptly by the seedsman, who had a ready and correct answer to all his questions. He then purchased the seeds and went away satisfied. The service of correct information that was ready to be handed to the customer with the goods made the sale.

In buying seeds, one should not only be assured that he is getting fresh seeds of high germinating quality, but also that he is getting correct information as to time to plant, variety to plant, manner of planting, etc., for no matter how good the seeds may be, if the wrong information or no information at all goes with the seeds, even though the seeds themselves may be of high quality, the effort and money will probably be entirely wasted.

The answer to the question, "What is the seedsman doing about service?" is to give correct information when selling his goods. If this is not being done, he is a seedsman in name only.

NAME NEW CLOVER "HUBAM."

"Hubam" is the name given the annual white sweet clover discovered by Prof. H. D. Hughes, of Iowa State College, Ames, Ia., a few years ago, which has been reported as producing remarkable results. The name was suggested by J. W. Nicholson, manager of the seed department of the Michigan State Farm Bureau Federation, and indicates the name of its discoverer and Alabama, the state where it originated.

In the spring of 1918 the Iowa State College sent 100 seeds of the new annual to each experiment station and fifty seeds to each of the larger seed companies in the United States. Excellent use of these samples was made by several of the recipients. The Michigan experiment station harvested forty bushels of seed last fall and next fall will probably have considerably over 1,000. Several seedsmen will have large acreages.

Henry Field, of Shenandoah, Ia., sold several hundred pounds of this seed last year at $16 per pound, $960 per bushel. This year he had about six acres, the seed from which he sold at $5 a pound. He netted over $2,500 an acre. The seed is now selling at $10 per pound.

Hubam clover, since becoming more plentiful, is reported to have established a new record growth, which is ten feet during last season, a period of three and one-half months.

The Market.

The early spring and warm weather have made a strong impression on stock in general. Cut flowers were extremely plentiful last week. Carnations are abundant and the quality is fine at $6 per hundred. Sweet peas are better than they have been this season and are offered in any quantity at $15 per thousand. Bulbous flowers are of good quality and the large supply has been used up at a fair price. Daffodils have flooded the market. Some are being brought in from outdoors, besides the steady flow of stock from the south.

Hydrangeas made their appearance last week and rose bushes and lilacs help to decorate every store.

American Beauties are plentiful and the outlook is for a large supply for Easter. Premier, Columbia and Dunlop are the best in roses. Some fine stock is offered by local growers. Owing to the warm weather, Easter lilies are more plentiful than usual. There will be a large supply of calla lilies for Easter.

Various Notes.

Eight representatives from Gude Bros. Co. availed themselves of the rare opportunity to see the New York flower show.

Most of the flower stores were busy last week supplying quantities of ferns, palms and baskets, which do so much to beautify the Convention hall and make the automobile show a success.

George Shaffer was busy with decorations and funeral work last week.

The stock at the greenhouses of the Washington Floral Co. is in excellent condition for Easter. This firm expects to cut a large number of orchids, as well as many roses and carnations.

Sunday, March 20, was "open house" at the greenhouses of Gude Bros. Co., at Anacostia. Thousands of people availed themselves of the opportunity.

Among the visitors last week were George D. Beaumont, of Seattle, Wash., and Emory W. Brandt, of York, Pa.

Jacquelin Rector & Sons, of McLean, Va., have been bringing in some fine bulbous stock, including Darwin tulips in all colors. G. A. E.

The Market.

At this writing, just one week from the big day, the market is rather quiet. There is plenty of cut stock of all sorts. Owing to the bright and extremely mild weather, some difficulty has been experienced in keeping bulbous stock back, but, fortunately, in the latter part of last week the temperature fell considerably, although the sun was shining every day, so that by careful handling this stock should be in good condition. Plants that will be in are all sold, except, perhaps, cinerarias.

Cut lilies seem, from the way they were coming in last week, to be fairly plentiful and superior stock. Many cut stock orders have already been placed at this writing. Roses are in splendid shape; never have I seen better, and the varieties could not be excelled. Columbia, Premier and Madame Butterfly seem to be the favorite fancy stock, with Double White Killarney, Ophelia and Radiance as old stand-bys. Carnations are in good supply; whites were a little short last week, but it was stated that this was only temporary, and that for Easter there would be plenty of every color; the quality could not be finer, so that from the outlook there will be no trouble about carnations. Violets are plentiful, most of them being out-of-town stock. This means that they are at least a day old when they reach the market, and after they have lost their perfume are hard to handle, except where they are required for funeral work; this is the reason so many find their way to the street.

"Say it with Flowers"

A New Year's Thought

Let us learn to feel the joy in things that are simple and universal—in the beauty of the dawn, of sunset and of flowers. Let us cultivate a feeling of tenderness for all living creatures, from the dumb and patient animals to our brother man. Would you learn these deeper values in life? Study the flowers.

Smilax was one of the scarcest articles on the market last week. Those who had palls to make up were at their wit's end to secure enough, and as there were several large funerals a good deal was required.

All miscellaneous stock was in good

A Cat Story With the Meow Left Out

Sometimes, Suko, the Jap, says things that are very much so. A while ago I was telling him about a mother cat and kittens we had down at our Southampton garage; and how we cut a hole in the door so they could get in and out whenever it was closed.

"Oh, Meester Stumpp," he said; "one hole enough not. You should cut have two holes, one big one for big catten, one little one for little kitten."

When I asked him why the kitten couldn't use the big hole, he looked sort of silly like and said, "Sometimes, Meester Stumpp, I think Suko no tink much and big fool be. After dis, no more advice give things about which Suko no tink much long first."

By heck, says I, Suko, you have learned a lesson, a lot of us never do, if we live to be a hundred.

By next week, maybe, Suko will get off some more good stuff. If so, I'll tell you about it.

Club Meeting.

The Florists' Club held its regular meeting March 14, with a splendid attendance. Several ladies from the Women's Civic League were present to solicit the coöperation of the club in the Flower Mart, to be held at the base of Washington's monument May 12. This is an annual flower occasion in the city, and the idea of the league is to educate the people to use more flowers about the home. The method is to hold ning with his illustrated lecture on roses. Mr. Hill has named the next meeting, April 11, as the day he will be with us. The committee is going to make this lecture an occasion on which Mr. Hill will be able to "Say It with Flowers" to the rose lovers of Baltimore as well as the club members. A large hall will be procured, probably in one of the hotels, and invitations will be sent to every known lover of roses in the city.

A good-sized party left immediately after the meeting for New York to attend the international flower show. Owing to the busy season, not so many took the trip as was expected, but those who went feel that they were more than repaid. "Wonderful" was the expression they used when asked about the show. Those in the party were James Glass, John Rider, W. G. Lehr, Fred Bauer, William Bauer, Robert L. Graham, Jr., C. M. Wagner, Robert W. Johnston and Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Johnston.

The Market.

Stock is excellent and plentiful, and everything is favorable for a big Easter trade. Weather conditions have been so unusual that it would not be surprising to have some outdoor flowers cut within a week. March 17 was registered a temperature of 85 degrees and March 18 was almost as warm. Bulbous stock was never better than now. There is such an abundance of everything seasonable that prices will be advanced slightly above normal. The large plant growers have an excellent crop of Easter lilies. Most of the greenhouse owners have enough for their own trade. The blooms are large and fine, but fewer to the plant than in past years. The large plants show five and

The T. J. Noll Floral Co. enjoyed a good shipping business for St. Patrick's day. Local orders were not in proportion, but there was some activity noticeable for the day.

Among the week's visitors were Mrs. H. L. Hunt, Concordia, Kan.; Leonard Coen, Lexington, Mo.; Frank Stuppy and little daughters, St. Joseph, Mo.

Samuel Murray visited the greenhouses of the Pinehurst Floral Co., at Pleasant Hill, Mo., March 16.

Miss J. E. Murray and Miss Grace Murray were in Pleasant Hill, Mo., March 20. J. E. K.

ST. LOUIS, MO.

The Market.

Conditions in the local wholesale market did not change much from reports of the week previous, notwithstanding that it was only one week before Easter week, with greatly increased receipts in all seasonable cut flowers, especially bulbous stock, which the warm weather forced into bloom. The wholesalers did remarkably well in cleaning up the surplus at low prices.

The retailers had a busy week with funeral work and St. Patrick's day brought out a good day's business in decorations and blooms for entertainments and banquets.

Carnations formed the chief problem for the wholesalers last week. There was an actual glut of them and, in order to dispose of them, all colors in thousand lots were offered at $15 per thousand and in small lots at $3 and $4 per hundred.

The growers' worries were in regard to bulbous stock. The hot weather forced the blooms and the loss in some cases was large. Hyacinths, tulips and jonquils crowded the market, as they could not be held over for Easter, and it looks as though bulbous plants would be somewhat scarce this year for Easter sales.

Roses, too, were many, but the demand kept up well all week and prices on these did not suffer so much. Premier, Columbia and Russell are extra fine stock at present. Ophelia is high in color and so is Milady. In White Killarney, the market has plenty for all demands. A great supply in these varieties is expected for Easter.

Violets are about over. The hot wave took all the life out of them and the few coming in are not salable. Sweet peas are arriving daily in great quantities, from extra long fancies to common short stock. These seem to clean up well at figures below market quotations. Easter lilies are holding at $25 per hundred in small lots and no cuts in thousand lots. There will be plenty for all demands.

Some extra fine stock in tulips meets a good demand. Valley will be in plenty, with no shortage of callas, calendulas, white or yellow daisies, jonquils, snapdragons or stocks. Everything in the line of greens can be had at usual prices. From present appearances, there will be plenty of stock and this Easter will be a record one.

Various Notes.

The publicity committee held a special meeting, March 16, at headquarters, 1316 Pine street. The meeting was for the purpose of looking over the copies of the big Easter advertisements, which began Palm Sunday and are appearing throughout the present week in all the St. Louis dailies. They are the largest and most attractive ever attempted by this committee and should create wonderful business for the retailers.

partment, has taken the position vacated by him.

At the River View Club's trade-mark dance, last week, all ladies attending represented a certain trade-mark or slogan. One of the most attractive was Mrs. Henri Durenberg, of Grimm & Gorly, who used the slogan, "Say It with Flowers."

Joseph Kentham and Charles H. Magill recently opened a store under the name of the Magill Floral Co., at 4025 North Newstead avenue. Mr. Kentham is one of the old-timers and was for many years with Ostertag Bros.

St. Patrick's day green carnations sold better than ever, as there were plenty of white carnations to be had, with the price low, and the green ones were retailed at 10 cents each. In the downtown district everyone was decorated with one or more. Street merchants had a great sale.

H. G. Berning reports, from advance orders on file, that this Easter will be the greatest in the history of his business, for both shipping and local orders.

The Bourdet Floral Co. will, after the spring business is over, start rebuilding all of the old houses and also plan other improvements. Mr. Bourdet's two sons, Andre and Rodger, are of great assistance to him.

week, looking over the wholesale market.

The meeting of the St. Louis district branch of the National Flower Growers' Association, April 19, at Springfield, Ill., should be a banner one. Growers of eastern Missouri and southern, western and central Illinois should arrange their business for this day and avail themselves of the opportunity to meet us. W. J. Hembreiker, chairman of the entertainment committee, promises something doing every minute of their stay in the capital city.

The warm, clear days last week created a world of business for the local seed houses. Capacity crowds at the store of the St. Louis Seed Co. called for extra clerks from the office force. The Schisler-Corneli Seed Co. and the

The Missouri State Florists' Association now has 175 members and expects to add at least twenty-five more before the annual meeting, in August, at Sedalia, Mo. Secretary Beneke has notified all members to assist the officers in building up the membership of the association.

Joseph Witek's busy place, on McPherson avenue, is ready for a large Easter business. Mr. Witek contemplates building this summer just east of his present location. When completed, this will be a most modern building, especially adapted to the florists' needs.

Sanders Nursery Co., on Clara avenue, has a wonderful display of Easter blooming plants in its big show. Oliver K. Sanders, manager, says that this season, so far, is without exception the best his firm has ever had.

make notes of suggestions and criticisms to be brought to the next meeting for discussion.

The McKellar Co. is advertising through the medium of attractive windows, and business has been quite good. Fancy corsages, decorative effects and fancy decorated pots of flowers, nicely arranged, are attracting much attention, as this shop is located at the busiest corner in town, which is the fifth busiest corner in the United States outside of New York.

Several new flower stores opened here last month. The Julia Shoppe, at 77 East State street, was opened March 1. The proprietor, Miss Julia McGannon, was formerly employed by the McKellar Co. She will specialize on corsages and says she has been successful to date. This shop is run in conjunction with the Hartman tea room and, being in the Hartman theater building, should get its share of the corsage work in that locality. Several large designs were made for the Richards funeral at this shop. Although limited as to space, it is nicely arranged.

Flocker's Flower Shoppe was opened Saturday, March 12, with a small line of plants, ferns and cut flowers. Mr. Flocker, though inexperienced, seems to be ambitious and interested in the business. He says he will make funeral work his specialty. The opening win-time of year. For instance, white carnations last year at St. Patrick's day brought 15 cents, while this year the wholesalers got only 8 cents and, at that, just managed to clean up nicely. This is the first time in some years that there have been enough white carnations at this time to go around and, owing to the low price, retailers were able to sell green carnations at 15 cents each, which is a decided drop from other years. Naturally, when the market is in this condition, the grower who produces the best stock gets the best returns.

The weather has been exceptionally warm for this time of year and, from all indications, stock for Easter in the corsage line will be scarce. Bulbous stock will probably be plentiful. Easter lilies are selling at much lower prices than last year.

Retailers this year seem reluctant to place orders for Easter, as everyone agrees that this holiday is going to be nothing but a gamble, since no one can foretell exactly what it will be under existing conditions. If business should compare favorably with last year, there is every indication that there will be a last-minute rush in the wholesale market.

Various Notes.

The Cleveland Retail Florists' Association held an important meeting at the Hollenden hotel, Monday evening, March 14. Several protests were heard in reference to the wholesale florists doing retail work, but, as yet, no definite plan of action has been adopted.

There was an important meeting of the committee for the approaching national flower show, at the Hollenden hotel, March 13, presided over by George Asmus and Herman Knoble.

Alva, Okla.—W. R. Marshall makes no complaint as to business, finding a ready wholesale outlet through Review Classified ads for all stock not neded for local retail trade. A canna ad quickly moved all he had to spare.

Ada, Okla.—As an example of the demand for all kinds of stock in the southwest, the Ada Greenhouses report that a 3-line ad in The Review, costing $2.16 for four weeks, cleaned them out of tuberose bulbs before the season was fairly started.

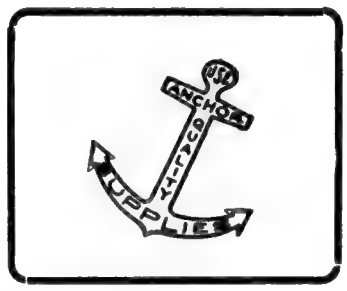
FRAT-M'S

Frat-M's are a great help to florists who make funeral work. They are exact reproductions of the official emblems embossed in gold and the different colors as required by each Fraternal and Labor organization.



The florist is saved time and worry in the nuisance of lettering, as well as the keeping of such a stock of wire frames, and different colored flowers. Just use such flowers as you have and then attach a FRAT-M with paste to the chiffon, or by the hanger that comes for each, as a card, and that is all there is to it, excepting the comment and commendatory talk for the florist.

Just pick out a dozen of the most used from the list following, enclosing $2.00 per dozen, and if they don't make you ten times their cost, return these unused and get your money.

Square and Compass, Chapter, Commandery, 32nd Degree, Shrine, Eastern Star, Royal Neighbors, M. W. A., Maccabees, Odd Fellows, Red Men, Knights of Columbus, K. of P., Moose, Jr. O. U. A. M., B. of R. T., B. of R. Clerks, B. of L. E., Br. of Blacksmiths and Helpers, Eagles.

Just give Frat-M's a trial, you don't have to keep them. We are willing to send them to you and return the money if they don't pay you ten times their cost. Address

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

The Market.

At last writing there was plenty of stock for everyone and prices all in favor of the buyer, but a rain of forty-eight hours' duration had the effect of taking stock off the market and a scramble occurred for flowers. Much of the outdoor stock could not, of course, be gathered, while that which was picked was water-soaked and unfit for shipment. Field carnations and daffodils suffered badly and the flowers that were sent in were a sorry-looking lot. The bright sunshine since the rain has changed all this and it looks as though there would be a good Easter supply. Lilies of good quality will not be overplentiful, the early date of the holiday having caused some growers to apply heat early, thereby damaging the quality of the flowers. It looks now as if there would be a glut after Easter. Prices quoted are reasonable, all things considered. Roses will probably be a little on the scarce side, as the plants have been producing freely all through the season so far and have not had time to recuperate. Those stand-bys, Russell and Ophelia, look the most likely. Indoor carnations are good and about even with the demand. Small flowers and greens are plentiful. There will be a sufficient supply of flowering plants, judging from present appearances.

Various Notes.

The second general meeting and supper of the American Florists' Exchange promises to be an even greater success than the first, the business of the market having gone ahead rapidly.

The sympathy of his many friends was extended to T. H. Wright, of Wright's Flower Shop, upon the death of his mother, which occurred recently after a long illness. Although 83 years of age, she had been bright and in the best of spirits up to within a few days of her death. Mr. Wright's father died about seven years ago.

S. Murata's illness proved to be much more serious than was at first thought and developed into a case of typhoid fever. Although his friends are not allowed to see him, inquiries at the hospital led to the statement that he was doing as well as possible. At the store, owing to the excellent system carried out by a loyal staff, everything is going smoothly in Mr. Murata's absence.

C. A. Brazee, the well known florist and grower of bulbous stock, of Wilmington, Cal., was married recently, at San Diego, Cal., to Mrs. Williams. Even a bad case of daffodil poisoning has not damped his youthful ardor or faded his smile, though he admits it was a painful experience. Mr. Brazee suffers more or less from this every year, during daffodil time.

Some of the finest Darwin tulips seen so far this season were at the store of the California Floral Co. and it is rumored that Victor Swanson, in addition to his known skill as a packer, is developing an excellent flower grower.

Robert Livingston, of Columbus, O., the head of the well known seed firm there, and Mrs. Livingston left this week for home, after a stay in southern California of about two months. Their friend, Albert Knopf, of the Redondo Floral Co., says that both are well pleased with their visit.

Propagation of Erica melanthera and other varieties of heather is going on rapidly and successfully at the Montebello nursery of Roy F. Wilcox & Co. A new batch of E. persoluta is just being taken from the propagating cases and others are about ready. A good deal of young rose stock is being grafted on Manetti and looks well. Large quantities of 6-inch and 8-inch kentias are being shipped, but Roy Wilcox says that before long quantity shipments, except in assorted sizes, will be out of the question, large orders having greatly depleted the stock. Every corner in this big place now is working and Mr. Wilcox feels gratified at the way stock of all kinds is thriving; in fact, the question of room is becoming so pressing that he is making special offers at low prices to clear out certain lines of nursery stock and get more room. It may be noted that these are not old or overgrown plants, but good, marketable stock. He is certainly beginning to reap the benefit of his policy of keeping everything right and in growing condition, no matter what the expense may be.

The "sold-out" signal on Easter lilies was moved from the growing establishment of Walter Armacost & Co. to their store early this week, it being the policy of this firm not to take more orders than can be filled with stock of the good quality for which it has become so well known. Manager Williamson says there are two more large consignments of the new baskets on the way and they will be here in time for Easter deliveries.

of Dutch iris. John Polder says that Rembrandt does particularly well with them at their Montebello nursery, increasing annually, which is fortunate, for there was a rush at the market to get these splendid flowers, quite the best seen there so far this season.

The older sections of the lath houses and greenhouses at Howard & Smith's Olive street establishment are coming down, to be replaced with a landscape planting. While this removes an old landmark, yet the structures had probably outlived their usefulness and did not match up well with the handsome new store and other surroundings. At Montebello, Cal., the wonderful cinerarias are still the center of attraction. Just now they are at their finest and everyone who can should see them. It is no exaggeration to say that there is no finer strain in the country.

The Market.

Carnations are scarce and have usually been sold out within an hour of the market's opening. Roses are good, but, like everything else in first-class stock, they are somewhat scarce. Sweet peas are coming in, but they are still high. Freesias are good, but not particularly plentiful. Such luxuries as the early anemones are not to be found in the open market, for they are bought up before reaching it. The one flower that abounds is the Emperor daffodil, but it is nearing the end of its season and will be scarce by Easter. While violets are less plentiful than they were a week or two ago, there are still enough to go around and they will probably last over Easter. The market is cleaned up every morning by 8 o'clock, and, while there is not a noticeable shortage, the somewhat cold and gloomy weather has retarded stock sufficiently to make good stock none too plentiful. There are many fruit blossoms, the crab-apple being the latest to come in. If it were not for the various fruit and ornamental sprays, there would be a shortage of stock for decorative purposes. Pussy willows and acacias are near the end of their season.

Various Notes.

Mrs. Mazey, of Minneapolis, Minn., paid a flying visit to San Francisco, and B. M. Joseph helped her to make the most of her one afternoon here by driving her over the Ocean, Presidio and Twin Peaks boulevards, to show the fine views of the Pacific ocean.

Martin Reukauf is at San Francisco, representing H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia. Mr. Reukauf says business is good on the Pacific coast, especially with the florists.

Many of the florists in towns in the interior are busy lining up their Easter stock. One of the early visitors to the nurseries around the bay was Fred Moore, of Sacramento, Cal., who ordered a quantity of goods at the MacRorie-McLaren nurseries, which have been specializing in rhododendrons and cinerarias. Manager L. J. Capurro, at the Powell street store of this firm, recently put some of the first Parrot tulips in the window and these created much curiosity.

Mrs. Ruth Ellis is the latest acquisition to the staff of Julius Eppstein, of the St. Francis Hotel Flower Store. Mrs. Ellis was formerly with the American Florist, on Polk street.

J. A. Axell is doing well with some new baskets he is displaying. They come in sets of three and four and the stands are of assorted heights, the baskets that surmount them being interchangeable. The lowest of the stands is not too tall for a table decoration, while the highest is fitted for aisle decoration, when the largest of the three movable baskets is put on it. Mr. Axell is having the baskets painted to suit the wishes of his retailers and a set has just been finished for Podesta & Baldocchi, in "Harding" blue.

H. A. Avansino, manager of the E. W. McLellan Co., states that the firm has been cutting from 50,000 to 60,000 daffodils a day, but their days are numbered. He expects to have a pretty good crop of roses for Easter, together with plenty of violets.

Field View of Howard & Smith's New Non-lateral Branching Aster Peach Blossom

NOVELTIES AND SPECIALTIES FOR 1921

HOWARD & SMITH'S NEW GIANT NON-LATERAL BRANCHING ASTERS.

It is needless for us to extol the qualities of this new strain of asters, for they are better than any other strain in America today for florists' use. They combine a flower of mammoth proportions with a long stem practically free of any laterals. These asters are the result of several years' work beginning with the crossing on non-lateral branching types of the Peony-flowered class and those of the Crego type. These asters have come to stay and the strain will prove a money-maker for anyone who grows it. They are something different.

Peony Flowered Peach Blossom (incurved). A superb new color, flowers of enormous size, stems 18 to 24 inches.
Per trade packet, $2.00.

Peony Flowered Light Blue (incurved).
A magnificent shade, flowers 4½ to 5 inches.
Per trade packet, $2.00.

New Giant Peach Blossom (curled).
A magnificent new type with curled and twisted petals after the style of the most ultra-refined Comet type with flowers borne erect on long stems non-lateral in character.
Per trade packet, $2.00.

New Giant Dark Purple (curled).
A fine companion to the foregoing flowers, enormous in size with petals beautifully curled and twisted.
Per trade packet, $2.00.

HOWARD & SMITH'S NEW GIANT PLUMED CELOSIA.

A splendid new class of feathered Cockscombs of the Pyramidalis type. The plants attain a height of three feet and over and are surmounted with immense gracefully feathered plumes remarkable for their great size and splendid range of colors. The plants are easily raised from seed and make ideal pot plants for stock work. The colors range from yellow through various shades of rose, carmine, crimson, bronze, etc., and a batch of plants grown from seed will prove remunerative.
Per trade packet, $1.00.

NEW ANEMONE FLOWERED DAHLIAS.

Unquestionably one of the most distinct breaks which has occurred in cultivated plants in modern times. The blossoms are replicas of the Marguerite Mrs. Fred Sander or Pyrethrum roseum in shape. The ray petals are broad and usually of a different color from the center, quilled petals of the flower. A feature of these new dahlias is the fact that they can be reproduced about 80% true to type from seed.

Plants dwarf in habit with the blossoms borne well above the foliage on strong wiry stems. The color variations are marked, ranging from purest white through the various shades of rose, pink, orange, bronze, carmine, purple, yellow, crimson, etc. Spring sown seeds will flower the same summer. For basket work, or any choice cut flower arrangements they are unrivaled and their keeping qualities are remarkable. We predict their universal use as a choice cut flower.

Per trade packet, $2.00.

GYPSOPHILA ELEGANS GRANDIFLORA.

A much improved strain worthy of your attention as a catch crop in the greenhouse with much larger flowers than those of the older types; an H. & S. selection worth a trial.

Per trade packet, $1.00.

DELPHINIUM BELLADONNA.

The strain we offer is the true, skyblue, perpetual flowering type which is rapidly becoming an indispensable subject in all florists' establishments.

Per trade packet, $1.00.

GERBERA JAMESONII HYBRIDS.

A strain of superb quality containing all colors from purest white to darkest crimson with all intermediate shades of orange, salmon, yellow, rose, carmine and others.

featured by F. C. Jaeger & Son, the white variety having attracted much attention as an Easter decoration. Easter orders were booked early by the firm and in sufficient quantities to suggest that there is no slump from last year.

Potted Easter lilies began coming to the United Flower & Supply Co. from the nurseries in the middle of March. I. Inque, of this firm, states that there are enough lilies to take care of all orders.

Domoto Bros. have been shipping Easter lilies steadily since the initial consignment went out, March 12. "We have plenty of lilies for cutting in the nurseries," said M. Domoto. "Potted lilies we are sending all over California."

Enomoto & Co., who recently had a big shipment of colored mats from Japan, expect to be cleaned out before the end of the month, on account of a run of orders. "We thought we had enough mats to last until July, when the next shipment is due," said Mr. Enomoto. A sample shipment has been received of attractive bamboo fiber baskets, colored.

C. Hattori, a partner in the Growers' Cut Flower Co., after four years of experimental growing, has succeeded in developing a deep salmon-pink carnation of the Enchantress Supreme family. The nurseries now have 5,000 plants of this carnation in bloom and there is a ready market for them.

The Charles C. Navlet Co. finds that the spring season this year is fully on a par with that of 1920. Among other seasonable flowers, coming in from the firm's San Jose nurseries, are plenty of good carnations.

Over 2,400 lilies of the valley, in addition to dozens of orchids, were used by Brown & Kennedy in a pall for the funeral of the late Mrs. Elden, prominent member of the Alsace-Lorraine Society. French organizations were present in force and the floral decorations were much appreciated.

George P. Wagner, of Joseph's, has been specializing in pansy baskets, with trailing wreaths of pansies, for table decorations. Owners of oriental rugs and draperies are asking to have the pansy colors harmonize with the room furnishings.

Podesta & Baldocchi are showing the first "silk" peonies in big window baskets, and are attracting attention thereby.

patrons, her thoughts flew to something edible. However, she quickly revised this idea; made a wire frame and used white carnations, pressed in till they looked like icing; took real little roses for candle-holders and made conventional wreaths of little flowers that resembled sugar wreaths. She finally evolved a flower cake that made the mouths of the guests water, it looked so exactly like the real thing.

The workmen can only toil at night on F. Bertrand's flower store, in the Palace hotel, on account of business, so the transformation into a conservatory is still going on. Mr. Bertrand has been busy with special orders, including the St. Patrick's day affair at the hotel. M. M.

SEATTLE, WASH.

The Market.

Untoward weather conditions, which promised anything but an increase in outdoor stock for the immediate future, prevailed here last week. The general situation has remained entirely unchanged, with a good demand in ordinary channels and sufficient funeral work to keep stock cleaned up in good order.

A sudden cold spell marked by a light snowfall occurred, and this promises to reduce materially the deliveries of outdoor jonquils. Most retailers are agreed that there is plenty of other spring stock coming along now, so that this loss need not cause any inconvenience to the trade at this time.

The first of the potted hydrangeas for the new season put in an appearance last week and these met with a ready sale, although the stock is still a little lacking in color. There is a growing belief that there will be more nearly a full crop of Easter lilies ready for the holiday than had been first expected. More potted stock made its appearance last week, but there has been only an indifferent demand for these as yet. Tulips are apparently a little more popular than hyacinths at this time, and primroses have been moving freely as a result of the splendid offerings. Varicolored cinerarias are also drawing attention.

There has been a small increase again in the local cut of roses. Ophelia is one of the commonest varieties again, although Columbia still remains the leader as to size of offerings. Ward is light and the same is true of Butterfly, while Crusader is about as before. The usual deliveries of potted climbing roses for Easter are appearing and some finely flowered specimens of ramblers were shown during the week. Russell is the best of the current deliveries from California, with one large lot of White Killarney brought in for a special decoration.

The local cut of carnations continues spotted, one or two growers bringing in as nice stock as could be asked for, while other lots are not holding up as well as should be the case. This has led to some buying in Portland and Spokane, and Yakima valley growers are also delivering some stock at this time.

Various Notes.

One local grower is showing a distinct novelty in the form of a pink, dwarf Easter lily never before grown in this country and originated in Japan. This is of an orchid-pink shade and it cannot be forced. While being shown in a small way already, it cannot be offered in commercial quantities until next season, it is stated.

Albert W. Ramage has been added to the staff of the Pinehurst Floral Co. and arrangements are being made for additional space. Last week's activities included several out-of-town weddings.

The new greenhouse of the Beall Greenhouse Co., on Vashion island, has been practically completed. This concern is showing some fine hydrangeas, the stock being sturdy enough to need no staking, while the colors are excellent.

The annual convention of the northwest division of the Rotary Club, held here last week, brought a great deal of business for the Woodlawn Flower Shop, Harry Crouch being the Rotary florist for Seattle. Al Moore developed an attractive window, with a sunken fountain set in the foreground, surrounded by spring flowers and fruit blossoms, while at night the effect was heightened with colored lights playing on the blooms. The background was made of specially painted scenery representing a marine landscape.

A. C. Aldridge, of the M. Rice Co., Philadelphia, was a trade visitor last week and left for Portland, Ore. J. P. Schmal, representing the General Bulb Co., of Holland, also completed his visit and entertained a number of florists at dinner before leaving. Mr. Sisler, representing Andrew Haxton & Co., of Yakima, Wash., was another trade visitor.

The Orpheum Floral Co. has been showing some fine bulbous stock.

The Hollywood Gardens is offering the best home-grown sweet peas since the season's opening and also some excellent hydrangeas. There has been a much better demand for violets. Lilies at the greenhouses will be ready for Easter.

F. J. Bell has been bringing in some of the best late narcissi and will turn his benches to vegetables as the indoor stock clears up.

J. E. Lamble, of L. W. McCoy's, has returned from a stock-buying trip to Portland, Ore., and reports most stocks as coming along splendidly. This firm's greenhouses are supplying some fine white orchids and a much increased cut of sweet peas.

George Rosaia, of Rosaia Bros., spent a recent week-end at Portland, going over the stock situation there. A window featuring a reproduction of the garden of Eden in a shadow box, connecting with the advertising on "Forbidden Fruit," a film which was being shown at one of the local houses, made an unusual advertisement. Special placards calling attention to the value of flowers were used with this window display.

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

From the nurseries at Painesville, O., comes the uniform report of excellent business at this time.

The Citrus Nursery, Brooksville, Fla., owned by Frank L. Ederington, was sold recently to F. A. Minor, of Alberta, Canada. Mr. Minor has also purchased 505 additional acres of land in the vicinity.

In most sections this has so far been the warmest March on record. The planting season has opened up much earlier than usual. Less winter-killing has taken place this year than for many seasons, it is reported.

The holding up of building operations on account of high prices is affecting the city nurseryman. "While there is so little building being done, our business cannot be expected to be normal," says Alvin E. Nelson, of Swain Nelson & Sons Co., Chicago. "Nevertheless, it is at present nearly ninety per cent of normal."

Nurserymen in general have never before shipped so much nursery stock at this time as they have this year. This is due to the continued warm weather, which lasted over two weeks. Many of the older nurserymen do not welcome such weather, as it has started trees and shrubs into growth too early, which will make it much more difficult to pack stock later on with good results.

Sigmund Tarnok has severed his connection with the firm of Tarnok & Co., Augusta, Ga., and in future the business will be conducted under the name of the Fruitland Nurseries, successors to the P. J. Berckmans Co., Augusta, Ga., J. G. Bailie, president. This firm has retained the services of the most experienced superintendent, foremen and propagators of the P. J. Berckmans Co. It will specialize in ornamentals and has now in nursery and propagating houses a large stock of these. In addition to the nursery business, a thoroughly up-to-date landscape department will be maintained.

CALIFORNIA NURSERYMEN.

Executives Meet.

March 12 the executive committee of the California Association of Nurserymen met at Los Angeles, Cal., those present being: Roy F. Wilcox, president; H. W. Kruckeberg, secretary; Fred H. Howard, chairman of the committee; J. E. Bergtholdt, Newcastle; J. W. Barnicott, Newcastle; Max J. Crow, Gilroy, and J. D. Meriweather, Ontario. E. B. Washburn, the remaining member of the committee, was unable to be present, as he is not in the best of health and was at Palm Springs. The meetings of this committee will be held quarterly, as it is the opinion of the association that there has not been enough continued interest taken in the past to get results. Successful conventions have been held, but between these there has been a want of continuity in interest. Indeed, barring the excellent work of Secretary Kruckeberg, who is always indefatigable in his efforts, there has been little of anything done between conventions.

Roy F. Wilcox, the new president, intends to keep everyone working and, it need hardly be said, is not going to be behindhand himself. Besides the regular meetings of the executives every three months, there will be special meetings called whenever necessary. For instance, a meeting is to be called at San Francisco in the near future, when further developments are expected regarding the big show to be held at Exposition park, Los Angeles, this fall.

Must Broaden Scope.

For some time past it has been felt that this organization was for the benefit, mainly, of growers of fruit tree stock, but this is not to be so in the future. Ornamental stock growers, seedsmen and florists will all be considered, as well as the fruit men. In short, the organization will be for the benefit of all and all will be expected to help the good work along.

A campaign is on foot for a membership of 500 and the most important point of all, the sinews of war, will be well taken care of, the present members having pledged themselves to support a sustaining fund to be used for the good of the trade generally. The annual subscriptions are arranged pro rata, as follows, and are in answer to ex-President Bergtholdt's recommendations in his annual address, at Fresno, Cal., last fall:

Business for year.	Subscription
$ 10,000 and under	$ 5.00
10,000 to $ 15,000	10.00
15,000 to 25,000	20.00
25,000 to 50,000	40.00
50,000 to 75,000	60.00
75,000 to 100,000	100.00
100,000 to 150,000	150.00
150,000 and over	200.00

These subscriptions are, of course, in addition to the annual dues.

Los Angeles Chosen.

It will be noted that the convention and annual meeting scheduled for Pasadena, Cal., have been changed to Los Angeles. This was partly on account of lack of suitable hotel accommodation at the former city at that

"All trees treated have been benefited immensely"

The tribute of Wm. A. Clark to Davey Tree Surgery

Wayne, Pa.

The Davey Tree Expert Co., Inc., Kent, Ohio.

Gentlemen: Recently your Philadelphia representative, Mr. U. L. Throm, called to look over the work done on this estate by your firm five years ago.

It gives me real pleasure to testify as to the quality and permanency of the work, the splendid growth of the cambium over the fillings, and the high grade of the men who did the operating.

All of these trees treated have been benefited immensely and are now in a very thrifty condition.

Sincerely yours,
WM. A. CLARK, Mgr.

Every gardener and estate superintendent has a most important work in the saving of the trees under his care.

time of year and also on account of the lack of a suitable place for the big show. Exposition park, at Los Angeles, is ideal for such a purpose and there is no doubt a great show will be staged. Here, again, all sections of the nursery trade will be represented and ornamentals, roses, chrysanthemums and all varieties of stock in the florists' business will be shown, besides the fruit and trees, supplies and sundries that are always shown. Citrus fruits will be special features, but the big idea is to get everything in the way of California produce that is obtainable at that time of year.

Saturday evening, March 12, President Wilcox invited the committee and some of the leading men in the nursery trade to a banquet at the Athletic Club. About twenty-five guests were present. A most enjoyable meeting and dinner was the result of the gathering and a closer feeling was formed between the members present and the new president, whose term of office is likely to be an important epoch in the California trade.

HAS YOUR STATE A TREE?

Rhode Island's Problem.

Although Rhode Island has no officially designated state tree, a red oak has been shipped across the continent to Los Angeles, Cal., by order of Governor Emery J. San Souci, as the representative of the state's forestry. The young tree was selected by David A. Clark, of Fiskeville, R. I., from his stock at the Red Oak Nursery and donated to the state.

Recently Governor San Souci received from the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce a letter requesting the state of Rhode Island to donate to Los Angeles park a sample of its most particularly favored tree, which, through act of the general assembly or by general consent, or otherwise, might have become known as the state tree. Every other state was going to do it, Los Angeles said.

Governor San Souci liked the idea.

Mr. Dunn wrinkled his brows, but he couldn't think. "If there is any, they must know down at Kingston," he said. He went down to Kingston and saw Prof. A. E. Stene at the Rhode Island State College. "What is Rhode Island's state tree?" he asked Professor Stene.

BOBBINK & ATKINS, Rutherford, New Jersey

nounced the historical pronouncement. In polite and professional language he stated the faculty's equivalent of "There ain't no such animal!"

Secretary Dunn recovered from a feeling of alarm and thought how disappointed the people would feel at Los Angeles. "If we don't send them a tree, they may think that Rhode Island is churlish or jealous. If there isn't any state tree for Rhode Island, what ought it to be?"

The Red Oak.

Prof. Stene's first guess was the white pine. But at once he thought of the "Pine Tree" state's "Don't step on me." Mr. Dunn adduced a still better reason—the white pine blister. Because of federal precautions against spreading that disease, no white pine could be shipped to the Pacific coast. So the white pine couldn't be Rhode Island's tree.

The white oak was the professor's next suggestion. But immediately the professor himself negatived this. "It takes too long to grow," he said. "I have a hunch that New York state is going to send out a poplar and in two years Rhode Island will be in the shade."

They decided upon the red oak and Mr. Dunn gave these reasons: "Because you find its offshoots everywhere. Because it isn't the biggest tree in the forest, but it doesn't take a back seat from any of them. Its skin is of bark, but its heart is of iron. It is complacent and lovely all summer, but with the coming of winter and the thought of loafing it gets red. It isn't ornamental, but it stands on its own feet, earns its own living, will have commerce with no parasites and asks pity or coddling from no one."

And so a red oak was consigned to the care of Los Angeles park as Rhode Island's pride, with the consecration of the state's executive, the state college and the state board of agriculture.

GRAFTED ROSES

Five hundred thousand this year and half of them sold! The old, worn-out section won't do for the days that are to come—days when production will tell the story of profit or loss. Labor is plenty. Dig in and replant. We can still supply the best that can be produced, before-the-war quality; better shipping conditions, better deliveries than we have had in the past few years. Get good soil under and good roofs over our grafted roses and watch things grow!

Let us know the verdict!

ATTENTION, FERN BUYERS

At this time you are no doubt considering buying or placing your orders for Ferns. We desire to call your attention to the fact that we specialize in ferns, and are prepared to supply you with as fine stock as can be grown. Why not prove to your own satisfaction what the quality of ferns bought from us will give? While the production capacity of our plant has been trebled during the past year, and we are in a position to take care of a large volume of business, yet we would advise the large buyers to protect themselves by placing orders early.

SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH.

The Market.

Little change was noted in market conditions last week. It was expected that a slight lull in business would be felt the week before Easter, but such has not been the case; in fact, last week was busy. Funeral work has been heavy.

Rose prices are the same as the week before. Ophelia, Columbia, Hoosier Beauty and Dunlop sell at $8 to $25 per hundred and Shawyer, Wasatch and White Killarney, $6 to $15 per hundred. Carnations are in good supply, but clean up well at $3 to $6 per hundred. Laddie is becoming quite popular and all offered move readily at $12 per hundred. Sweet peas are still plentiful, but warm weather has affected the growth, and nearly everything offered is short-stemmed. Prices remain unchanged at $1 to $2 per hundred.

Daffodils and Darwin tulips are in good supply, and move well at all times.

Easter.

Easter orders are now coming in heavily and it looks as if this year would surpass last, as far as moving stock is concerned. Prices are considerably lower and it will take a big volume of business to offset the lower prices, but many retailers feel confident that their sales will be as large as, or larger than, last year.

An example of how the growers are faring is plainly shown in the case of the Miller Floral Co. This concern grows more Easter lilies than all other growers in the state combined. March 19 the company reported that its Easter lilies were all sold and many other items were gone the first of this week.

AGERATUM, Fraserii

We feel confident in offering Ageratum "Fraserii" to our customers that we are offering what will be one of the most valuable acquisitions to the bedding plant line in recent years, that is a blue, a decided blue, that would be continually in bloom. In our trial grounds last summer "Fraserii" attracted more attention than any other bedding plant. It only grew about eight to ten inches high and was covered the entire season with what can easily be classed as immense trusses of flowers, as many of them were over 2½ inches across, while the individual flower would be ⅞ of an inch in diameter. The plant spread about 12 to 15 inches across. It can easily be used with Alternantheras as a border plant.

Being an early bloomer and dwarf, compact grower, it makes an excellent pot plant. 2-inch, $1.00 per doz.; $ 6.00 per 100. 3-inch, 1.50 per doz.; 10.00 per 100.

DAVIS & STEINER COMPANY, Morrison, Illinois

PITTSBURGH.

The Market.

Stock continues to be plentiful, especially in tulips and daffodils. The supply of roses and carnations just about meets the demand. Each day finds the carnation supply exhausted before the orders are filled. The quality of the stock is the best seen here this season. Prices have been exceptionally reasonable during the last week, but there will be a small advance the first of the week. Easter and calla lilies have been somewhat in oversupply and each day finds some on hand after the close of business. Sweet peas have been arriving in fairly large quantities and have been moving at reasonable prices. Violets are coming in daily, but, with this warm weather, the quality is not the best. Orchids and lilies of the valley are moving slowly. There has been a great demand during the last week for Asparagus plumosus.

Business in general is considered good among the majority of the retailers, several having reported a number of large funerals during the last week. The stores are all beginning to prepare for Easter, and it is believed that this will be one of the largest Easters in the history of the business. Plants are exceptionally plentiful and all the growers report a good crop of cut flowers. Prices quoted by the various wholesalers are considerably lower than they have been for several years. The supply departments of the local wholesalers have been exceptionally busy during the last week getting out rush orders for Easter.

Various Notes.

Clarence Phillips, of the McCallum Co., has been in Chicago attending the Marshall Field & Co. opening, which is the event of the year for display work. Mr. Phillips is treasurer of the local display men's association.

The Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co. has distributed among customers and friends announcements of a visiting day at the greenhouses at Bakerstown, Pa., Thursday, March 31: It is hoped that the customers and friends of this company will take advantage of this opportunity to see its large variety of plants under glass. Street car accommodations are being arranged for those florists who do not have machines.

During the last week the McClements Co. has been displaying in the window attractive decorations with fruit and flowers. H. J. H.

Greenhouse Heating

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the editor of this department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. When information is desired regarding the capacity of boilers, or the amount of radiation required for a greenhouse, the needed temperatures should be stated in the inquiry, as well as the amount of glass in the side walls, and the dimensions and general arrangement of the greenhouses. It is often helpful, also, to have a sketch showing the location of the houses.

LEAN-TO IS PREFERABLE.

I want to build a propagating house. The structure is to be about sixty feet long and I have the material on hand. Would you advise a lean-to or an even-span roof? It is to be erected on the north side of a house running east and west. If I build a lean-to, the bars I have on hand will allow a house ten feet wide and eight feet high. What about the heating and benches? I am using steam at present and have a sufficient amount to heat the new house.

E. C. S.—Mo.

While an even-span roof is ordinarily preferable for a propagating house, in your case, where it is to be built against the north side of another house, with a wall at least eight feet high, we should advise the use of a lean-to roof, since it will be easier to handle the water. On a lean-to roof there will be less danger of damage by ice from the higher roof. In either case, the water from the higher house should be carried off by means of a gutter.

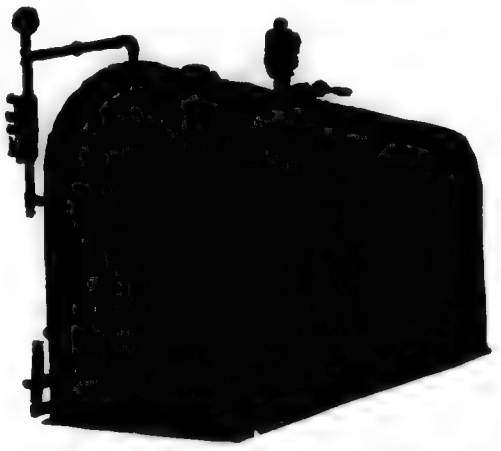
We should plan for two propagating beds, with a walk in the middle of the house. It will be found more convenient if the beds do not exceed forty-two inches in width.

Nothing is said regarding the temperature desired, or the classes of plants to be propagated, but it will probably answer, provided there is no glass in the south wall, if a 1½-inch main is carried along the south wall and connected at the farther end of the house with two coils, each containing three 1¼-inch returns. Place one coil under each of the benches and provide valves so that one pipe in each coil can be shut off.

TO CHANGE HEATING SYSTEM.

Intending to change my heating system from hot water to steam, I should like some information regarding the number of flow and return pipes required to hold a temperature of 55 degrees in weather 15 degrees below zero, using 2-inch pipe for flows and 1¼-inch pipe for returns.

There are five houses, each 40x175 feet, with 6-foot side walls, three feet of glass and three feet of cement. Would two 40-horsepower boilers do the work without being pushed, burning soft coal? What size of chimney would be necessary to obtain a good draft?



P. E. R.—Mass.

The relative number of flows and returns will depend upon the number of coils desired. We should not care to use less than four 2-inch flow pipes in a house of the size described, and, in addition to the above radiation, we should use twelve 1¼-inch returns, thus secur-all over the country in their fight to keep down fuel costs by making air-tight, gas-tight furnace linings that insure permanent fuel economy is the great service given by

PLIBRICO
FURNACE LINING

Successful business does not tolerate waste. Instead, it is the result of employing only that equipment which gives the maximum in service with minimum maintenance expense.

By stopping all leaks, heat waste up the chimney is prevented and combustion is improved.

PLIBRICO, Devil's Putty, is applied with a mallet and smoothed with a trowel, and is applicable to any or every type of boiler, for new settings or for patching old settings. Withstands temperature up to 3100 degrees F.

No mortar can fall out—no joints in which clinkers can lodge.

PLIBRICO is delivered only in steel packages of distinctive appearance as shown below.

Warehouse stocks carried in all principal cities for immediate delivery.

A trial will convince you. Guaranteed satisfactory. Write today for illustrated book on Furnace Building.

Plibrico

is easily applied and when vitrified makes any furnace absolutely air-tight. The absence of joints makes the lining last longer; in fact, it often outlives two or three ordinary brick settings. Think what that saves in trouble and expense for frequent repairs.

ing four return coils, each containing three 1¼-inch pipes. At the most, not more than five flows should be used, and with them ten or eleven return pipes will be required.

The above is with the understanding that each house has two exposed side walls. For a house without exposed side walls the number of returns may be reduced one pipe.

The amount of radiation in the five houses comes up close to the capacity of the two boilers for economical operation in the coldest weather mentioned, but with careful firing there should be no difficulty in maintaining a temperature of 55 degrees when it is 15 degrees below zero, if the houses are well built.

A chimney twenty inches in diameter and forty feet high would be desirable. By building a chimney a little more or less than forty feet, the diameter of the chimney may be slightly decreased or increased, respectively.

MARION, O.

President Harding's front porch campaign put this city on the map, and B. C. Blake, the leading florist, was at times swamped with orders. Many large decorations were executed for various parties and dinners given by the many organizations and committees which made pilgrimages to Harding's front porch. B. C. Blake, Jr., went to Washington with the special train of Marion admirers to attend the inauguration. His father, who has been in San Francisco for some time, will return soon. This company has been receiving violets and freesias from California in fine shape. It expects business conditions here to remain good. J. W. T.

To banish scale is simple if you go about it in the right way. When you realize that every pound of scale in the boilers is wasting many pounds of coal a day, then you'll appreciate the service and the savings will give to you. By removing scale already formed, and by preventing new formation, SCALINE cleans the boilers. When once cleaned they stay clean.

Here's how it is done. SCALINE is injected into the boiler and because of its great affinity for hot metal, is attracted instantly to the metal and works its way through cracks in the scale to the boiler plate. When it comes in contact with the metal the hard scale breaks up and is pried loose by its irresistible expansive force.

New scale cannot form because of the film SCALINE forms on the metal surface which prevents scale-making substances from adhering.

As an investment for saving fuel no scale preventive can beat SCALINE, as we can prove to you as soon as you send in your order for a barrel. It is backed by a reliable guarantee which protects you against any losses.

Write today for full information on the three great Thrift Products—SCALINE — SEALRITE — COATRITE. It will pay you to know them.

The Market.

Funeral work is quite plentiful, with a good supply of flowers to make up elaborate pieces. The spring trade is beginning to make itself felt. The outlook for a large Easter trade is excellent and there is a large supply of plants and flowers of all kinds. The weather is unusually warm for March.

Various Notes.

Mrs. J. C. Elspermann has a new Ford delivery car. She has an excellent line of plants for Easter. Her funeral trade is heavy and she has also a good call for spring plants.

A visit to the greenhouses of the Blackman Floral Co. was an interesting one. It was a sight to see the grand Easter plants, especially the large batch of Easter lilies, which are just right. Immense quantities of bulbous stock, also, are just prime. In cut flowers the roses and carnations are especially fine. Premier and Columbia are in grand shape, as well as White Killarney. Carnations, big flowers on long, stiff stems, are about the best ever had here.

The Evansville Nursery Co. and the Thornburg Nursery Co. are extremely busy planting out shrubbery.

Otto Kuebler, at Kresge's, is showing a nice line of plants. E. L. F.

Congress Heights, D. C.—Theodore Dietrich plans to discontinue his florists' business.

Dayton, O.—Rolf Zetlitz announces the appointment of Harry A. Bunyard as manager of production of the Zetlitz Floral Products Co. E. E. Edgecomb is sales manager. The Zetlitz Floral Products Co. operates the greenhouses and store formerly conducted for many years by W. G. Matthews, and also the range of the Miami Floral Co. The Zetlitz interests at Lima and Ada are conducted by a separate corporation.

HAIL HITS KENTUCKY.

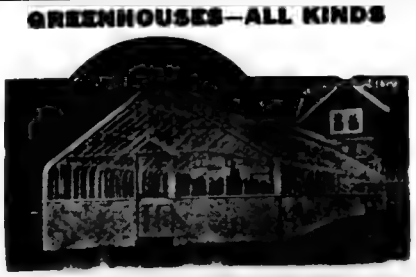
Not only did Chicago florists suffer from hail recently, but Paducah, Ky., was a victim, and here the damage reached $50,000, the florists being heavy losers. The storm occurred March 15, accompanied by a downpour of rain.

Schmaus Bros. suffered the heaviest loss, the damage being estimated at $10,000; that is, to the greenhouses. The damage to the flowers is unknown, but it may reach an additional $5,000, it is said. Henry Schneidman stated that almost every pane of glass was broken, as some of the hailstones were as large as hen's eggs. Neighbors rallied to his aid and loaned tarpaulins and other coverings to protect the plants. However, if a cold spell hits Kentucky the entire stock will undoubtedly be ruined, as it will take several weeks before a sufficient amount of glass will be secured.

The greenhouses owned by John Van Aart were also damaged considerably, but the estimate here is only $500. The greenhouse of G. R. Noble was practically demolished.

ST. LOUIS RETAILERS MEET.

The St. Louis Retail Florists' Association meeting, which took place March 15, was a lively and enthusiastic one.



There were fifty per cent of the members present and some good discussions on the coming Easter business and the past St. Valentine's day trade were held. Among the various subjects in discussion were delivery and overhead expense.

The plan of the association is to increase the membership to 100 per cent and each member is requested to bring a new member for the next meeting, which takes place the second Monday in April.

All retail florists are requested to attend the next meeting and become members of this association.

FIRE AT GREENSBURG, PA.

Thousands of dollars' worth of Easter plants were destroyed when a fire took place at the greenhouses of Joseph N. Thomas, at Greensburg, Pa., March 10. William Henderson, night watchman at the greenhouses, attempted to draw gasoline from a tank by lantern light. An explosion followed. Henderson, although badly burned, fought the flames until he saw that they were beyond his control. He then summoned help. Men of the neighborhood worked with lines laid from a private reservoir, pending the arrival of the fire departments from Jeannette and Greensburg, Pa. After the unavailing use of chemicals, water was pumped from a nearby creek and the adjoining structures saved. The total loss is not known.

Pulverized Sheep Manure

Packed for Retail Trade

In addition to the general line of fertilizers, we are offering to the florist pulverized sheep manure in paper-lined bags and leak-proof packages for the retail trade. The only objection to the odor and dirt caused in the handling of this fertilizer is absolutely overcome by the manner in which our particular brand is packed.

The 5 and 10-pound packages have a blank space so that the dealer may stamp his own brand or firm name on the package. This should serve as an inducement to the purchaser, as this gives him a standard package ready for distribution.

In 50-lb. bags, 40 bags to ton, per ton	$42.50
In 25-lb. bgas, 80 bags to ton, per ton	45.00
In 10-lb. cartons, 6 cartons to case, per case	3.00
In 5-lb. cartons, 12 cartons to case, per case	3.00

The Market.

The market is brisk and there is a good outlook for Easter business. Stock of all kinds is to be had at a low price, which is not always the case shortly before a holiday. The retailers report a good week in funeral work, which helped to take care of most of the cheaper stock, but fancy stock does not bring the price it should.

Roses still arrive in large enough quantities to take care of the demand, the most popular varieties being Premier, Madame Butterfly and Columbia. Crusader seems to be of inferior grade, because the stem is weak and the flowers small. Carnations are, as usual, holding their own and the same can be said of sweet peas.

Bulbous stock continues to arrive in large quantities, especially daffodils. March 19 it seemed that every available conveyance brought outdoor daffodils to the market. Consequently, there was a glut and the price was low. Lilies, both Harrisii and calla, are to be had without any trouble and are moving fairly well at $15 to $20 per hundred. Other stock, including snapdragons, calendulas, mignonette and daisies, is available in quantity.

Various Notes.

C. E. Critchell reports a large week in supplies and southern smilax. Some supplies were shipped as far as California.

Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Gillett have returned from the south, where they have been for the last month with their nephew, Clarence Ohmer, at West Palm Beach, Fla. Mr. Gillett reports a wonderful trip and business through the south fairly brisk.

Mrs. Louis H. Kyrk, who has been ill for some time, showed a marked improvement last week.

H. W. Sheppard reports a good week in the sale of ferns and blooming plants, as well as the usual other business. Mr. Sheppard left the city a few days last week, for the purpose of making preparations for Easter and early spring business.

Arthur Becker, of the Avondale Floral Co., is to be seen daily in the market, which indicates that this firm is doing a brisk business.

Julius Baer reports a good week in funeral work and also corsage orders.

The Cincinnati Cut Flower Exchange has been receiving some excellent tulips. G. H. K.

TORONTO, ONT.

The Market.

Business was fair last week and there was plenty of stock and a steady demand for design work. St. Patrick's day helped business considerably. All the florists sold a great many shamrock plants, the window displays of these being particularly attractive.

Club Meeting.

The Toronto Retail Florists' Club held its regular meeting Monday, March 14. In the absence of President S. A. McFadden, the chair was occupied by Vice-president J. J. Higgins.

There was a large attendance. Little business was done, the evening being devoted to a box social. The auctioneer was Mrs. Moore, of the firm People's Florist, and she proved to be a good magnet to draw attractive bids. Those decorated with flowers sold for large amounts.

Following the sale there were dancing and an impromptu program followed by the refreshments.

Various Notes.

John H. Dunlop entertained the Toronto florists at his greenhouses at Richmond Hill March 16. A large number took the trip, as cars were furnished by Mr. Dunlop. Things at the greenhouses are in fine shape for Easter. The rose cut will not be so large as the florists would like, but the lily crop is abundant and the blooms are fine.

TOTTY'S 'MUMS.
A familiar slogan for nearly twenty years. The stock we offer you today is absolutely free from the dreaded midge, having been propagated entirely from plants that have been grown outdoors all summer, lifted in the fall and housed solely for propagating purposes. It costs more to raise stock this way, but the results obtained more than justify the cost. The following varieties we can offer for immediate delivery in 2½-in. pots; planted out in a bench now and stopped, they will give you quantities of fine, clean cuttings during the next four months.
Remember we guarantee this stock is ABSOLUTELY CLEAN!

25,000
TRANSPLANTED CYCLAMEN SEEDLINGS.

In the best commercial colors, consisting of light salmon, dark salmon, wine red, Christmas red, Rose of Marienthal, Daybreak, white with pink eye, and white; and the best strain on the market, throwing some blooms the past season with us that measured 3 and 4 inches from tip to tip. We will give you 65 per cent salmon if you prefer.

Our method of growing transplanted seedlings is entirely distinct from others and gives them the most vigorous root growth you ever saw. No plant will have less than 4 leaves and from that to 8, and you must expect to get stock that will please you.

Let us put you in line so you can grow some of the big stuff for next Christmas.

PELARGONIUMS

PELARGONIUM EASTER GREETING.

It is with no little pride that we make our appearance again in this column with 25 brother florists. It was March 6th, 1914, that we shipped the first of over 300,000 Easter Greeting and its sports. Lest you forget, we will remind you that we were the first to offer this sterling novelty in The Review. Then we were alone; now we have lots of company. Then we risked our reputation on this plant, and now, after 7 years, you say whether we made our statements too strong, or whether our reputation has suffered.

For three years we grew it in large numbers, then we slackened, thinking, naturally, that the demand would be supplied by the 25 others then offering it. We have been growing it largely since, but you must know that a great deal of trade would come to us automatically, as the introducers, and the high quality of stock sent out and our perfect system of packing.

It is very gratifying to us to note that the present prices of other dealers are higher than our introductory prices of a strictly new acquisition. This is very unusual.

We have now in preparation a fine lot of 4-in especially for Mothers' day. These should be shipped to you about April 20th. How many of these do you want at 20 cents? We have a fine lot of 3-in. for you to shift for Mothers' day. These should be in your houses as soon as possible. How many do you want at 11 cents? Also a fine lot of 2¼-in. These should be fine for Memorial day if shifted soon; these go at 8 cents. How many for you?

Our reputation is back of this stock. The packing will be perfect, and no extra charge. What more do you want?

PETUNIAS

PETUNIAS.

Diener's Ruffled Monsters, single. The largest and most beautiful ruffled variety of Petunias in existence. Ruffled Monster seed in separate colors, pink, red, variegated, white, red with black center, pale lilac, and all colors, mixed.

The following somewhat smaller than the Ruffled Monsters: Pearl of Kentfield, flesh pink frilled, dwarf, purple or blue and white frilled.
Price per packet, 50c.

Catalogue will be sent free on request. Write for it today.

Mr. W. L. Ferguson, Smiths Falls, Ontario, under date of Dec. 2, 1919, writes us the following in regard to our petunias:

"Last year I purchased Petunia seed from you. I think every seed germinated and the blooms were the finest ever seen in this part of Canada. Only about 8 per cent of the plants could be classed as common. I want more of the same quality each year."

Mr. Rudolf Nagel, Lancaster, Pa., under date of Dec. 14, 1919, writes us:

"I had last year just a few of your petunias, but I am sure I could have sold thousands of them. They surely came up to your claim and way ahead of my expectation."

SEEDS

DAHLIA SEED.

This seed is raised from the most up-to-date Dahlias in existence. No place in the world have Dahlias been brought up to such perfection as they have been around San Francisco. This mixture contains all colors and types of Peony, Cactus and Decorative varieties. The seed we sent out in previous years was highly praised by all who raised Dahlias from it, but this seed is far superior to what we have sent out in previous years. The seedlings will commence to flower two months after sowing and almost a month earlier than plants raised from bulbs.

Price 50c per package.

RICHARD DIENER,
Kentfield, Marin County, Cal.

Delphinium Belladonna and Delphinium Bellamosa, hand picked, Martin Kohankie stock, $2.50 per oz., $35.00 per lb. Cash with order.
Carl Hagenburger, West Mentor, O.

THE DIENER TOMATO.

Increase your tomato yield 100 per cent by raising the new DIENER TOMATO. 30 to 40 tons of ripe fruit to the acre.

This tomato was raised last year all over the United States and Canada with the greatest satisfaction.

As smooth as an apple and of a magnificent dark red color. Single tomatoes weigh up to 8 lbs. each. The flesh is more solid than that of any other tomato. The fruit contains little seed and is solidly filled out. This tomato is free of the acid taste, and for dehydrating, catsup and canning it is the best tomato in existence today.

The DIENER TOMATO is blight-resisting as well as drought-resisting. It will not crack from the rain and will not rot while lying on the ground in wet weather. This tomato will grow in almost any kind of soil and it commences to ripen the first part of August.

It is the greatest novelty in the tomato line, and it will soon crowd out the present varieties from the market by its far superior qualities.

Price of the DIENER TOMATO SEED. Sample package, 25c; one-quarter of an acre package, 50c; one acre package, $1.50.

EVERY GLADIOLUS GROWER or FLORIST who has but limited space at hand for growing purposes and wishes to realize the HIGHEST POSSIBLE YIELD in FLOWERS, BULBS and DOLLARS per SQUARE FOOT must have a copy of my new book, "THE GLADIOLUS FOR PROFIT." Every detail connected with the outdoor growing of these bulbs for the GREATEST PROFIT is given. Illustrated with twelve halftones from actual photographs showing my intensive system of culture that BRINGS THE PROFIT. A special chapter on DAHLIAS showing the PROFIT WAY to grow these for cut flowers and bulbs and, most important of all, WHAT VARIETIES to grow in the MIDDLE WEST in order to get a crop and the money EVERY YEAR. The merits of ONE HUNDRED and THIRTY varieties of gladioli are cussed and discussed and the MONEY MAKERS POINTED OUT. There is good money growing the gladiolus if you START RIGHT, and this book will START YOU RIGHT. Satisfaction or your money back. Mailed postpaid anywhere upon receipt of $1.00. R. M. Champe, Oakland Gardens Nursery, Walled Lake, Mich. Address until April 15th next at my Southern Plant Farm, Box 412B, St. Petersburg, Fla.

EASTER---The Peak of the Florist's Year

Easter week is the busiest of the year. And, following it, you usually stop, catch your breath and lay your plans for the future. You take an inventory of your equipment, find out what repairs you need. In fact—

NOW IS THE TIME TO PLAN YOUR NEW GREENHOUSES

Conditions in the trade are good and promise to be increasingly better. You should plan to take advantage of this by putting up some of those long delayed houses. Let us plan with you and show you how economical it is to build a Foley Greenhouse. Many of the country's largest florists always prefer Foley built houses. There must be a good reason—

Danville, Ky.—S. M. Harbison says he wishes he had the space to grow a million or two geraniums, as his little ad in The Review already has sold all he can produce this season.

Auburn, Ind.—Charles E. Cougill, of the Flower Shop, reports an excellent demand for pansy plants. An ad in the Classified department of The Review cleaned out his stock in a week. Mr. Cougill has Mrs. Cougill as his business as well as his domestic partner.

The first black arrow points to our special rod bearing, which allows an extra wide opening to the sash, without the arms extending any farther into the walks.
The second arrow indicates the secondary post.

Just a hint of the crisscross roof tie bracing between the gable rafter and the next one.
Many constructions use such ties farther down the house. We use them right at the start, because we believe that STARTING right means STAYING right.

Two Things and One More That Have To Do With Right Construction

In our last Ad. we had a lot to say about frame stiffening. You recall we made mention of the secondary post placed between the regular posts, to keep the eave from sagging. Take a look at the left-hand illustration and you will see a black arrow pointing to one.

Bear in mind that fastened to it, at the eave, is the purlin sag rod. It runs through each purlin from the Vent purlin.

Eave bowing is absolutely prevented.
Trussing under the ridge prevents any sagging at that important point of the construction.

The side then, from roof to sill, is practically as stiff and staunch between rafters as near the rafters.
Now, to stiffen the house lengthwise, we run crisscross tying rods from the gable rafter to the first rafter. They are placed between each purlin from eave to header purlin.

From top of the gable post is run an angle iron brace to the intermediate post at the sill. Also from it to the bottom of the next regular post. You can at once see the rigidity these combined ties and bracing must give.

Still further gable bracings are run from a gable purlin to the ridge, and from the gable posts to the ground at first column.

These braces are the shock troops, so to speak, of the fight against glass loosening and breakage.

We have proved over and over again that much of the loosening and breakage of glass is due not to a weak frame, but insufficiently braced gable.
The GIVE AND-TAKE on a weak gable is transferred to the entire framework.
It causes a COME AND-GO movement that slowly but surely pries the lights loose or breaks them.

Some folks have tried to belittle our gable construction by saying it was needlessly heavy and needlessly braced.
Our answer to which is only one thing:
Our houses have a reputation for their tight glazing.
They are tight at the start.
They STAY tight, because things stay rigid.

Therefore, it looks like we would keep right on making our construction stiff and staunch, both crosswise and lengthwise.
In keeping with which the strength of the gables will be in keeping.
You know we go anywhere for business.
Or to talk business.

Of Course the Far-Seeing Florist Realizes that the Greenhouse Building Season is Not Approaching But that it is Already Here

We have a good many orders on our books already and they are coming in fast every day. This means just one thing and that is if you don't get your order coming in to us pretty quick you will soon find yourself among the crowd that must do a lot of worrying about getting their greenhouses built before cold weather.

After studying up on greenhouse construction you will undoubtedly want a "MONINGER" greenhouse and the best way to go about getting one is to write us NOW for estimates and sketches. Or perhaps you would like to have our salesman call; if so, just drop us a line.

Greenhouse Builders

Minnesota's Richest Mining Town Builds a Range of our Finest Greenhouses

When we saw that article in last week's Review, entitled, "Putting Over a Park: The Village Beautiful, A Case of Determination," just naturally, some one was told to take off his coat, and see that there was no doubt in anybody's mind as to who built that magnificent range of houses mentioned.

It happens that this Park range at Hibbing, Minnesota, is an evolution.
Their first house was about the cheapest money could buy.
Meant to be temporary. In fact, had to be, as they had no money for anything else.
Then followed two more houses of more attractive design and better construction.
When the order came to actually move the entire Village, so the hundreds of feet of iron ore lying just below the surface could be mined, the Park had to go.

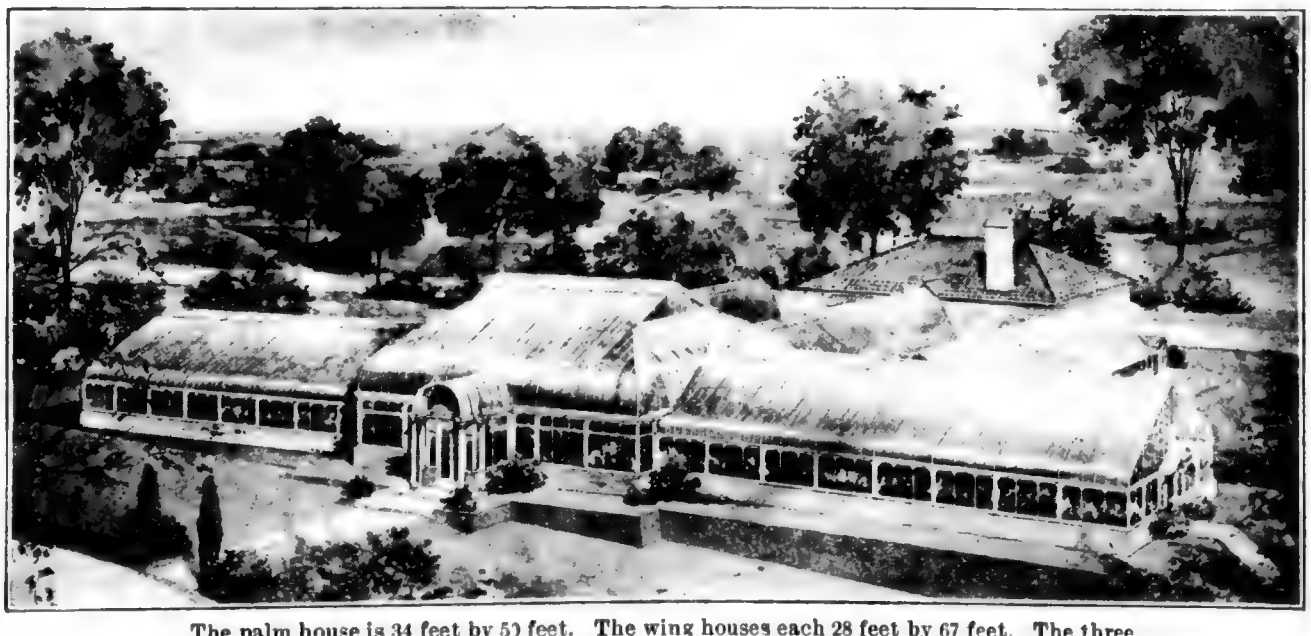
In keeping with the increased size and needs of the new Park, a larger range was a necessity.
So one of the finest sites in the new Park, two miles away, was chosen for its location.
Then followed the decision to put on it the finest kind of greenhouses built.
Leastwise, that is what Conrad B. Wolf, Superintendent of Parks, wrote us.

If you read the article in last week's Review, you can well imagine the pleasure and satisfaction we had in laying out that range and working with Mr. Wolf and the Commissioners. By one of those unexplainable mistakes, the wrong illustration of the greenhouses was shown. The one below, is surely the right one.

As you see from the water color reproduction below, both the palm house and wings have high sides, not alone making it adaptable for the growing of tall plants, but giving ample height to stage impressive showings during the Chrysanthemum season, and for Christmas and Easter.
The three full-span and two lean-to houses at the back are all our standard stock houses.

These are the practical growing houses, not alone for the thousands of blooming plants, but flowers of general interest to the public.

None of your museum-like houses for Hibbing.
They want things of beauty; growing, blooming things.
When you come to consider that this Park and these houses, located on top of ore deposits, may sooner or later go the way of the other, then you begin to grasp the big, broad-minded point of view of the Hibbing people.
If only for ten years—they want their Village and their lives to be filled with things of beauty, and are willing to pay for them.
Admittedly, no village of its size in the world can approach it in wealth.



Nevertheless, it isn't a question of wealth.
Plenty of cities have the necessary money.
It's a case of Hibbing having an appreciation of the vital part flowers and beauty play in making folks happy and contented.

For the good of business, and the good of people's souls, would there were more Hibbing kind of folks the world over.

GLADIOLUS BULBS

We are offering Gladiolus Bulbs to florists that, for quality and price, have no competition. Our Gladiolus Bulbs are strictly up to size and guaranteed. We furnish the planting stock. Our bulbs are all grown from young bulbs and are not to be compared to old flowering bulbs. Our bulbs are in our possession, properly stored, with the best facilities to insure proper curing, which is the essential part of handling Gladiolus Bulbs before planting.

WE HAVE AT PRESENT

245,000 Rose Plants in full crop

Our Rose crop was just a few days late for Easter -- in the first part of April we shall be in full crop with all the varieties listed below.

We are Rose growers especially for the shipping trade. We cut our Roses more in the bud, and grow them cooler, so that they will ship in better condition. All of our Roses are grown in one large range of glass, and are brought in from our greenhouses two and three times per day.

Seeds, Bulbs and Florists' Supplies for the Garden, Field and Greenhouse.

We are beginning our forty-fifth year in the seed business, and cannot help but feel gratified at our constantly growing list of customers. The fact that our customers come to us year after year proves that our seeds have been satisfactory, and that has been our aim—to supply seeds of such quality that our patrons will be perfectly satisfied and will come back the next year, bringing along their friends. To our patrons we would say that our future service will be of the same high class as in the past, and to those who have never purchased seeds from us we would say, "Give us a trial"—you will then join the ranks of those who have bought from us for years, and to whose commendations we owe the success of our business.

Improved Beauty TISSUE PAPER

A Superior Wrapping Tissue Developed by A. L. Randall Company

Improved Beauty Tissue Paper has long been recognized as a superior article. Now, by a most favorable contract, we can offer it to the trade at a price so low it seems a miracle. Along with this record-breaking cut in cost is the very highest quality. Improved Beauty Tissue is extra strong—unusually white—highly glazed—moisture proof and economical to use.

A perfect product at a bargain price.

This is an actual photograph of a bundle of Randall's Improved Beauty Tissue. It contains 4000 sheets of clean, white, strong tissue, put up in ten reams of 400 sheets each. These sheets measure 24x36-inch. Note some wrapping tissue is only 20x30-inch. Thus Improved Beauty contains 43% more paper per sheet than the smaller size.

GET IN THE GAME

We are gradually catching up with our orders for Edna and Harvester. Have we received yours?

EDNA will undoubtedly make a splendid commercial red. It has all the present-day requirements of a scarlet for both large and small grower. We have shipped it to Washington, New York, St. Paul and many nearer points and it has proven itself an ideal shipper. You will make no mistake in planting it.

HARVESTER is one of those bread and butter sorts that go to work immediately after being benched and keep right at it clear through the season. You will like its pure whiteness and general all-around goodness.

BOTH VARIETIES $15.00 per 100, $120.00 per 1000

THE FLORISTS' REVIEW

EASTER EXCEEDS TRADE'S EXPECTATIONS

Unaffected by the uncertainties of industrial readjustment, the Easter spirit, favored by good weather in most sections of the country, stimulated the public to holiday purchases the equal of any in the past. Prices lower than last year augmented the number of flower buyers.

EASTER day, 1921, demonstrated again the truth of that often-proved adage, "The Lord helps him who helps himself." Doubtful as to whether the big day of spring would really be big in view of current industrial conditions, in some sections not at all rosy, florists set out to do what they could to counteract the public's present tendency to grasp its pocketbook tightly and walk past retail stores in a hurry. Their efforts were well rewarded. Despite some difficult and deterrent factors in the supply available, owing to circumstances over which they had no control—such as the quality of Dutch and Japanese bulbs, the abnormal weather, etc.—retailers report an Easter business well above the average in almost all cases. Some even declare this year's business, at prices lower than last year, exceeded that of a year ago, when prosperity reigned and spending was the rule.

Lilies Lacking.

Though complaint is not general as to aggregate business, there are several ways in which the day's sales might have been improved. The greatest handicap this year was in the backbone of the Eastertide business—the lily. As a rule, the lilies this year were not up to the standard of previous years. They were not sturdy, and flowers were not often more than two to the bulb. Consequently, several plants had to be put in one pot to make a showing, with a loss to the grower, and the retailer could not charge the prices he might otherwise have asked for strong, well flowered stock. Moreover, lilies were not plentiful, and good ones were quite scarce in some localities. Persons who had resolved to be economical, at the last moment weakened in their resolution to the extent of entering the store to buy the customary lily. When they found none were to be had at that late date, they turned around and hurried out. Other plants tempted them not.

The weather conspired against the growers. Warm days two weeks before Easter forced along bulbous stock already well in time. As a result, much of it was fully ripe, and some barely escaped being a loss.

Easter Weather Helped.

A day generally fair, Sunday, March 27, was, however, a boon to the retailers. Last year a blizzard spoiled the Easter parade. This year the weather man's predictions of a similar occurrence failed to come true. The blizzard started on its way Saturday. North and South Dakota, Minnesota and northern Nebraska suffered from a heavy wind, accompanied by snow. But it failed to come farther east in time to spoil the holiday. A cold wave struck the north central states the day after Easter, but on the big day itself the weather was warm and clear save in the Ohio valley. Rain fell Sunday in St. Louis, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Detroit, Indianapolis, Fort Wayne, Memphis and other towns in that section, but it was not heavy nor long in most places. They had had, moreover, a fine, clear Saturday.

So favored by the clement elements, florists enjoyed a great sale of cut flowers and corsages. In many places all available stock for corsage work was used up. Many more sweet peas could have been used.

Changed Conditions.

Those florists fared best this Easter who had sensed the public's purchasing attitude and prepared accordingly. While they anticipated the usual holiday rush, they took into account the habit of parsimony engendered by the "buyers' strike," now more or less prevailing for five months or so. Instead of spending all their surplus, the thrifty customers now put a share in the bank and cut down on purchases in proportion. Consequently, basket arrangements and large pots and pans at $25 were not in much demand. Nor was there the usual number of $10 orders. Small pans and pots of bulbous stock sold best, after Easter lilies. Cinerarias, primulas and even geraniums attracted buyers.

Noteworthy stocks of hydrangeas and roses were seen in many places this season. The French varieties of the latter are meeting with greater and greater favor. Roses were splendid, as a rule. Great numbers of them were sold. Only the large-sized, expensive plants are left.

Heavy Advertising.

The amount of newspaper space used by florists to advertise flowers for Easter was greater this year than it has ever been before. The monition of The Review to make special effort in pushing sales was acted upon by a great many of its readers. In many communities florists used their local newspapers to splendid advantage. An imposing size of advertisement was used in a large number of instances. Prices were featured in heavy type that made it plain that flowers and plants were to be had at prices below those paid at recent holidays.

In some cases several florists combined to take a page, or nearly a page, of space, either for a single joint advertisement or for the combination of separate advertisements in one striking array. The local publicity associations did good work in each of the cities where they are established, some excellent pieces of copy being prepared for the occasion.

Accompanying the paid advertising of florists, a good deal of reading matter on flower prices for Easter appeared in newspapers throughout the country. With few exceptions this was favorable, attention being drawn to the fact that prices were lower than in previous years. The newly organized Allied Florists' Association of New York obtained statements in the newspapers of the metropolis regarding the decreased prices of flowers, and these were copied widely in eastern newspapers. Florists in other cities were also able to obtain stories in the reading columns of their local papers, which proved most effective. One of the best was an article in the Knickerbocker Press at Albany, N. Y., March 21. A bold-face caption across two columns read: "Huge Easter Floral Displays Marked by Decrease in Prices." Two striking paragraphs near the beginning of the article read:

"Accompanied by an unprecedented demand by persons who wish to 'Say It with Flowers' in sending their Easter greetings, the prices are cheaper, on the whole, than at any time since before the war, according to announcements made yesterday by some of Albany's leading dealers.

"The wide advertising which flower dealers in Albany and other cities of the country have given to flowers as gifts, particularly at Easter time, has resulted in an increased demand from year to year. Hitherto, prices each year have been a little higher, but the fact of lower prices this year is expected to break all records for sales."

Such publicity was instrumental in making the sales of florists where it was read large enough in volume to more than make up for the decrease in prices.

Profiteering Charge Counteracted.

An exception to the favorable comment of the press occurred in Chicago. Friday morning, March 25, the two morning papers printed a charge of profiteering by florists made by Russell J. Poole, called "the city high cost expert." The Tribune's ten lines headed, "Florists Profiteering on Easter, Expert Warns," was of the same tenor, but not in such damaging terms as the shorter piece in the Herald and Examiner, which also appeared in the evening Hearst paper, the American. It read:

"'Don't buy flowers for Easter,' warns Russell J. Poole, high cost expert. 'Teach the retail florists a lesson. They have boosted the cost of Easter lilies and other flowers from 200 to 2,000 per cent. This is unfair merchandising—plain profiteering.'"

Immediately the Allied Florists' Association prepared a notice to the press denying the statements of Mr. Poole, branding them as ridiculous. This appeared in the evening papers March 25. In the Tribune the following morning, under the head, "Florists Deny Profiteering on Easter Sales," was the following:

Retractions.

"In a statement issued yesterday the Allied Florists' Association ridicules the assertion of Russell J. Poole, city high cost expert, that retail florists are boosting prices for Easter sales.

"'Mr. Poole has not made a thorough investigation,' the statement says. 'His assertion that flower prices are being boosted 2,000 per cent is unreasonable. That would mean that a plant costing $2 at wholesale is being sold for $40.

"'Easter lily blooms cost the retailer from 20 to 30 cents each, and are being sold at from 35 to 65 cents. The average net profit of Chicago florists for Easter will run from twelve to fifteen per cent.'"

The Herald and Examiner did not print the statement issued by the Allied Florists' Association, but the following instead:

"Easter flowers are cheaper this year than they have been in a decade, according to Louis Choromokos, proprietor of the LaBonte Floral Shop at Wilson avenue and Broadway, who denied last night an assertion that florists were profiteering. 'We are selling plants all the way from $1.50 to $4 and $5, but none higher,' Mr. Choromokos said."

Such counter-statements and florists' advertisements, notably one of the Fleischman Floral Co. of nearly a page, offering "Easter Flowers at Most Reasonable Prices," did much to remove the damaging notices of the day before. Certain it is, Chicago florists enjoyed a notably good holiday, as well as their fellow tradesmen in other cities.

"AIN'T NATURE WONDERFUL!"

Yes, many of the works of nature are beyond human ken, but it is the hand of man which makes available most of the products of nature. For instance, if it were not for the commercial instinct in the genus homo most of nature's fairest flowers would be "born to blush unseen."

In Chicago there are some twenty or more wholesale dealers in cut flowers, whose Easter shipments went as far as West Virginia, Georgia, New Orleans, Texas and Manitoba; without Chicago and its wholesalers half America would have gone more or less without its Easter flowers.

Chicago people do not themselves understand the cut flower business done in their city, its extent or what it means, although they see daily manifestations of its presence. The wholesale houses are gregarious; they like association with their own kind. So we find them grouped within a short radius; several occupy space in the same building. The American Railway Express affords them special service, as the combined shipments amount to tons each day. There is a supervisor, with as many men and wagons as are needed. The shipments are carried by hand to a sidewalk dispatching station, where they are routed to the various railway stations. As train time approaches, the mountains of similarly wrapped boxes attract many curious persons who have no idea what is going on. Any business day several wagon loads go to the evening trains, while just before a special flower day the shipments mount up to carloads.

To handle the Easter shipments the express company assigned to the cut

Those were the big days, but every day except Sunday, the year around, many hundreds of boxes go out.

DAFFODILS OR JONQUILS.

Is it honest to sell or advertise jonquils when daffodils are meant? Does the buying public prefer to call daffodils jonquils? I have read advertisements quoting jonquils when I felt sure that the advertiser was offering Golden Spur narcissi. Am I justified in calling all daffodils jonquils? G. L.—Wash.

It is unfortunate that so many of the growers, retailers, wholesalers and buying public will persist in calling all varieties of daffodils jonquils. Ignorance is in a great measure responsible for this on the part of all concerned, but it has become such a habit that it will be difficult to break. Most retailers probably do not know what true jonquils are, and are no doubt quite honest when they pass out any variety of daffodil for them. True jonquils are extremely sweet-scented. They have slender, grassy-like foliage, carry several flowers on a stem and are golden yellow in color.

It would be to your credit if you should try to educate your buying public as to what are daffodils and what are jonquils. At present practically all buyers, when asking for jonquils, mean daffodils, and the vast majority of retailers, composed of men and women whose knowledge of plant names is limited, have only a vague idea of what daffodils and jonquils are.

Both are varieties of narcissi. I note, however, that on your letterhead you offer both narcissi and daffodils. Why not make it read daffodils and jonquils hereafter, and set a good example?

EXHIBITION ECHOES.

Echoes from the most successful show, from both an educational and a financial viewpoint, were heard following the closing of the international flower show at the Grand Central Palace, New York.

Fred Lautenschlager, of Kroeschell Bros. Co., Chicago, observed that to grow such choice stock a real boiler was essential to produce the steam.

Simon Dernison, of A. Henderson & Co., Chicago, was positive that much of the fine bulbous stock was supplied by Chicago houses.

S. S. Pennock took a last, lingering look ere departing on his errand of mercy to Berlin, Germany, in the interests of a band of Philadelphia Quakers.

A. F. J. Baur received an inspiration from the lovely amaryllis and announced his intention of devoting a part of his time to the raising of commercial varieties.

C. W. Scott dilated upon the new type of lily to be sent out by the Yokohama Nursery Co., an advancement upon giganteum.

Charles Tricker, of Arlington, N. J., said the sale of water lilies was beyond all expectations.

John Hay, who is the perpetual representative among the private trade for Henry A. Dreer, Inc., Philadelphia, was observed darting hither and thither with order book in hand.

Fred Cowperthwaite, of R. H. Macy & Co., received many compliments on his prize-winning self-watering window box, tastefully filled with assorted plants.

Fred Michell, of the H. F. Michell Co., Philadelphia, hurried up from the south and felt amply repaid for the trip, observing to Representative John Bochmann that an exhibition along similar lines, in Philadelphia, would be in order and keep up the lively interest aroused.

Charles Schwake, Frank Henry, of Henry & Lee, James McHutchison and Fred G. Marquardt formed an interested group, admiring a prize-winning entry of Easter lilies.

Max Schling, the lone retail exhibitor, was fairly loaded down with honors and modestly invited the well pleased public to view the Easter display at his store.

William Kervan, of the Kervan Co., New York, made a big hit when, toward the close of the show, a fine lot of kumquat oranges arrived at his booth and sprays of the golden fruit were handed out to the crowd that fairly swarmed about the table. W. M.

ORGANIZING OHIO.

With the Easter rush attended to, the work of completing the organization of the National Flower Growers' Association will be pushed forward. The Ohio district branch of this association is holding a series of organizing meetings, the first to be at Youngstown, Thursday afternoon, March 31. Meetings will be held at Toledo the evening of April 7, at Springfield the afternoon of April 12, at Dayton the evening of the same day and at Cincinnati the evening of April 13. The meetings already held at Cleveland and Columbus proved highly successful and much is hoped from the coming two weeks' work.

President Carl Hagenburger, Vice-Presidents F. C. W. Brown and H. P. Knoble and Secretary George Bate expect to attend every meeting, as do the temporary directors: William H. Temblett, William J. Kramer, Lars Anderson, Louis Koehl and Albert Barnow.

GREENHOUSE ROSES.

This Year and Last.

The question is asked, "Are the newer roses holding their own in the market as a cut flower proposition?" The answer is, "Most assuredly, yes. They are not only holding their own, but they are crowding out the last of the old varieties."

Columbia may well be called a standard, since it is now in the third year of its introduction and has made good in every market of importance in the country. Premier is considered partly responsible for the almost total disappearance of American Beauty from the market. Its wonderful color, delightful fragrance, luxuriant foliage and apparently every other desirable attribute, combined with its floriferousness and growth, has just about sounded the death-knell of American Beauty. It is an undisputed fact that this last winter thousands of Premier were sold as American Beauty, and the deluded but delighted buyers were glad of it. American Beauty held on longer than any other of the older roses, but one cannot gainsay that its approach to decrepitude was marked by a tendency to run to blind wood, and the greatly reduced quantity of blooms per plant is responsible for American Beauty's demise.

Although Premier shows a tendency to black-spot in some sections, this is apparently its only weakness. As grown and marketed in the large flower centers, it is a superb rose.

New Arrivals.

Last year saw five well-heralded roses introduced to the trade, in the advent of Crusader, Frank W. Dunlop, Mme. Butterfly, Pilgrim and Mrs. John Cook. The expert growers are carefully keeping tab on their bench surface to see which variety is the winner in this quintette. Advices from the different growers indicate ninety per cent in favor of Mme. Butterfly as the find for 1920. Certainly, the demand for stock of this variety would more than indicate that it has made good. Growers at first were skeptical as to whether Mme. Butterfly was a better grower than Ophelia, but there is no question about it now.

Pilgrim seems to be getting popular in some sections. There is no doubt about its freedom, but there is also no doubt about its being badly afflicted by that scourge of the rose grower—black-spot. Expert cultivation will doubtless assist in overcoming this handicap another season.

Frank W. Dunlop did quite well in some sections where it has been grown in a cool and rational manner. Some growers who have been growing this rose from 62 to 65 degrees at night are sorry that they had anything to do with it, on account of its tendency to mildew when grown too warm—and a rose today that does not carry perfect foliage as well as perfect flowers labors under a severe handicap.

Red Rose Needed.

Crusader sells in the market, but it would not sell were a better colored rose available. Hadley is the best colored of the crimson roses, but does not produce the returns per square foot that Crusader does. Therefore the latter is a great improvement in that respect. The color, however, is a little too dark, and the market man complains that it turns blue when kept one or two days. It is necessary, therefore, to continue to look for the ideal red rose. Experts are working with this in mind, and no doubt the next year or two will produce something worth while in this color that will be a decided improvement on existing kinds.

Mrs. John Cook is not much of a factor in the market, and it is a question if it would not have been better to have introduced this as an outdoor rose, where it belongs. John Cook, the introducer of this variety, has given us some wonderful outdoor roses, including Radiance, My Maryland and others. Mrs. John Cook will in all probability make a fine outdoor white.

Roses continue to be the leading commodity in the cut flower market. As a large wholesaler remarked a few days ago, "if you take the roses out of the market, there would be practically nothing left to sell." The carnation is still laboring under the handicap of poor culture and a lack of specially good varieties, while the rose has been making all the running. The growers today are hunting for new roses with the same gusto with which they searched for new carnations a few years ago.

Cause of Shortage.

Some of the larger markets suffered a little during the holidays on account of the fact that growers had pinched their stock, and more high-grade stock was being produced than the market could assimilate for the moment. Anyone who saw the hundreds of thousands of wonderful roses piled up in the New York wholesale markets the week before Christmas must have been astounded at the magnitude of the business, and at the amount of capital involved in such a perishable product. It is, indeed, hardly possible that anyone outside of the trade has any conception of the volume of business done.

The year 1920 was, perhaps, the most prosperous that the cut flower grower has ever enjoyed. The early part of the season was marked by a tremendous demand, while the intensely cold weather decreased the supply, with the result that high prices generally prevailed. The much-increased production was marketed readily at all times, and throughout the season the business was in an entirely healthy condition.

The year 1921 finds the rose growers looking forward with confidence and seeing not a cloud on the sky of business.

What's Coming Now?

Now regarding the usual query, "What is new for the coming year?" we hear all sorts of rumors, some of which will materialize, and some will not.

White Ophelia is the novelty of the year, and all who grow and appreciate Ophelia will doubtless take to this sterling new variety. As a matter of fact, we understand the introducer is practically sold out. Just where White Ophelia will stand when Fred H. Lemon's new white, Angelus, comes out, in 1922, is an open question which time alone can decide.

Columbia is sporting profusely, and there will perhaps be two or three sports distributed during the coming season, with also a climbing form. We may expect Columbia to stay with us for some years yet.

A new seedling which I understand has been registered as Hill's America is making a marvelous record in its second year, which, as a rule, is the year that a rose seedling either goes backward or forward. There are also rumors of a fine new seedling rose from New England. This all points to progress. A new variety stimulates the public attention and keeps it interested and busy buying.

The rose business was never in a better condition, nor with more promise for the future, than it is today. We can be decidedly optimistic for the future.

NATIONAL ROSE SHOW.

Arousing Much Interest.

The 1921 national rose show, to be held at Boston April 6 to 10 in Horticultural hall, under the auspices of the American Rose Society and the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, now promises to be one of the best shows of its kind ever staged. Officials of the two organizations, after discussing plans recently, report that there is a great interest in the show on the part of rose distributors, rose breeders and rose amateurs and that already there has been evidenced a fine support and plans for a heavy entry. Thousands of dollars are offered as prizes and also some valuable medals by both societies and by interested growers.

In connection with the rose show, lectures upon rose culture will be delivered at 3:30 p. m. each day of the exhibition, and the Massachusetts Horticultural Society will stage its annual spring exhibition of orchids and spring blooming plants. President Albert C. Burrage, of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, is doing much to encourage interest in orchids, not only in New England, but elsewhere.

Boston orchid shows are famous the country over, and the display in connection with the rose show will be the equal of anything ever seen at Boston. Many newly named and unnamed varieties will be on exhibition. One hundred plants of the Kurume azaleas, from the John S. Ames estate, North Easton, Mass., will be one of the feature displays in the main hall.

The lecture program prepared is as follows:

April 6—"Roses and Rose Gardens" (illustrated), by Robert Pyle, president American Rose Society.

April 7—"The Rose in America" (illustrated), by J. Horace McFarland, editor American Rose Annual.

April 8—"Roses in Europe and America," by C. H. Totty, treasurer American Rose Society.

April 9—"Suggestions on the Culture of Hardy Roses," by William N. Craig, Faulkner Farm, Brookline, Mass.

April 10—"Rambler Roses in New England," by Prof. Frank A. Waugh, Massachusetts Agricultural College.

Exhibits.

All interested in exhibiting should write for the premium list, addressing the secretary of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, Horticultural hall, Boston, Mass.

The Garden Club of America has offered its silver medal to the American Rose Society. At the meeting of the executive committee of the American Rose Society, held at New York March 16, it was decided to offer this medal as a sweepstakes prize for the best fifty roses in the class calling for fifty blooms at the Boston show.

A display of cut roses to cover 300 square feet is announced as Class 66. It is to be staged April 8. Decorative green of any kind, including plants, will be permitted. The quality of blooms, artistic arrangement and general effect of the display will be considered in making the award in this class.

GARDENERS MEET AT BOSTON.

The New England conference of the National Association of Gardeners will be held at Horticultural hall, Boston, Friday afternoon, April 8, at 3 o'clock, instead of April 7 as previously announced.

The gold medal of the association was awarded to John Canning, superintendent of the estate of Adolph Lewisohn, Ardsley, N. Y., at the New York flower show, March 19, for the most meritorious private grower's exhibit.

M. C. Ebel, Sec'y.

College Park, Ga.—Mrs. W. D. Palmer, a former member of the trade, is contemplating reëntering the florists' business.

Romulus, Mich.—A. F. Klages has ordered a large quantity of gladiolus bulbs, with which he will make his start in the trade.

BEST BEGONIAS

WINTER-FLOWERING BEGONIAS.

Discussed by Expert.

At the autumn exhibition of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, last November, a remarkable exhibit of forty-three varieties of the winter-flowering begonia was made by Thomas E. Proctor, of Topsfield, Mass., for which the society's gold medal was awarded.

As this comparatively new race of flowering plants is likely to prove of great value in greenhouse cultivation, some notes on their history and culture are presented in the latest issue of the society's bulletin, the cultural notes being supplied by James Marlborough, gardener to Mr. Proctor.

The Parent Plant.

Begonia socotrana, from which the winter-flowering varieties have been evolved, was introduced in 1860 from the island of Socotra, in the Red sea, by Prof. Isaac Bayley Balfour, of Edinburgh, Scotland. John Heal, of James Veitch & Sons, Chelsea, England, recognized the possibilities of this species for hybridizing and to him belongs the honor of raising the first hybrids of the winter-flowering begonia which are the results of crossing Begonia socotrana with several large-flowered, tuberous-rooted varieties.

The first of these varieties to receive recognition from the Royal Horticultural Society was the John Heal, exhibited by James Veitch & Sons in 1885. Little was heard of them again until 1902, when James Veitch & Sons exhibited a group of these plants and about this time listed twelve varieties in their catalogue.

In later years the work was taken up by Clibrans, Manchester, England, who have now listed about fifty varieties in their catalogue. The flowers are large, single, double and semi-double, some over three inches in diameter, and vary in color from scarlet to light salmon-pink. A pure yellow or a pure white has not yet appeared. They are produced in late autumn, when showy flowers are desirable. The flowers are sterile, which accounts for their long duration, and with ordinary care a plant will last in full bloom from six to eight weeks.

Greenhouse Culture.

After flowering, the plants are placed where they get some light and a temperature of 55 degrees. They should be kept moderately dry until about March 1, when most of the old stems will have fallen off and the young growths will have developed from the axils of the leaves. Following the directions of Clibrans, when these new growths are about two and one-half to three inches in length they should be taken off as cuttings, inserted singly in thumb pots, and placed in a propagating case or in a close house in a temperature of 70 degrees.

Many of them have small tubers and the old stems should not be cut off too near the crown. Let them fall off, which they will do as the new growth starts. When they show new roots they should be potted into small pots, using a light, sandy mixture of loam and leaf-mold in equal parts, and placed in a temperature of 60 degrees at night. Do not syringe the plants or water them overhead, but keep the house moist. Fumigate about once a week, somewhat stronger than with other plants, to prevent insect pests, of which the mite is the worst.

These will make good flowering plants in the autumn, but for large exhibition plants it may be necessary to start leaf cuttings in November in the same way as with Gloire de Lorraine. In this way many of the varieties can be grown to specimens three to four feet in diameter in one year.

Varieties.

The following is a list with a brief description of the forty-three varieties shown in the exhibit of Mr. Proctor:

Vulcan—Double, carmine-pink.
Winter Cheer—Semi-double, rose-carmine.

JACKSONVILLE, ILL.

Good Friday at Jacksonville saw spring showers and this was followed by a good rain Saturday morning. The rest of the day was warm, with a little sprinkle. Easter Sunday was good until about noon, when another shower came up. By Monday morning the temperature had dropped to 15 degrees. Easter business with Joseph Heinl & Sons was first-class. Everything was cleaned up and the delivery went on without a hitch. Lilies and hyacinths were the best sellers. Orders as low as 50 cents were taken by this firm and given good service.

POISONING ANTS

ELIMINATING THE ANT PEST.

Results of a Government Experiment.

The presence of ants in greenhouses is usually an indication that some of the plants are infested with one or more species of honeydew-producing insects, such as mealy bugs, soft scales, plant lice and others. It is generally recognized that ants are much concerned about the welfare of these insects. They protect them from natural enemies, transfer them from time to time to young succulent growth and build shelters for their protection. This interest on the part of the ants may be accounted for by the fact that they collect and transfer to their nests the honeydew or sweet fluid which is excreted by the various insects. It is this habit of the ants which is taken advantage of in the use of poisoned bait, writes C. A. Weigel, of the bureau of entomology of the Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

A recent experiment, in which a syrup poisoned with sodium arsenite was used, definitely determined that ants can be satisfactorily controlled, if not entirely eliminated from infested greenhouses. So convincing were the results that the experiment is briefly described for the benefit of those growing plants under glass.

Facts about the Greenhouse.

The greenhouse in which this test was conducted contained miscellaneous plants, including crotons, which were infested with two honeydew-producing coccids, the long soft scale Coccus elongatus Sign., and the common mealy bug, Pseudococcus citri Risso. Two species of ants were concerned; a small species popularly known as "the crazy ant," Prenolepsis longicornis Latr., and a larger one, Tetranmorium guineensis Fab. The ants were present in such numbers that the plants, benches and walks were literally alive with them.

The Poison Bait Formula.

The formula for the poison bait used in this experiment was as follows:

Granulated sugar ..... 15 lbs.
Water ..... 7½ pts.
Tartaric acid (crystallized) ... ¾ oz.

These ingredients were slowly boiled for thirty minutes and allowed to cool. In the meantime three-fourths of one ounce of sodium arsenite ($NaAsO_2$), was dissolved in one-half pint of hot water and allowed to cool. The two were then combined by thoroughly stirring to insure a complete combination. Finally one and one-half pounds of pure honey was added to increase the attractiveness of the mixture.

The Experiment and Results.

At 11 o'clock on the morning of February 11, 1921, twenty-five pieces of sponge saturated with the poison bait were distributed throughout the greenhouse. To prevent dilution of the poison syrup in the sponge when the plants were watered, a thumb pot was inverted over each sponge, with one edge slightly raised to permit the ants easy access to the poison.

Almost immediately the ants detected the syrup and started to carry it to their nest over definitely established routes, a habit characteristic of these creatures. Within one-half hour the walks and benches were teeming with ants busily engaged in the operation just described. The next day a marked decrease in their numbers was evident. In some cases the sponges were so thoroughly depleted of the syrup that they had to be replenished with fresh material. It was also observed that those still present avoided the bait, making it necessary to change the location of each sponge. By March 8, twenty-five days after the experiment had been started, the ants had almost completely disappeared.

SEATTLE LILIES.

Not everywhere were lilies this Easter so good as those at the greenhouses of the Hollywood Gardens, Seattle, Wash. Many florists wish they had been, for then the sales for the holiday would have been considerably augmented. Many were the customers who walked out when they were informed lilies were gone.

Just how sturdy and well flowered were the lilies of the Hollywood Gardens may be seen by the illustration on this page, a particularly fine view of the Seattle firm's stock.

SCALE ON ASPARAGUS.

I am sending a sample of some of my scale-infested Asparagus plumosus and should like to know how to get rid of the trouble without cutting down all the plants. These are heavy seed producers and are at present loaded with seed. I sprayed once with nicotine, but saw no result. The scale began to make its appearance over a year ago and since then has spread over several square feet of the bed and has reached the top of the plants, which are seven or eight feet. P. O. M.—O.

From the specimen received, you have evidently a bad infestation of white scale on the asparagus and the most likely remedy for such a case would be spraying once a week with a solution of fish oil soap and Black Leaf 40, the solution to be composed of one ounce of the soap and half an ounce (fluid) of Black Leaf 40 to one gallon of water. The soap should be dissolved by boiling and the nicotine preparation added to the solution after cooling. W. H. T.

ANOTHER SLOGAN SONG.

In connection with the contest run by several newspapers in different cities for the best flower letter submitted, the Arizona Republican, Phoenix, Ariz., for March 15 published a song by H. M. Nesmith, of that city. The song was inspired by the trade slogan, "Say It with Flowers."

Say it with flowers that bloom in May;
Say it with flowers that will never decay.
Say it with truth that you are mine,
Say it with blessings that I am thine.

Say it always and do not decline
The life to thee so truly resigned.
Say it in every act and creed,
Say it in thy love and every deed.

Refrain.
Say it daily, my own love.
Whisper it softly, my love.
Say it every time we part
That I am the image of thy heart.

USE NICOTINE OLEATE.

I am sending you specimens of my geraniums, which have spotted leaves. This trouble is spreading through all my geraniums. Can you tell me what the trouble is and what would be a good remedy? It seems as though some kind of insect lays eggs on these geraniums and deforms the leaves.

F. J. J.—Wis.

Those light spots on your geranium leaves are caused by the cyclamen mite, Tarsonemus pallidus. To get rid of it, use nicotine oleate and spray thoroughly on the under side of the leaves, repeating at least once each week until the plants are clean. Get from your druggist what is known as oleic acid and use it in connection with a forty per cent nicotine product. Mix two and one-half parts of the nicotine with one and three-quarter parts of the oleic acid. Then use these four and one-fourth parts in 900 parts of water. It is said to be safe for the plants at double this strength, but you will probably find the strength as recommended sufficient to control this insect. If you find that you need a stronger solution, try it out on a small scale first.

A. F. J. Baur.

GERANIUMS IN KANSAS.

Under separate cover we have sent you samples of geranium leaves peculiarly affected. What treatment should be administered? Is it the work of insects or disease? L. G.—Kan.

There seems to be a disease that is affecting geraniums in your section of the country. We have had a number of inquiries of the same trouble from florists of your state, but have not met with it elsewhere. Not having had any experience with the trouble, we are at a loss to advise you as to the treatment for it. M. P.

BUDDING GERANIUMS.

I have left some 4-inch geraniums which are eight to ten inches high and are now in bud and bloom. These I did not dispose of at Easter. How long should I keep the flower buds picked off so as to have them in flower for Decoration day? I have one house of geraniums which I have lately shifted from 2½-inch to 4-inch pots. How long should I keep the flower buds picked off so as to have them come into full bloom from May 20 to 30? R. E. C.—Ill.

The geranium plants now in 4-inch pots which are eight to ten inches high and are now in bud and bloom are rather big stock to be classed as ordinary bedding geranium plants. These plants are now larger than the average geranium is at Decoration day. If they are varieties with large trusses of bloom and sturdy foliage they may be sold as pot plants. Those that are not disposed of would better be shifted into 5-inch pots and grown as larger plants than 4-inch stock. Before potting remove the flower buds, but after that allow them to bud and bloom as they make their growth, removing the flower trusses as they become old. The plants which have lately been shifted from 2½-inch to 4-inch pots can have the flower buds picked off at this time, but no topping of the growths should be done.

GERANIUMS FOR SPRING.

I have been growing geraniums for several years and never have been able to get them in bloom early enough. I have some nice plants in 2½-inch pots ready to shift into 4-inch and should like to know how to mix the soil and what fertilizer to use to get them to bloom by May. The plants were propagated in October. W. S.—Ill.

Probably you have grown your geraniums too rich and warm. Your plants should now go into 3½-inch and 4-inch pots. Use a compost of two-thirds loam and one-third old, well decayed and pulverized manure; be sure, however, that it is well rotted. Do not use fresh manure in any form. To each bushel of soil add a 5-inch pot of fine bone and mix thoroughly. Bone is good for geraniums. It helps to build a short, stocky growth which will flower well, while an overdose of manure, either in the soil or in liquid form, will produce a soft, flabby growth which will bloom unsatisfactorily. Grow your plants in a temperature of not over 50 degrees at night. Give all possible sunshine; they never need any shade. Do not spray them overhead or keep a humid, close atmosphere, as this will encourage leaf disease. Air abundantly and keep the plants on the dry side in dark, gloomy weather. C. W.

IVY GERANIUM.

I am sending you some affected ivy geranium plants. Please examine them and tell me the trouble. They have been kept in a temperature of 50 to 56 degrees at night. F. D.—Mo.

The trouble with these plants is that they are growing in soil that is too rich for them and they are receiving an overabundance of water at the roots. Make the compost lighter and add a liberal amount of sharp sand to it.

SCALE ON BOSTON FERNS.

I have mailed you a specimen of our ferns. We have a full house just like it. The disease with which they are affected is not known to us and we know of no cause for such a trouble. We should be glad to hear your opinion regarding what it is and also what might cure or prevent it.

S. F. C.—Md.

The Boston fern in question did not show any particular sign of disease, but was badly infested with fern scale, that destructive insect which is, unfortunately, so common on plants of this family and the nephrolepis in particular. The first thing to do in this case would be to cut out all of the worst fronds and then start a dipping or spraying campaign, the dipping being the most effective, from the fact that this method will apply the insecticide more thoroughly than can be done with spraying. The dipping solution should be composed of whale oil soap, tobacco extract and water in the following proportions: Soap, one-half ounce; tobacco extract, one teaspoonful; water, one gallon. It is preferable to do the dipping on a cloudy day and the dose should be repeated each week for a time. W. H. T.

NOT FERN RUST.

Can you give me information on the subject of fern rust, its cause and cure? We have a bench of Boston ferns which seem to be attacked by rust. The trouble spreads quite rapidly along the leaves soon causing all the foliage to drop off and leave the stem bare.

T. L. C.—Minn.

Rust on Boston ferns is something with which the writer has had no experience, nor has he ever heard of it. It seems most likely, from the description given, that there is some other cause for this trouble, and among the possibilities are the escape of gas, either from the furnace or from the illuminating apparatus, or an overdose of fresh manure. The application of dried blood as a fertilizer will also cause such trouble if carried to excess.

INDOOR CARNATION CULTURE

By ELMER J. WEAVER.

FROM time immemorial the universal manner of growing carnations has been, with but few exceptions, field culture and the time of planting into the houses has in former years ranged from September to October. It ranges to July and August at present. Each season the more successful grower appears to be advocating earlier planting and, as many of our attempts in the past at planting from the field have met with only partial success, we decided to try out the method that has proved unusually successful with William Sim.

Climate Small Factor.

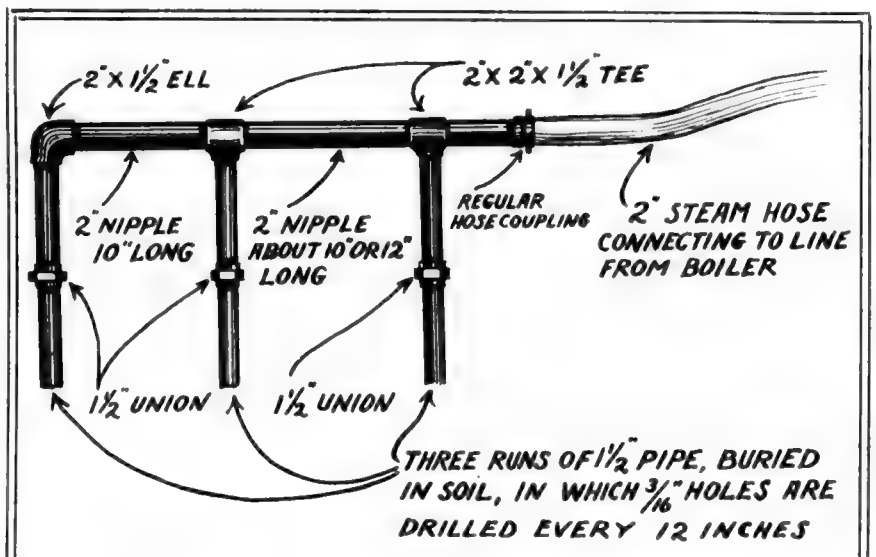
The remarks brought out at Washington during the discussion of Mr. Sim's method showed clearly that many growers are loath to try indoor culture, under the impression that it can only succeed under certain climatic conditions, and Mr. Sim's location climatically was given as the deciding factor in his continued success. While I do not know anything about New England's summer temperature, I am sure we think our section is about as hot and dry as any average district in the United States and, from our season's experience, I feel sure that the climate has little to do with the success of the method. With certain minor changes, we shall try the same method this season and, should results prove the same, we are through with outdoor planting while we grow carnations.

We have found that certain varieties apparently need to have a large portion of the roots broken off, due to the regular transplanting practice to force them to early bloom, chief of which are Matchless, Red Matchless and two seedlings of our own, as these varieties have made a wonderfully strong, vigorous growth, but have been retarded several weeks longer than Benora, White Benora, Aviator, Lassie, Red Head and Ruth Baur. We do not grow Mrs. Ward, so I am unable to say what effect indoor planting would have on this variety, although, from a guess, I think it would have a tendency to come late.

We grow carnations in solid beds without any artificial drainage. Our soil is a heavy clay which bakes quite hard after a rain. It is underlaid with a hard, though apparently porous, red clay subsoil. We did not renew our soil last summer, except a portion of one bed that we filled with rose soil, which we used as a check. This new soil was placed in part of a bed which had contained the same soil for over ten years. The remainder of the space had been renewed a year ago. No one has been able to see any difference between the various soils used. The new rose soil shows no advantage whatever. All our soil was sterilized with steam before planting, partly as a renewing agent, but more particularly as a means of destroying weed seeds. I think we can grow a finer collection of weeds than any other section of the United States. For years Lancaster county, Pa., has been known as the garden spot of America and I think we have the garden spot of Lancaster county for weeds.

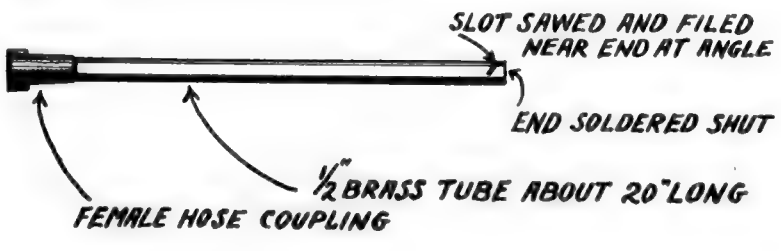
Sterilizing Soil.

The following process is used in sterilizing our soil: We dig a furrow from about six to eight inches deep on one edge of a 4½-foot bed and lay a 1½-inch pipe in it the length of the bed. This pipe has a 3/16-inch hole drilled in it every foot on the side turned downward. We have three sections of pipe to each bed, buried an equal distance apart, and admit steam at three points in the length of a 220-foot house.



The soil should be medium-dry, leveled and raked fine before the steam is turned in. We carry fifty to seventy-five pounds' pressure on the boiler at the start, which pressure gradually drops to twenty pounds in the course of about forty-five minutes. The steam is turned off when it appears to be coming through the soil in a uniform cloud and the soil on the top of the bed is near to 200 degrees. As before stated, we have three outlets for a house 220 feet long and connection is established rapidly with the pipe buried in the soil by using three sections of 2-inch steam hose, each twelve feet long. The hose is fitted at one end with ordinary 2-inch thread coupling and the other end is fitted with a regular hose coupling. The three lines of pipe are fed by one section of hose, as shown in the sketch.

We prepare the soil for sweet peas by plowing the house with a 2-horse plow. Make one furrow and insert the first pipe, then plow it under with one wide furrow or two narrow ones. Then lay the next pipe, covering it over in the same manner, etc., until all your pipes are placed. Here the steam is allowed to flow for about an hour; then the pipes are removed from the hot soil with iron bars. We usually make four or five changes a day, which does not require much time or coal for a 60-foot house, and the soil is left in such condition that little additional effort is needed to fit it perfectly for planting.



Several Benefits.

This process kills nematodes and various fungi and over ninety per cent of the weed seeds. It also liberates, or makes more available, some of the inert fertilizing elements in the soil. This has been clearly demonstrated by comparing the growth of sweet pea vines in sterilized soil and in untreated soil. During the season the vines in the sterilized soil grow four or even five feet taller than the same varieties in the same soil unsterilized. The seed germinates much more easily and the young plants grow with more vigor and are less subject to the various sweet pea disorders usually prevalent where early planting is practiced. A heavy application of rotted manure was added to the carnation beds after steaming and worked into the soil and also 100 pounds of bone meal to a 4½-foot bed 200 feet long. No manure or fertilizer whatever was added to the sweet pea soil, and our vines now are eighteen inches high.

In spite of the fact that it is the almost universal practice of nearly all successful carnation growers to renew their soil every season, it has been a question to my mind whether this work is an absolutely necessary adjunct to success. Our soil may be different from most soils, but we have never been able to prepare a compost, as many other growers do, incorporating a lot of manure and possibly bone meal and lime, and get our plants to take hold and start into immediate, active growth. If we renew our soil from the field without the addition of manure, only adding a moderate coating of lime, our plants start readily, but the flowers and stems are lacking size, length and strength for a part of the season, until the fertilizer and manure added as a mulch begin to show effect.

The market gardener will fertilize heavily one season, and expect to realize results from such applications the following year and each successive year. The soil, through continual addition of fertilizer and humus, will be annually put in better condition. Now, does it not appear a little useless and foolish to throw out soil just as the fertilizer incorporated in it is beginning to show effect? Is it not possible that a few of us who may have difficulty in getting our plants to take active hold in the fall may be able, by a little experimenting, to take advantage of improvement in our soil through years of fertilizing?

The rose grower does not renew soil under a 2 to 5-year period. I have seen houses of the finest roses grown on soil that was planted to sweet peas for years previous. Last year one house on this place was replanted to roses that had been just planted to roses five years ago. Part of the soil was renewed and part was not and today the plants in the old soil are making the better growth. Last spring we planted Pilgrim roses in a house that had been used for sweet peas and carnations for five years without changing the soil. We renewed part of the soil and left some of the old soil in as a check. Today the plants in the old soil are ahead, though at the start the plants in the new soil appeared to do better.

Pointers in Planting.

The argument is advanced that a freeze is necessary to put the soil in good mechanical condition. If this were absolutely necessary, have you ever wondered how they would do it in the most wonderfully fertile land in the country, Florida or southern California? Do they not grow luxuriant crops there twelve months in the year?

It does not matter how rich your soil is; if your plants are in pots or paper bands they will start readily and grow rapidly. Of course, it may be possible to overdo the feeding and give them indigestion, as we know it is easily possible to do that to ourselves. In our case the results are generally unpleasant for a short time—sort of a dark brown taste and a grouchy feeling. The carnation is likely to be affected with splitting calyxes and weak stems.

Our cuttings are all planted in 3-inch dirt bands and kept growing in these until planted in the house. Mr. Sim stated that he planted 8x8 inches and some varieties, such as Benora and Aviator, we plant 7x8 inches and Lassie 8x10 inches, as the latter is a rapid grower. Our plants suffered somewhat by being in the bands too long, though a few weeks after planting the growth started, vigorous and healthy. We have never before grown carnations of as good quality; the flower cut is continuous and will average away ahead of our annual totals in the past.

For many years the average carnation grower followed the advice of a man prominent at the time as a grower, to allow the soil to become quite dry and then water thoroughly. If you practice that method today and consider it an essential to success, do not try indoor culture, for you will surely fail; if not entirely, at least partially, and then you will be ready to condemn the method and say uncomplimentary things about it. Throughout the summer and winter we have been watering our carnations as often as the roses, except several times when we have been too busy to get it done. We never let this "too-busy" excuse keep us from it in the summer and early autumn.

Watering the Beds.

We use the Skinner irrigation system in our houses and water a bed until it is saturated, possibly several feet deep. We find after such watering in the summer time the beds dry off much more uniformly than after they are watered with a hose. Just as soon as the surface of the soil felt a little on the dry side, though barely dry enough to cultivate, it was soaked again. Our aim was to keep the soil so that it never looked dry. Every two weeks the beds were dried off sufficiently to hoe the surface until it was fine and loose; allowed to lie a day to kill any possible weeds that escaped the sterilizing, and then watered again.

He Went Somewhere.

When the shorter autumn days retard the drying of the foliage, we discontinue the use of the Skinner system and water underneath the foliage. The Skinner system is only a summer proposition for carnations.

One mistake we made this year that we shall not repeat was in topping the plants too late, all varieties being topped last season early in September. Matchless and other slow-growing varieties should not be topped after August 1, while Benora and White Benora will be about right topped August 15. Aviator, Lassie and Red Head can have a last topping September 1. August 1 is late enough for Laddie. With these dates for topping, blooming will start about October 20 to November 10 with us.

Spraying for Red Spider.

Another detail, almost as essential as watering, is to keep a careful watch for green aphis and red spider. Neither of these insects is difficult to control if preventive measures are taken in time. We do not syringe our roses or carnations nearly so often as the majority of the growers do, but when we do get on the job we aim to do it more thoroughly than I have seen it done on some places. Our water pressure can be regulated at from ten to seventy-five pounds, but we find forty-five to fifty pounds will clean spider off carnations in about three syringings, three days apart, so that the job need not be repeated for six or eight weeks; in fact, part of our plants have not been syringed from the time they were planted to the present day. Matchless appears to be more susceptible to spider than some of the other varieties, and has been syringed four times to date. To get a thorough job we make our own nozzles, or rather have our tinsmiths make them, by soldering a female hose coupling to a piece of ½-inch brass tubing about twenty inches long. The end of this tube is soldered shut and a slot sawed one-third of the way through one side of the pipe at an angle, about one-half inch from the end. This slot was made wider with a thin, flat file. We have had to make several of them to get the slot the satisfactory size and angle. We have several oilcloth suits to protect the operator from the spray. These long nozzles are guided between the rows on the ground, and the water goes almost straight into the air, playing sad havoc with the spider browsing in his happy hunting ground.

While the weather is warm, green fly can be kept in check quite easily by spraying with nicotine or by fumigating.

Simple and Successful.

Under the above method of culture the plants lose no roots and receive no check at transplanting and they can be fed at any time without fear of injury, such as would result from the indiscreet feeding of plants from the field that were not properly established. I firmly believe that by taking advantage of some mistakes made this season, we can get better results from indoor planting, in spite of the fact that a number of my friends have tried it for years and finally abandoned the practice. Some lime each season, plenty of manure added to the same old soil, good, healthy plants in 3-inch bands ready early in June, an abundance of water and a sharp watch for insects sums up the whole thing. Simple and successful it has been for us, after many years of partial or almost complete failure from planting out of the field.

GOING SOMEWHERE.

The man who had made a name for himself by the products from nearly a quarter of a million feet of glass in one state and had later established a still larger range in another state was asked the question, "How would you account for your making a success?"

"I haven't made a success yet," was the reply.

"Then to what would you attribute your good start on the road to success?"

"To put it briefly, I never got anywhere till I went somewhere."

"That's somewhat enigmatic. Will you explain your meaning?"

"Well, when I was first in business it was with my brother in a range of small greenhouses which wouldn't be considered of much account today, but with which we were quite satisfied. Indeed, I wondered if we were too much satisfied to make real progress. I wanted to see how other people did the same thing. When I broached the subject to my brother, he considered it a waste of time and money to spend a day going to visit a grower in another town. But I pondered on it so long that at length I made up my mind to go, and my brother finally consented.

"Sure enough, I observed a number of things at the establishment I visited which opened my eyes to improvements we could make here and there. My brother agreed that they were worth the time and money they cost. It was not long before I took another trip, and since then my travels among growers have been many and extensive. I never found that I got anywhere by staying at home. The only time I got anywhere was when I went somewhere, and then put the ideas I gained into my own business."

And readers will agree that J. W. Davis, whose big range at Terre Haute, Ind., and the one at Davenport, La.—not to speak of the smaller Illinois vegetable growing ranges in which he is interested—represent the latest methods in greenhouse culture, has by the method he described "got somewhere."

PITTSBURGH, PA.

The Market.

There was an exceptionally large volume of business last week. Every florist prepared for a large Easter business, but found that his preparations did not equal the demand. Reports from various retailers show that they were sold out early Saturday and could have sold considerably more had they been able to get the stock. The ice-boxes in the wholesale houses were practically clean Saturday evening. The demand for sweet peas, violets and lilies far exceeded the supply and it was necessary to cut many orders in half, in order to give each of the florists a few of his requirements.

Roses last week were in fine shape—an excellent stock of various grades. Quantities of Ophelia, Premier, Crusader, Columbia, Butterfly, Pilgrim and White Killarney were all in good supply. American Beauties were of excellent quality, but there was only a small demand. Even though the weather was exceptionally warm, sweet peas were of a fairly good quality. Violets, however, were not so good, but the demand far exceeded the supply. A large supply of carnations was on hand, but the demand far exceeded the supply and it was necessary to divide the product among the retailers. The supply of orchids was fair, but the demand far exceeded the supply. Calendulas were plentiful and sold fairly well. Snapdragon was also on the market. Even though the supply of bulbous stock, such as daffodils and tulips, was exceptionally large, yet the wholesalers found that it moved to good advantage and helped those florists who were short on roses and carnations.

Various Notes.

Mr. and Mrs. Norval Kiger, of Marietta, O., were visitors at the greenhouses of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co.

John Boeh, of Blairsville, Pa., was at Pittsburgh last week.

W. W. Bortz, of Greensburg, Pa.; Tarentum Floral Co., of Tarentum, Pa., and S. J. Stillwell, of Bellaire, Ohio, were represented at Pittsburgh last week, in order to obtain their Easter stock, as past experience has taught them that it is not wise to depend upon shipments at holiday time. This is a good example for some of the other florists.

The monthly meeting of the Pittsburgh Retail Florists' Association will be held at the Seventh Avenue hotel, Pittsburgh, Pa., Thursday, April 7, at 6:30 p. m. Please keep this date in mind, as this association needs the support and presence of every individual florist.

Last week invitations were handed to the florists and friends of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co. to spend March 31 at the greenhouses, at Bakerstown. It was the hope of the officers of this company that every florist would participate in this outing. Luncheon was to be served. For those florists who have no machine, street car accommodations were arranged.

Fred Hennock, treasurer of the Ove Gnatt Co., Laporte, Ind., was a visitor last week. H. J. H.

WHO'S WHO IN THE TRADE AND WHY

THOMAS H. WRIGHT.

DO you know Tom Wright? If you don't it is a sure sign your acquaintance with the Pacific coast, and particularly with Los Angeles, is slight. Everybody on the coast knows Wright. At Los Angeles he does one of the largest retail flower businesses in the United States in a store not at all in proportion to the volume of sales—but in the basement there is one of the biggest and best equipped workrooms of which the trade can boast. At a holiday time he often has thirty-five people filling the orders which come from all over the United States. On the edge of town he has a range of greenhouses, one of the largest in that section, feeding the store. The illustration shows Mr. Wright in one of these greenhouses inspecting a plant of his new Adiantum Wrightii. Mr. Wright's recreation is aviation. He is perhaps the first florist to own and pilot an airplane.

Ross E. Adgate, representative of the McCallum Co., Pittsburgh, Pa., has been seriously ill for the last three weeks at his home, Niles, O. His present illness is the indirect result of an injury received during his college days. While now out of danger, it will be a month or six weeks before he will be able to call on his customers again.

Middletown, Pa.—Abner T. Alliman has purchased the store of Linus E. Fenical and has already taken it over.

Worcester, Mass.—H. F. A. Lange gave a talk at the last weekly luncheon-meeting of the Exchange Club. He told the history, the care and cultivation of Easter lilies. A beautiful 14-bud lily was won by one of the members as the week's "booster prize."

VINCAS are again selling extremely well this season.

THOUGH Easter was early this year, Mothers' day is not far away. It is just six weeks from the big day. The date is May 8.

GROWERS, as well as retailers, should read what a banker has to say to florists on "How to Borrow Money," in the retail department this issue, page 68.

THE success of a business should not be measured by the money it makes, but no business can be considered successful which cannot keep its bills paid up.

THE nearest to a "national" rose show this year will be held at Boston April 6 to 10. The American Rose Society at that time will coöperate with the Massachusetts Horticultural Society at its spring show.

AS competition increases there will be two ways of meeting it. One will be to grow better stock than is offered elsewhere; the other, to cut prices. The man who uses the latter method seldom attempts the first.

IT looks like a great year for spring bedding work. If the public is a little short of money, compared with recent years, it is longer on time and the two factors are likely to result in a material increase in home gardening of all kinds.

No doubt this trade must come down on its prices as others do, but we hope the day never will come again when 4-inch geraniums will be advertised at $7 per hundred. It is better to grow a smaller quantity and hold prices to a point that permits a profit.

HIGH rents in the cities are a menace to our trade, recently recruited by the enlistment of large numbers of new flower buyers among the salaried and wage-earning classes. Families spending for shelter half their incomes are not likely to have much money for flowers.

THE lowest production of soft coal in four years, exclusive of the strike period of 1919, was recorded the second week of March. Approximately sixty per cent of full-time operation is being lost for lack of orders, it is said. Despite low prices, contract buyers hold off in the hope of a still further decline.

YOUR appearance and that of your salespeople marks the character of your store. Let there be nothing lacking in either.

IN reducing expenses, do not reduce your ability to get business or your capacity to handle it. That is the opposite of economy.

THE French Chrysanthemum Society, after a lapse of eight years, is reviving its annual convention and exhibition. It will take place next November at Le Mans.

NEWSPAPER reports of thefts of securities always concern Liberty bonds, never oil stocks. What appeals to a thief ought to appeal to the florist who has profits to invest.

A YEAR or so ago the effort was to get a few pennies per plant more than the other fellow. Now the idea seems to be to meet competition, or to go the other fellow one better.

DURING the post-war boom nearly all florists were able to clean up their accounts payable and to put themselves on a cash basis. It will be the sellers' fault if the trade backslides.

THE florists who handle the planting of shrubs and other hardy stock find a rapid increase in the demand. It is a department every florist who does bedding work can add to his great advantage.

COLLECTIONS are what you make them. If you don't watch credits or fail to be persistent in asking for prompt payment, collections will be poor—and they are likely to become poorer before they are better.

UNFORTUNATELY, there is small prospect of immediate revival in general business. The observers who are most often right think business in general must await the break in the building deadlock before there can be pronounced acceleration.

WHO IS OUT OF WORK.

Florists regard with concern nation-wide unemployment, for when jobs are scarce, purchases of flowers are correspondingly diminished. The shut-down of factories last fall was unwelcome news to the trade. Since that time reports of industrial depression and revival have so conflicted that few persons knew which way things tended. It is encouraging, therefore, to know actual facts, which show where depression has its effects and where revival has begun.

The United States employment service, obtaining its information from 1,433 firms in sixty-five principal industrial centers, reports that February 28 there were 1,626,958 workers employed, as against 1,643,253 January 31, a decrease of 16,295, or one per cent. The returns show that the greatest unemployment during February was in the iron and steel industry, a decrease of 7.3 per cent in labor employed being reported. Industries reporting increases were: Vehicles and land transportation, 18.8 per cent; textiles and other products, 8.5 per cent; leather and its finished products, 7.7 per cent. As for individual cities, decreases of from 12 to 24.9 per cent were reported for Perth Amboy, N. J.; Schenectady and Albany, N. Y.; Grand Rapids, Mich.; San Francisco, Indianapolis, Youngstown, O., and Denver, Colo. Increases of from 18.5 to 67.6 per cent were reported in the cases of Bridgeport, Conn.; Johnstown, Pa.; Peoria, Ill.; Detroit, Mich., and Chattanooga, Tenn.

According to reports made to the Department of Labor for February, ten industries showed increases in the number of persons employed, as compared with January, while in four industries there were decreases. The largest increase, 42 per cent, is shown in the woolen industry. Men's ready-made clothing shows an increase of 21.1 per cent and hosiery and underwear an increase of 20.8 per cent. The smallest increases, 0.8 per cent and 0.2 per cent, appear in iron and steel and leather. Percentage decreases of 12.8 per cent and 3.3 per cent appear in car building and repairing and cigar making, respectively.

From these figures it is evident that those industries which were earliest affected by the depression incidental to readjustment have entered upon the revival period, while those not at first affected have now experienced their turn. In the aggregate, however, there seem to be fewer jobless now than there were, though not many.

NATIONAL HOSPITAL DAY.

Another holiday presents an opportunity for florists. Florence Nightingale's birthday, May 12, is to be celebrated as national hospital day. Promotion of this day is being carried on by the National Hospital Day Committee, composed of officers of leading hospitals throughout the country.

For this day, the one hundred first anniversary of Florence Nightingale's birth, the 8,000 hospitals of the United States and Canada are preparing a program to bring themselves and their service to the notice of the public. An inspection of the local hospitals and training schools will be featured in many localities, so that the people may see for themselves what the institutions are doing.

President Harding, governors of states, and officers of corresponding rank in Canada are to be asked to proclaim national hospital day.

It is expected that thousands of persons will visit the hospitals and take flowers to the sick. The only drawback, as The Review pointed out to the committee, is that flowers are not apt to be abundant four days after Mothers' day.

CLASSIFIED ADS PULLING BIG.

That there are more Classified ads this season than ever before is due to two causes—the growth of the trade and the spreading of the knowledge that these little ads pay big. Like this:

Please cut out our ad for the time being; we are swamped with orders.—Walter P. Newell Co., Apopka, Fla., March 24, 1921.

If you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising you can be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

OBITUARY

Charles W. Hoffman.

The death of Charles W. Hoffman, of Dayton, O., occurred March 19, following an illness of more than four weeks. Mr. Hoffman was born on a farm near Dayton March 7, 1856, and practically all his life had been spent in the nursery and florists' business. His business was bought out by T. Pearson, of Dayton, in 1917.

Mr. Hoffman leaves his wife, Mrs. Stella Bell Hoffman, two sons and three daughters. Funeral services were held at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, March 22. Interment was in Woodland cemetery.

Mrs. John Reitmeier.

Mrs. Kate Reitmeier, wife of the veteran grower of Niles, Ill., died March 22, after an illness of considerable duration, with cancer. The funeral was held March 28 and was largely attended, among those present being many growers and wholesalers in the Chicago district, as both Mr. and Mrs. Reitmeier were well known in the trade. Their carnations are sold by the A. L. Randall Co. Mrs. Reitmeier was the niece of Nicholas J. Kruchten and the cousin of John and Henry Kruchten.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

Easter business was heavy and good, according to reports available on the Monday morning following the festival. Vast quantities of stock received throughout Saturday moved actively, and at noon Sunday little except what was embraced in late arrivals remained, barring an unusually large supply of snapdragons, mignonette and sweet peas, which were in abnormal supply, and a few long-stemmed, top-grade roses, the arrivals of which postdated the order season.

Everyone in the wholesale trade appears to be satisfied with cut flower conditions. The majority of the retailers disposed of their plant stock early Saturday. This made a good opening for cut flowers and resulted in an excellent business that continued throughout Saturday night until Sunday noon, and, in some cases, even later.

The weather was all that could be desired, bright and springlike, just the kind to please the retailer, who did a land office business in corsage bouquets and flowers for wear. Even the newspapers remarked upon the extent to which flowers were worn, on both Good Friday and Easter.

The quality of stock offered was excellent all around, with the exception of violets, perhaps, which showed the effect of warm weather. The best violets sold on orders at $1.50 per hundred, but late Saturday, on account of their scarcity, moved up to $3, although this late business was insignificant.

There was a plentiful supply of roses, and their movement was good and clearances were easily effected. A little stock arriving late was held over. American Beauties were in good supply. Hybrid teas were abundant, but long-stemmed grades were not so active in movement as medium grades, which met an immense demand.

There was a fair supply of orchids, and cattleyas moved freely, mostly Mossiæ and Schroederæ varieties. Spray orchids, such as vandas and phalænopsis, met a less than ordinary demand. Gardenias were plentiful, and although their quality was not up to the Christmas standard, they cleared out well.

Carnations were in good supply, but arrivals included much stock that was of mediocre quality. Clearances, however, were effected.

As ought to be expected, bulbous stock was in heavy supply. There were colored freesias in abundance, Spanish iris and forms of Narcissus poeticus, all of which met a moderate sale. Hyacinths were in general supply, both cut and in pans, and moved at prices conforming to quality.

The supply of miscellaneous flowers was large and embraced myosotis, iris, calendulas, snapdragons, delphiniums, mignonette, wallflowers, stocks, daisies, pansies and shrub flowers such as forsythia, deutzia and spiræa, all of which met a moderate demand. Monday, March 28, arrivals were light, with prices not materially changed from those of Saturday.

Various Notes.

The store of David Clarke's Sons, 2139 Broadway, was burglarized Sunday night, March 27. The thieves blew open the safe and carried off the contents, which, naturally, included late Saturday and Sunday sales returns.

Timothy E. Waters, of Poehlmann Bros. Co., Chicago, was a visitor in the cut flower markets Monday, March 28. He was returning to Chicago from a chaperonage of Easter shipments to southern points. In company with Irving Stein, of Seligman & Stein, he visited the supply houses of the city, leaving for the west at night.

John Miesem, Elmhurst, L. I., had a large crop of lilies for Easter, including giganteums and formosums, all of which were handled by Joseph S. Fenrich.

A forest fire last week endangered the carnation establishment of M. Matheron, Baldwin, L. I. The damage was done not so much by the flames as by dynamite which had been stored for use in the surrounding woodlands.

GAS FUMES DAMAGE PLANTS.

Suit for $100,000 Damages.

Miss Sarah Bates, a florist in the Laurel Hill section of New York city, has brought suit for $100,000 damages in the Queens Supreme court against the Nichols Copper Co., which erected a factory near the greenhouses of Miss Bates.

Thirty years ago Miss Bates and her brother started the farm and greenhouses and since had received an income averaging from $10,000 to $12,000 annually. Then the copper company started the factory on the adjacent property. The gases, fumes and smoke from the factory proved ruinous to the plants and flowers.

In 1904 the company paid her $3,000 for damaging her property. It also agreed to pay her $50 each month. In 1907 the monthly payments were raised to $100.

These payments, however, seemed but slight, for Miss Bates estimates that, even with the payments, her loss caused by the factory during the last ten years has been about $25,000.

She not only is suing the company for the monetary claim, but she is also asking for a removal of the factory and a writ restraining the company from operating it at its present location.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

The Easter business in this market fulfilled the expectations of the most sanguine and went ahead of the hopes of the pessimists. If it was not the biggest Easter on record, as some aver, it was extremely close to it.

As the Chicago wholesale market reflects conditions over a large part of the United States, we paraphrase the political axiom, "As Vermont goes, so goes the nation," and say that the splendid volume of demand in the Chicago market indicates that the trade at large enjoyed a business beyond the early expectations.

It is the general report that the early days of the week fell behind the corresponding days of last year, while the closing days of the rush went far ahead of the same period of last year. There are two reasons for this: A year ago the market was struggling under the handicap of an express strike which caused nearly everyone to attempt playing safe by having shipments dispatched a day or two earlier than usual; then, too, a great many buyers put off ordering until they had received some indication as to the way the public would take hold. It is a quite general report among the wholesalers that Thursday's tickets footed up a smaller total than last year, but that Friday made up for it and that Saturday went far ahead, in some cases being more than double the day in 1920. This bespeaks the vim with which the city buyers took hold when they found how well orders were coming in.

One factor which helped the cut flower trade was the shortage and high price of plants. The supply of pot lilies was the smallest in years and the quality of many of the few available was so poor they would not meet the needs of the better class of stores. There was a good supply of bulbous stock in pots, pans and boxes, with quite a few roses, mostly ramblers and Tausendschoen, but there was not much else. Most of the retailers sold out of plants in a short time and then turned their attention to cut flowers. As Saturday was a typical spring day, they did a big business.

The supply of cut flowers was an unusually even balance with the demand. There were times when certain items were difficult to find, but there never was a time a buyer could not find something with which to do business. Lilies were sold out days ahead. The lack of lilies cut a big hole in some of the wholesalers' sales; to have been able to make this loss up with other lines was an unexpected success. It had been predicted in some quarters that roses would be abundant and carnations scarce. Just the opposite proved to be the case. There were enough carnations so that prices could not be maintained except on the best grade, the bulk of the sales being at $6 and $8, while on roses the supply was so much below expectations that late sales were made at figures above quotations. A few Premier and Russell went to 60 cents a flower, probably a record price for Easter. Milady went as high as 50 cents. Of course these prices were obtained for only a microscopic part of the total receipts; the bulk of the sales were at 10 cents to 20 cents, with a good sprinkling of tickets at 25 cents to 35 cents. Crops were so uneven that some wholesalers carried roses over every night, while others had to buy on the market to fill their orders.

There was bulbous stock enough to go around, but huge quantities of it were sold at good prices; values may not have been commensurate with the cost of the bulbs and the waste through blindness, but many growers came out better than they had expected to.

Sweet peas were not so plentiful as would have been the case with better weather and there was great variation in quality; some were too poor to sell, even on a short market, while others were good enough to command $5 per hundred, although $4 was top for most growers. There were few violets, with generally little demand for them. Cattleyas were so scarce that, starting at $1, the price advanced to as much as $2 each for the best. Some quite large consignments of gardenias came from the east; they sold slowly because no chance was given to work up advance orders for them. Colored freesia was one of the most popular of corsage and table flowers. There was plenty of valley and it sold well. Callas profited by the shortage of giganteums.

Of other flowers there is not much to record; they were in such variable supply and demand that no general statement would include all cases.

On the whole it may be said that the business was highly satisfactory, although prices averaged lower than for any recent Easter and an increased quantity of stock failed to produce for the growers an increased sum of money.

Retailers' Reports.

In a general way retailers are well pleased with the Easter business. Most of them had a first-class trade, in many cases the best on record. Some were stuck on plants, due to too high prices, but they made good profits on cut stock. It is a general report that the public was in a buying mood different from last year; while there were plenty of buyers, they were disposed to limit their expenditures. Consequently, the stock that was left was of the more expensive kinds. But most retailers had bought conservatively and had little left.

Poole's Piffle.

The Easter business in Chicago retail stores certainly was not helped, though it might not have been hurt much, by the efforts of Russell J. Poole, secretary of the aldermanic committee seeking to reduce the cost of living. It will be remembered that Mr. Poole accused the retailers of profiteering at Christmas. March 25 the following appeared in the daily papers:

Retail florists are shooting the price of Easter lilies and other flowers skyward, Russell J. Poole, municipal hi cost expert, warned yesterday.

"A general investigation of wholesale and retail prices shows retail prices are being boosted from 200 to 2,000 per cent in some instances," the report reads. "This is unfair merchandising."

It was a coincidence that in the same issue of the Tribune carrying the above the Fleischman Floral Co. had an advertisement occupying nearly a full page headed "Easter Flowers at Most Reasonable Prices," while the Bohannon Floral Co. used a similar space to advertise "No Advance in Prices for Easter." No doubt these helped to nullify Poole's piffle, but the Allied Florists' Association at once came to the front and secured the publication of the following March 26:

In a statement issued yesterday the Allied Florists' Association ridicules the assertion of Russell J. Poole, city hi cost expert, that retail florists are boosting prices for Easter sales.

"Mr. Poole has not made a thorough investigation," the statement says. "His assertion that flower prices are being boosted 2,000 per cent is unreasonable. That would mean that a plant costing $2 at wholesale is being sold for $40.

"Easter lily blooms cost the retailer from 20 to 30 cents each, and are being sold at from 35 to 65 cents. The average net profit of Chicago florists for Easter will run from twelve to fifteen per cent."

ing schedule again this year. Those who want prompt attention to their orders should keep in mind the difference in time.

How Big and the Cost.

W. J. Keimel has an interesting article in the annual just published by the American Rose Society. It is entitled "Cut Roses Around Chicago" and in it Mr. Keimel gives the following figures as to the extent of the rose-growing industry here. They are:

Space devoted to roses	10,000,000 sq. ft.
Growers' investment	$10,000,000.00
Operating expenses, yearly	6,000,000.00
Persons employed	2,000

Mr. Keimel divides the operating expenses under the following heads:

Labor	$2,000,000.00
Coal	1,600,000.00
Fertilizer	400,000.00
Rose plants	400,000.00
Insecticides	100,000.00
Maintenance and miscellaneous	1,500,000.00
Total	$6,000,000.00

Various Notes.

By the now familiar method of abolishing the position, the new West park board has eliminated Jens Jensen as landscape architect for that system. Mr. Jensen has been identified with the building, remodeling and maintaining of the west parks since 1886. He has built up a national reputation. At one time he was superintendent of the West park board, but for several years has been giving the system his services as landscape architect for $250 a month.

The Allied Florists' Association spent about $1,000 advertising Easter flowers in four daily papers, using two Tuesday, one Wednesday and one Thursday. A big spring campaign is planned.

Had more lily plants been available, A. Lange thinks his total Easter business might have run as much as twenty per cent above last year. Without them the gain was between five and ten per cent. Everything was sold except a few large rose plants, which cost more than most buyers wished to pay.

Sensing the changed conditions, the Alpha Floral Co. shunned high price arrangements of plants and stocked heavily on small potted stock. The result was a great increase in total sales over last year, when a blizzardy Sunday wrecked the corsage business.

Deliveries were so heavy that some had still to be made Easter day, though this store is not usually open Sunday.

Commenting on the changes in the business which take place from year to year, C. J. Michelsen says that while Easter lilies were short this year, they never before had received and sold in four days over 40,000 colored freesias. This novelty is taking hold strongly, Mr. Michelsen says, the new colors being much better than the earlier ones.

The A. B. C. has received a large shipment of gladiolus bulblets from Holland, new varieties for planting to work up stock. They were brought in under permit issued with agreement that only the crops, not the original import, is to be sold. The concern is adding 1,100 square feet to its basement stock storage and shipping space.

Johnson & Jensen, 1924 East Seventy-first street, opposite the Bryn Mawr station of the I. C., filled their attractive store with Easter plants, principally bulbous stock and roses, but including some good lilies, and had a fine business. They are at the entrance to the best residence neighborhood on the south side.

John A. Michal, 7045 Stony Island avenue, lost quite a little glass in his big show house and plant houses in the hail storm of March 7. He boarded up the worst places and will reglaze as he has time. Business increases steadily with him.

At about 7:15 a. m. March 26 a sprinkler pipe burst in the second floor store of Joseph Ziska & Sons, flooding the rear of their premises and the store and basement of the E. C. Amling Co. Fortunately, the Ziska stock in the region of the break was of the waterproof variety and the Amling loss is, as usual, covered by insurance. The two concerns were not greatly delayed in their Easter rush.

Superintendent Schousboe is offering for sale the young stock at the Peter Reinberg establishment, stating that because of Mr. Reinberg's death and the approaching partition of the estate the young stock will not be needed for the replanting operations originally planned.

At its regular meeting at the Hotel Randolph next Thursday, April 7, the Chicago Florists' Club will consider the plan of reorganization proposed by President Kohout, a copy of which has been mailed to each member. By this plan the various organizations which now divide the interest of members will become "trade divisions" of the Chicago Florists' Club, each operating independently along present lines with its own officers and membership, but with a united treasury and membership in the Chicago Florists' Club. By such interlocking organization it is expected to unite the florists' interests of this market and save individuals and firms some of the money they now spend annually as dues. "Under the proposed plan," says President Kohout, "none of the separate trades are 'lost in the shuffle,' but remain distinct, fundamental organizations equal in their influence as if by themselves and in perfect harmony in their influence with the Chicago Florists' Club. It is but another means of making true coöperation possible. In disposing of wholesale duplication of the demands for membership in so many trade organizations under this proposed plan, all the floricultural and horticultural organizations can concentrate their power by the support of the majority of the membership of the whole

Easter Business.

There never was such an Easter. Some of the florists hardly dared hope that there would be such a demand for stock, but those who prayed for a busy holiday season could never have anticipated such a busy time as they experienced last week. Delightful, spring-like weather rendered shipping easier than ever and better conditions for both wholesale and retail trade would be difficult to imagine.

Easter lilies were all sold out early in the week, and roses and carnations, particularly, were much sought after. The roses cut this Easter were particularly fine and prices were lower than during the last three or four years. Orchids were shipped in large quantities across the border, but the demand for these flowers is increasing every year and they now find their way to almost every city and town in the Dominion, during holiday times particularly.

Violets, fortunately, held up, owing to the few days' dull weather last week, and along with sweet peas and anemones helped to fill many orders. The large crop of short American Beauty roses, which usually comes in at this time of year, did not materialize sufficiently early, but there will soon be a heavy cut, succeeded by another large crop in good shape for Mothers' day. W. G. P.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The Market.

Last week business came with a rush. Commencing early Monday morning, the heavy demand came as a bomb dropped from the sky, and this continued right through until Sunday noon, when unquestionably the climax was reached. Throughout the city and the surrounding towns business was bigger and better than ever, according to reports given by the florists themselves. There was only a limited supply of potted lilies on the market, but everything else was quite plentiful, except perhaps spiræas. Potted bulbous stock was in big demand; in fact, there was scarcely anything in a blooming plant but was sold within a short time. The stores are fairly well cleaned out.

This was also a wonderfully good Easter for cut flowers. There was a heavy demand for flowers, and stock cleaned up well. Everything in cut flowers was in splendid condition, except violets, which were soft and possibly weakened by the warm weather of late. There was an enormous demand for them, however, and unfortunately the supply was not equal to the demand. Sweet peas were excellent and fairly plentiful. Gardenias were also in fair supply and sold well. Orchids were in good demand. There was a good cut of carnations on hand, for which there was a heavy call. The supply of roses was about as usual, chiefly in the medium grades. Valley was popular again this Easter and sold well. Snapdragon, though not overplentiful, was in good demand. Calendulas, mignonette, yellow daisies, acacia, forget-me-nots, pansies and baby primroses were in good supply and were found useful for box assortments. A good shipment of English primroses was seen and quickly moved. A good quantity of callas was seen, but few cut Easter lilies were found in any of the stores. All greens were plentiful.

Various Notes.

Visitors to the trade last week included Mr. and Mrs. James Bates, of the Bates Flower Shop, Oakfield, N. Y.; Herman Muller, of Fairport, N. Y.; S. W. Morgan, of LeRoy, N. Y., and John Ward, of Mumford, N. Y.

Apart from the regular flower stores at Rochester, there were seven other stores which handled flowers and potted plants extensively this Easter. They were: Wegman Bros., two stores;

Harry Brush, one store; Maloney, one store, and two flower departments in the Mohican stores.

Miss Stevens spent the week-end with her parents, at Seneca Falls, N. Y. Miss Taft, also of George B. Hart's office force, spent the week-end with her friends at Honeoye Falls, N. Y.

John Dunbar, horticulturist and assistant superintendent, and Robert Dukrow, foreman, at the Lamberton conservatory, assisted by W. S. Riley, park commissioner, and C. C. Laney, park superintendent, formulated the plans for the successful Easter display held at the conservatory in Highland park Saturday afternoon and evening, March 26, and continuing through the whole of Easter Sunday. It is said that it was the most brilliant and attractive flower display that Rochester has ever witnessed.

George T. Boucher is running a new delivery car, which is finished in black and gold. Mr. Boucher reports an extra heavy Easter trade.

Charles H. Suhr is growing some excellent red Darwins, which were good sellers for the holiday. He had a big business.

Chester Ament also contributed to the trade a fine lot of rose plants in full bloom, which were quickly sold.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

The week opened clear and cool. The temperature rose during the middle and reached summer height on Easter evening. The weather throughout the entire week suggested May rather than March. Better weather for growing, selling and delivering Easter plants could hardly be expected.

The Plant Market.

With an enormous production of blooming plants for Easter, the supply was not equal to the demand. Everything sold. Many more flowering plants could have been sold in the last three days of the week. The quality of the stock generally was good. The variety was not so great as formerly, although some of the growers made especial effort to have an assortment that would please the buyers.

The lilies were as fine as the Philadelphia market has ever seen. There were not so many of them as last year. The price was 20 and 25 cents per bud and bloom, with special discounts on extremely large orders. The market on lilies became stronger on the last three days of the week, closing with a rush on Saturday. One large grower stated that he was obliged to refuse orders for several thousand pots on and after Thursday. The demand for lilies in the churches was larger than usual, owing to the light supply of Spiræa japonica and the absence of Deutzia gracilis.

The Philadelphia market has never seen such a wonderful stock of hydrangeas. Such freedom of bloom, combined with exquisite delicacy of coloring, was not dreamed of in the palmiest days of Otaksa. These French hydrangeas are simply wonderful. There is every reason to believe that they will be even finer next season. There are a few cultural tangles that, when straightened out, will improve matters. For example, some plants in 6-inch pots are equal, nay superior, to others in 8-inch pots. While the question of staking is still in dispute, it seems to be an established fact that the hydrangeas grown in pots only are the best. Despite the heavy supply of hydrangeas—and it was an extremely heavy supply—more could have been sold.

The rambler roses were a feature of the Easter plant market. They were well grown and well timed. Some of the lighter-colored varieties were used effectively in the churches. Tausendschoen and Excelsa led. These three varieties of plants, lilies, hydrangeas and roses, made up the bulk of the Easter stock. While not a large number of lilies were shipped out of town, fully one-half of the other two were, and probably a like amount of the varieties that complete the list, with the single exception of bulbous stock.

The bulbous flowers were the best that this market has seen for a long time and there were more of them. Hyacinths were most popular. The white were freely used in the churches, the colored varieties at home and for gifts. Daffodils and tulips in pots and pans were in great request.

Azaleas, genistas, spiræas, cinerarias and primulas were offered and sold in fair numbers. Lilacs and daisies were scarce. Rhododendrons, bougainvilleas and, most serious of all, Azalea indica, were out of the market.

The Cut Flower Market.

The opening of the week of March 21 found business dull. There was no life to it. Flowers came in freely and they were hard to sell. As the week progressed a change came. Things improved. The out-of-town shipping orders grew heavier and heavier. All the good stock moved out well. Flowers that had been held were of no use; no reliable house was willing to risk its reputation sending out stale stock. It was sold, of course, but only to those who saw and knew just what it was and were willing to take it at a price that will not encourage pickling. Despite the steadily rising temperature, the market continued to improve all day Friday. By Friday night everything first-class that was available for shipping had been shipped. Saturday morning found the local market so bare that the city buyers who had been holding off, with the double purpose of getting their plant orders filled and of taking advantage of the expected slump in the cut flower market, were obliged to pay the highest prices of the week. This continued all Saturday morning, but late in the afternoon the market broke, when it was too late for most of the buyers to take advantage of it.

The corsage flowers were objects of the deepest interest. Sweet pea trading, which had been most apathetic early in the week, became active to the point of distraction as Easter approached. Every wholesale house in town was short on sweet peas and the crop was large. The price for the extremely short-stemmed flowers was $1 per hundred, with $2, $3, $4 and even $5 for fancies.

Cattleyas at $1.50 each, more or less, were unequal to the demand. Gardenias at from $3 to $6 per dozen were freely used. Valley was plentiful and satisfactory at $8 and $10 per hundred; in fact, valley regained much lost popularity. Violets, chiefly New York doubles, at $1.50 per hundred, were good, but everybody is shy of violets in warm weather.

Cut lilies were in brisk demand at $25 per hundred for the best. Callas were in heavy supply, but the quality was not there. Short stems, small flowers and poor packing resulted in a wide range of prices. Lilac did not go so well as usual. Snapdragon was in heavy supply and when properly cut was most satisfactory.

Carnations were high in price at $8, $10 and $12 per hundred, with Laddie at $15. Red carnations lagged, while good colors like Pink Delight, well grown Enchantress and Mrs. Ward sold best.

Roses were in heavy supply. Prices were lower than last year. More could have been used on Friday, but much short-stemmed stock and everything inferior had to be jobbed off. Beauties brought $1 each and were not equal to the demand for them.

Russell was in fair supply, but there was not nearly enough of the medium grade to go around. The prices were from $10 to $30, and a few of the select grades brought more.

Premier was good and Columbia fine at prices that were lower than Russell in the better grades. There was a surplus of white roses, but both Ophelia and Ward were short of the demand.

Daffodils were the leading bulbous flowers. Reinforced by some pretty good stock from the south, they made a brave showing. Greenhouse-grown Emperor et al. brought $5, while the same

The Market.

There may be some dissatisfied growers, retailers and wholesalers, but I have not come across any of them this Easter. Everything was propitious for excellent business, the weather being particularly kindly, facilitating the sending out of plants with little or no wrapping. General trade is quite depressed and great numbers are unemployed, but one would not have known it from the way plants and flowers were bought. There may have been Easters when some higher prices were secured, but none when a more satisfactory, all-around volume of business was transacted and this is the more surprising with the holiday coming on so early a date and yet being favored with such balmy weather.

Easter yearly becomes more and more of a plant holiday. Coming as early as March 27, it was at one time feared that lilies and other flowering plants would be in short supply, but this did not prove true, except in the case of lilies. A large number of these were grown and nearly all were flowered on time, some a little too early, yet the demand was so strong that many thousands more could have been sold. There were few unsold on the morning of March 26. Plants carried, as a rule, from three to six flowers and were mainly of the giganteum type. Wholesale prices were $25 per hundred buds; retail, double this price. Some formosums were seen and these were taller and carried far more flowers than the giganteums. This is the lily par excellence for an early Easter and for cutting.

Roses were in good demand. Some fine standards were included. Tausendschoen was more abundant than any other sort, but Hiawatha, Dorothy Perkins, Paul's Scarlet Climber and other ramblers, as well as numerous polyanthas, hybrid perpetuals and hybrid teas, were sold. Hydrangeas were never seen in greater abundance or of finer quality. They were somewhat overdone, especially in the larger sizes. Genistas were fine and sold well; so did ericas and acacias.

Azaleas were comparatively scarce and high-priced. Some good white marguerites and well flowered lilacs sold well, as did bougainvilleas. There was an immense quantity of bulbous stock in pans. The growers had hard work to hold some of this back with outside temperatures of 84 degrees early in Easter week. There were some cinerarias, primulas and cyclamens, but fewer than had been expected. Pots of lily of the valley found favor, as did some nice gardenias. Not so many prunus, malus, wistarias, deutzias and other forced shrubs were seen as usual. A few nice plants of the yellow Jasminum primulinum were offered. There was only a moderate call for ferns and foliage plants. Taken all in all, more plants were undoubtedly sold than ever before at Boston.

Cut flowers are a comparatively minor issue Easter week, but good supplies were available and prices were good, better March 24, in some cases, than two days later. That is usually the case at holidays, but growers always persist in holding back big supplies until the last day. Roses did not make any particular advance in price and an abundant supply was available. Flowers lacked the substance they would have had in cooler weather. Whites, as usual, dragged the most.

Many thousands of violets were ruined by the heat wave of April 20 and 21, when temperatures of over 80 degrees broke all March records. About the last of the singles appeared for Easter. Sweet peas and marguerites sold well. The supply of callas and cut Easter lilies easily cleaned up and many more could have been sold. There were few tulips offered, but great numbers of narcissi were available. Hyacinths sold poorly.

Quite a lot of snapdragons were offered, but sales were somewhat slow. For cattleyas there was not much demand. Asparagus sold well.

Market Since Easter.

A fair supply of flowers came in April 28. The demand was somewhat light and prices showed a dwindling tendency all around. Violets are done. Bulbous stock from inside will soon end, also, with a continuance of warm weather. Snapdragons are selling slowly, but for sweet peas and carnations there is a fair demand. Roses are lower and selling slowly. Marguerites are more plentiful and the quality is improving. Pansies are abundant and good and, with the passing of violets and primroses, sell fairly well.

Various Notes.

The Boston Globe of March 25 contained an interesting story illustrated by William Sim's new variegated carnation, Fairy, a cross between Rosette and Matchless, which Mr. Sim has renamed Mrs. Grace Coolidge, in honor of the wife of Vice-president Calvin Coolidge.

Owing to the halls of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society being rented for the week of April 19, the next meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club will be held April 26. B. F. Letson, manager of Carbone's, will lecture on "Floral Arrangements."

Penn's did the biggest Easter business in their history this year. Lilies, roses, hydrangeas, genistas and bulbous plants were the leaders among flowering plants. Henry Penn celebrated his forty-fourth birthday Easter Sunday.

Del Cartwright, former salesman for the Waban Conservatories, is building a greenhouse, 34x175, at Wellesley, on the estate of his father, Elijah Cartwright. The house will be used for carnations.

H. M. Robinson & Co. report a banner Easter business, with practically all flowers sold out. They say they could easily have disposed of 10,000 more lily plants.

Favorable shipping weather prevailed this Easter. Good Friday the temperature rose to 74 degrees. March 26 the maximum was 56 degrees and there were light showers, but it was not bad enough to harm business. Easter Sunday was dark and foggy—not the type of day favoring the fashion parade.

O. A. Knight, brother of Johnston Knight, manager of the Boston Cooperative Flower Market, has taken the place at this market made vacant by the death of Max Aronson, as salesman there.

The W. W. Edgar Co. had cleaned out all of its 14,000 lilies some days before Easter and could have sold many thousands more. Roses and other plants were also well cleaned up. A nice crop of Lilium candidum came in on time.

No mean horticultural show was to be seen at the store of John J. O'Brien, on Beacon street. Handsome groups, tastefully arranged, of lilies, acacias, ericas, bougainvilleas, azaleas, roses and other plants made a striking display in this roomy store and business was excellent.

Easter Sunday vegetation here was unusually advanced. In good bloom outside were Cornus mas, Dirca palustris, Benzoin æstivale, many forsythias, some prunus and such hardy plants as crocus, scillas, chionodoxa, primroses, hepaticas and, in warm locations, narcissi and tulips.

The great Boston spring show opens

April 6. There are at least two entries for the prizes of $1,000 and $500 offered for a rose garden — Thomas Roland and the Breck-Robinson Co. The Burrage orchids, Hunnewell rhododendrons, J. S. Ames' Kurume azaleas, the roses in pots and tubs, as well as cut, will make notable displays. Cut roses will make a great showing on the third day of the show. There will be Victor Heurlin, son of Julius Heurlin, of the Blue Hill Nurseries, South Braintree, Mass., came back from Florida last week. He and a friend left Boston for Florida on a motorcycle December 15. They are not enthusiastic over Florida, except as a winter rest resort, and much prefer the Old Bay state, even though its climate may be more varied and rigorous.

The Houghton-Gorney Co. had a satisfactory Easter business. The company's advertisements in the leading Boston dailies were catchy and in good taste.

The principal article in Country Life in America for March is by B. F. Letson, of Carbone's, on "Flower Arrangement." It is well illustrated and makes interesting reading. W. N. C.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND.

The Market.

Stock was plentiful for Easter, but an exceptionally heavy demand cleaned up practically everything in sight. Potted plants were in such demand that enough could not be secured. Hyacinths and Easter lilies were leaders in the bulbous stock, although jonquils, daffodils, cinerarias and all available blooming plants sold well. Lilies brought 25 cents per bud and bloom.

Small cut flowers for corsage work were in excellent favor. Sweet peas, violets, valley, jonquils and calendulas were in this popular class. Sweet peas were abundant, but sold well at from $2 to $4 per hundred. Carnations were not so popular as some of the other flowers. High-priced roses moved none too well, either.

Various Notes.

The April meeting of the Indiana State Florists' Association will be held April 5 at the office of the Smith & Young Co.

The Circle Flower Store enjoyed the largest Easter business in the history of the firm. Besides the holiday business, this store was quite busy with funeral work for the Fletcher and Murdock funerals. Mrs. Reynolds had personal charge of all the flowers at the latter funeral.

Oscar Carlstedt recently bought a new pleasure car.

Greene's Flower Shop had an excellent telegraph business in both incoming and outgoing orders for Easter.

The demand for potted plants at the Claypool Flower Shop was so heavy that the supply was out early and it was necessary to substitute cut flowers.

Bert Hetz has been cutting some fine Madame Butterfly and Premier roses.

A. Wiegand's Sons Co. states that it had a nice lot of stock for Easter and plenty of it, and that it enjoyed the largest Easter business to date.

Baur & Steinkamp had a large cut of carnations for last week.

Temperley's, Florists, had a large wholesale business for the Easter period.

John Rieman's excellent Easter offering was entirely disposed of.

Bertermann Bros. Co. enjoyed an especially good business in potted plants and corsage flowers. Telegraph business was excellent. E. E. T.

PROPAGATING DATE PALMS.

A customer of mine has a large date palm. Last season it bloomed and produced seed. Several small palms have grown from its roots and are of fair size. Would it be safe to remove these? Would it injure the parent tree or not? Just how should it be done?

M. E. H.—Tenn.

The young growths, or suckers, may be removed from the base of the date palm and potted up into small pots, provided they already have some roots. But it is not easy to establish these suckers if they are taken off before they form roots, for they require heat, moisture and a rather close atmosphere and even then may take several months to make much root. On the whole, it would be inadvisable to adopt this method of propagating, as seedlings are easier to manage and more easily obtained. W. H. T.

THERE'S A HINT IN THIS.

In a great many coöperative tests conducted on Missouri farms by the Missouri College of Agriculture, tomato yields have been increased 159 per cent by the application of eight tons of stable manure an acre, 153 per cent by 250 pounds of 4-8-5 fertilizer, 152 per cent by 250 pounds of 4-8-0 and 106 per cent by 250 pounds of acid phosphate. The most economical gain for the cannery tomato crop was produced by acid phosphate. Commercial fertilizers also increase the earliness of the crop. Tomatoes receiving complete fertilizer came into bearing three to four weeks earlier than the unfertilized plants.

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, H. G. Hastings, Atlanta, Ga.; secretary-treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

THERE has been an enormous sale for gladiolus bulbs this season.

THE early spring has started the counter trade into greater activity than most seedsmen ever have experienced in March.

THE month just closed sets a record for March business by the W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago, asserts Manager Ralph B. Howe.

THE catalogue houses report mail orders holding up remarkably well. It may turn out a better seed season than many thought possible.

LUCKILY, home-building means less to the seedsman than to the nurseryman. There are plenty of orders this spring to plant last year's gardens, whether new home lots are laid out or not.

THE official roster of the Oshkosh Seed Co., Oshkosh, Wis., is: President, Everette R. Peacock; vice-president, C. Rooewekamp; secretary, A. R. Ward; treasurer, F. G. Dowidat; auditor, A. H. Sporleder.

LACK of employment in the cities may not have much effect on gardening, because there is not much gardening in cities, but in the smaller places unemployment will afford time to "work around the place."

DR. DAVID GRIFFITHS, of the Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., was a recent visitor at the Brown Bulb Ranch, Capitola, Cal. He was inspecting the bulb growing farms in that section. The Brown Bulb Ranch received an export order last month for over 30,000 yellow varieties of gladioli, the first order for such stock for a foreign country other than Canada. The herd of imported Guernsey cattle is reported as a success, and it is expected to show a profit before long, besides providing the desired fertilizer.

Low prices for millet, sorgo and Sudan grass seed and high freight rates have retarded the movement from growers and country shippers to large jobbers, according to data obtained by the United States bureau of markets. Up to January 20, 1921, less than one-third of the surplus 1920 crop of millet and Sudan grass, and less than one-fifth of the sorgo crop had been shipped from country points in the leading production centers. In general the movement of these seeds has been more belated than the 1919 crop movement, which was retarded by railroad embargoes and a shortage of cars.

"THINGS are not extremely rosy in the wholesale seed trade just now," reads a report from Great Britain. "Those who were so eager—and they were many—to make quite sure of stocks of popular lines made contracts, signed and sealed, for crops at very high prices. Those very contracts helped to force prices still higher, but now it is a case of surplus stocks to be cleared if possible at a loss, and many a bill has to be faced for seeds that haven't realized first cost. There is one thing both wholesaler and retailer may take note of, the exceptional weather is inducing everybody to clamor for seeds to get them in the ground. A short, sharp snap of wintry weather may more than likely wipe off a lot of these

REORGANIZE CHILDS' BUSINESS.

The business of John Lewis Childs, Inc., Floral Park, N. Y., of which Mr. Childs was the active head until his death four weeks ago, has been reorganized. The new president is Mrs. Caroline Childs; vice-president and general manager, Arthur H. Goldsmith; secretary-treasurer, Jay Lionel Childs. All three of the sons are now in the business and taking an active part.

The oldest son, Vernon, has charge of the packing department and rentals of outside properties. Mr. Childs owned two apartment houses, both of which have a waiting list. Mr. Goldsmith, the present general manager, is a brother of Mrs. Childs and was formerly manager under Mr. Childs, but left several years ago to go into the real estate business. Henry H. Davies, who had been general manager for the last eight years, resigned soon after Mr. Childs' death.

PROTEST HIGH RAIL RATES.

Nebraska Seedsmen Act.

Not a few business men see in the high passenger and freight rates lately granted the railroads by the interstate commerce commission a burden that is seriously handicapping many lines of industry. Among those who have expressed themselves strongly on this subject are the officers of the Western Seed & Irrigation Co., Fremont, Neb., the president and treasurer, Lowell Emerson, and the vice-president and manager, William Emerson. This company, to gain support in the rising protest against the high rates, has sent out the following letter to over 1,000 persons in the seed trade, grain exchanges, Chicago Board of Trade and commercial clubs:

We understand by the interstate commerce ruling that the passenger and freight rates in Nebraska must be increased again, the increase to take effect March 22, 1921.

It seems to us the time has arrived when the people of the United States should rise up in a body and protest to every representative and every senator in Washington against these continuous increases in passenger and freight rates, also increased rates of all public utilities, such as telegraph and telephone companies, electric light, gas and power companies, street railways and express companies.

Is it not, therefore, time that some concerted action should be taken, when everyone is trying to reduce the high cost of living, to have a decrease in the rates to something like what they were in normal times and in keeping with the reduced prices on nearly all commodities at which the manufacturers and business men are obliged to sell their products. These continuous increases in freight and passenger rates result in lower prices to the producers, who are obliged to stand the freight from point of shipment to the cities and terminals, and on the other hand the consumer is obliged to stand the increased rates also. It therefore seems to us that the public in general should demand that the railroads reduce their expenses in the way of high-salaried officials, train dispatchers, etc., also the excessively high wages they are paying their employees, so as to bring down the freight and passenger rates where they belong, and we trust you will use your influence and write to the commercial clubs and all other influential parties that should take these matters in hand, also write or request your members or clients to write to the senators and representatives of their district at Washington, as concerted action only will have the desired result.

W. W. BARNARD'S WILL.

The death of W. W. Barnard, reported in a recent issue of The Review, will not affect the business of the W. W. Barnard Co. Ralph B. Howe, who has been in charge since the late Mr. Barnard's illness, in 1915, will continue as manager of the affairs of the company.

To stabilize matters further, Mr. Barnard's will leaves the stock of the company to five trustees: Alice S. Barnard, Emma J. Graham and Mary E. B. Howe, sisters of the deceased, and Ralph B. Howe and Alice Howe, children of Mary E. B. Howe. The sisters of Mr. Barnard are the immediate beneficiaries of the trust, and through them the estate is continued in trust for the children of Mrs. Howe. Probate proceedings were commenced Monday, March 28.

The trustees have ample powers to maintain the business as it has been conducted in the past. A directors' meeting will be held early in April. Mr. Barnard remembered several of his old employees in his will, and C. D. Coventry, secretary of the company, was left a small block of the stock.

CATALOGUES RECEIVED.

Jackson & Perkins Co., Newark, N. Y.—"Bulletin No. 5, to the Trade Only," a condensed but still comprehensive nursery list, "showing varieties, grades and quantities available March 15, 1921."

Doty Dahlia Farm, Silver Creek, N. Y.—A catalogue of dahlias; twelve pages, in pocket form and bound in a tasteful red cover; includes nearly two pages of cultural directions.

Elm City Nursery Co., New Haven, Conn.—"What Others Have to Say about Box-barberry," a neat 12-page booklet, containing testimonials which, says the company, will serve as answers to "the many questions as to Box-barberry's hardiness, adaptability and attractiveness." The four illustrations indicate some appropriate uses for the plant.

North Shore Ferneries Co., Beverly, Mass.—"Garden Furniture," a fully illustrated book, containing eighteen large pages, about 10x14 inches, and offering an extensive line of furniture and accessories "for the adornment and comfort of the garden, lawn, porch and park." The articles are constructed of wood or stoneware, in numerous designs, classically finished or rustic, and comprise chairs, settees, summer houses, trellises, pergolas, arches for roses, colonial posts, garden gates, folding screens,

Edward T. Bromfield Seed Co., Garden City, N. Y.—"Your Garden Year," an illustrated 48-page seed catalogue, notably well printed and carefully compiled. The company, evidently, is genuinely proud of the book, believing that "it marks a distinct departure, in several respects, from the ordinary seed catalogue." In speaking of these "several respects," or points of superiority, the company probably refers particularly to "the sifting out of both obsolete and superfluous varieties" and the effort to give definite and helpful cultural information. On the front cover is reproduced, in colors, one of Frank Galsworthy's pictures of flowers. The back cover shows two new dahlias that the company is introducing.

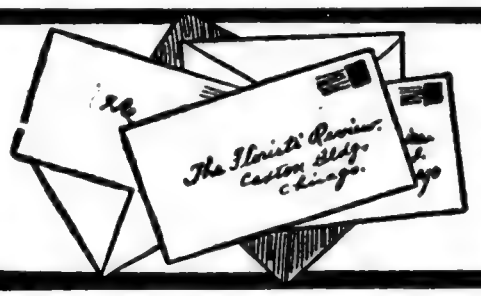
The Market.



Favorable weather, an abundance of stock and an increased demand resulted in a record-breaking total for Easter sales. There were not enough lilies on hand to meet the demand. There were considerable quantities of well grown ramblers, spiræas, rhododendrons, hydrangeas, azaleas, primulas and bulbous stock, which all found a ready sale. The demand and supply were not wholly confined to plants, however, for at no other time during the season have such quantities of roses, carnations, sweet peas and bulbous stock of excellent quality been disposed of. The regular prices which prevailed probably account for the increased quantity that changed hands.

Thousands of lilies and other plants were shipped to all parts of Canada and many repeat orders for lilies had to be turned down during the last few days.

Various Notes.

An attempt was made to do some cooperative advertising and it met with partial success. It seems hopeful that those who were not in this time will fall in line later on.

J. Gammage & Son made shipments to eight out of the nine provinces in the Dominion of Canada.

RULES FOR NEW FLORISTS.

As many new flower shops have been opened since the war, and as most of the proprietors are without much experience in conducting such an establishment, the following methods are suggested for the guidance of any florist who wants to kill his shop as quickly as possible:

1. Close it for an hour at noon.
2. Wait on customers in your shirtsleeves.
3. Always have a pipe in your mouth. A cigar or cigarette will do.
4. Don't take any nonsense from customers. Let them know it's your shop, even if you haven't paid for the goods yet.
5. Don't be friendly with other florists, for fear they'll give you a lot of advice.
6. Always buy from a traveler, else he might think your credit is not good.
7. Use your windows for storage.
8. Don't try to be popular. Be independent.
9. Give credit to anybody, or people may think that you need the money.
10. Don't advertise. You can't wait on more than one customer at a time.

HOW ABOUT YOUR LEASE?

Changing Rented Stores.

When a florist leases a building for the conduct of his business, he should see that there is incorporated into the lease provisions giving to him the right to make such alterations in the building as he may desire. Otherwise he may find that he has rendered himself powerless to adapt the premises to convenient use, except as he may yield to oppressive demands on the part of his landlord. It will not do to suppose that, after possession is taken, the tenant may suit himself about what changes he will make, so long as he does not call on the landlord to bear the expense. Such changes may constitute injury or waste, which can be prevented by injunction or redressed in damages if made without the landlord's approval.

Speaking on this subject, the Alabama Supreme court said in a recent case, 85 Southern Reporter, 449: "It is an old principle of the common law that a tenant is guilty of waste if he materially changes the nature and character of the building leased. And many authorities, both English and American, declare that such changes will be deemed waste, even though the value of the property would be enhanced by the alteration.

Landlord Must Consent.

"This rule of the common law has been relaxed or partially repudiated by a number of courts in modern times. But it is still the law in this state, and we think it is well founded upon the just and controlling consideration that the owner of the property is entitled to have it remain as it is, without material change in its structure, form and character, except insofar as he has consented thereto, either by express agreement, or by necessary implication from the terms and purpose of the lease.

"The lessees have, by implication, the right to possess and enjoy the property during the term specified, and to put it in such use and employment as they please, not materially different from that in which it is usually employed, to which it is adapted and for which it was constructed."

Another important legal point to be borne in mind is that where the tenant desires to reserve the right to remove certain features of a building installed by him, such as a florists' refrigerator, the right of removal should be expressly reserved by written contract. Otherwise, it may take an expensive lawsuit to establish the right of removal, if that right can be established at all under the particular circumstances, without special agreement.

SELL DRUGGISTS FLOWERS.

The use of flowers in displays of merchandise in other lines has been a matter of comment in these columns before. Assistance comes from a new quarter to florists who endeavor to promote this. A druggists' journal editorializes as follows:

"Fresh flowers are always an ideal accessory to a display of perfumes and toilet goods, and especially so in the early spring. Where the use of fresh flowers seems impractical, artificial flowers are found to be quite satisfactory. A potted plant, however, does not cost any great sum, and yet lends to any display intended to attract women a power not equaled by many times its money value in other forms of advertising. Any of the early spring flowers are suitable, but at Easter time the lily is without a rival."

HOW TO BORROW MONEY.

What the Banker Wants to Know.

Quite often florists, seeking loans from their banks, complain of the intricacies of finance when, after an interview with the credit men, they fail to get what they wanted. The banks, these days, are in much the same position as the manufacturer of a few months ago, who had a waiting list of customers trying to buy his products. Naturally he sold to his best customers—the ones who pay most quickly and who stick to him at times when it isn't so hard to get his goods.

In reality, a banker is like any other sort of business man. His commodity, the use of capital, necessitates greater care than some others. How simple are the banker's demands of a would-be customer are pointed out for florists in the following interview:

"There are two prerequisites to securing a loan," the banker said. "First, a florist must know his business. And, second, the florist must have a balance in the bank.

Good Customers and Poor Ones.

"If one customer has a balance of $5,000," continued the banker, "and another a balance of $200, and both want to borrow $10,000, which one do you think will get the loan? Easy, isn't it? When we have a hard time to take care of loans to good customers we cannot give credit to poor ones.

"I am a great believer in constructive banking and like to build up a big customer from a small one. If a man, starting out in a small way, looks good, is honest and knows his business, I believe in helping him with a loan and then watching his business closely. That's the way to build up the banking business.

"You're taking a chance, of course, and once in a while some fellow doesn't make good. You've got to keep the margin of loss low, however, just as a retailer keeps his bad debts at a minimum. There isn't much difference between selling flowers and selling credit.

Must Know His Business.

"The florist who wants a loan must know his business. That's ninety-nine per cent of the situation. He must have figures to show what he is doing, what the value of his stock is, what his unpaid accounts amount to, and other facts that the banker thinks he ought to know. He should know his business so well that he can answer quickly and correctly the questions the banker asks. That is what creates confidence.

"You see, it is the florist whose statements jibe with his figures who is the most apt to get the loan. If the statements and the figures do not agree, it is an indication, usually, that the florist does not know his business and the banker hesitates to grant credit in such a case.

"Where a florist does know his business thoroughly it is ordinarily the policy of the banker to let him have the money and then to keep in touch with him. If his business is gaining, if he is getting along well, the bank is safe. If his business is not doing well, the bank has to shut down on credit."

NATIONAL FLOWER SHOW.

Committee Meets at New York.

A meeting of the national flower show committee was held at the Grand Central Palace, New York, Tuesday, March 15, at 2 p. m. There were present: Chairman George Asmus, Secretary John Young, President Thomas Roland, Vice-President Adolph Gude, F. H. Traendly, Herman P. Knoble, Patrick Welch, F. C. W. Brown, Carl Hagenburger and A. F. J. Baur, secretary of the American Carnation Society.

The preparatory work being accomplished by the local committees at Cleveland was detailed in a report made by Mr. Knoble. A meeting of the committees had been held in Cleveland the afternoon of March 13 and the different chairmen were most enthusiastic over the prospects for the show. Each promised his heartiest coöperation in a general effort to make the show a huge success.

The Trade Exhibition.

Considerable discussion took place in regard to the arrangements for the trade exhibits. In accordance with the plan discussed at the Washington meeting relating to the adoption of a uniform decorative scheme to cover all trade displays, the secretary presented a sketch embodying a layout, which the committee took under consideration. The lack of such a decorative scheme at the New York international flower

Let's Cut Out Our Needless Cuttings

One day last September we took the little old bus, and trundled off into the across country by-roads.

Finally we struck a regular joy place, lined on each side with poodles of wild asters, goldenrod and Joe Pye weed. The road was pretty "punk."

Stones, ruts, puddles and all kinds of things to shake your spine loose from your complacency.

Suddenly we came upon four men with scythes, mowing down all that wonderful wayside joy.

They were cutting down those things of beauty which did no harm; and not doing a thing to that pesky old road which was in such frightful condition.

It set me to thinking about some of the things we were doing at the shop.

Before I got back, came to the conclusion that we needed to stop a lot of our wayside cutting and do a bit of repairing.

As a result we cut out several things that were cutting into our profits.

Drop in some day and I'll tell you one of the biggest ones. Have a notion, it has some bearing on your F. T. D. business.

show, then in progress, was commented upon by different members of the committee and it was unanimously agreed that it was the one weak feature of the show. Opportunity for a perfect decorative scheme was lost because each exhibitor had been free to work out his personal ideas, resulting in a jumble of decorative effects far from pleasing. It was decided that estimates from Cleveland dealers be obtained as to the cost of carrying out the idea expressed in the sketch, including uniform railing and other details.

The rental for trade space was, on motion of Mr. Knoble, fixed at $1.75 per square foot, this price to include the erection of a booth after a style decided upon, suitably decorated, and the official sign, which would also be made part of the decorative scheme.

Grand Prize of $5,000.

the providing of an exhibition feature which should be the principal feature of the show. It seemed to be the consensus that this feature take the form of a garden and, finally, on motion of Mr. Roland, it was decided that provision be made for four garden groups, for which $4,000 be appropriated, with a special sweepstake prize of $1,000 for the most meritorious and adaptable exhibit in the class, which is to be open to all, and known as the grand capital prize class. The schedule description of the class was arranged as follows: "The best development of a garden covering 1,000 square feet. An exhibit may include lawns, flower beds, rose gardens, shrubbery, borders, rose beds, bulb beds or any exhibit that the artistic ability of an exhibitor may suggest, as the widest latitude will be allowed in the competition." The first four entries are to have preference in allotment of space. This capital prize is believed to cover the largest amount of money ever offered in one class at any exhibition in this country.

It was also decided that all entrants in the capital prize class must pay a guarantee fee of $200 to the secretary, previous to January 1, 1922, as an evi-

"Say it with Flowers"

A New Year's Thought

Let us learn to feel the joy in things that are simple and universal—in the beauty of the dawn, of sunset and of flowers. Let us cultivate a feeling of tenderness for all living creatures, from the dumb and patient animals to our brother man. Would you learn these deeper values in life? Study the flowers.

a bulb garden covering 500 square feet, were too low; therefore it was decided that the prizes be changed to read, "First prize, $500, with second prize, $300," and that the offer of a gold medal in this class be withdrawn.

Expenses and Guarantee Fund.

Considerable time was devoted to a discussion of a budget of expense covering the inauguration and dismantling of the show, but no action was taken upon it as a whole, the consensus being that, out of that stock late yesterday. One dealer who sold out before noon said he could have disposed of twice as many lilies as he had on hand. Potted plants were popular. The demand for them was much stronger than for cut flowers. Plant baskets containing potted flowers in fancy woven baskets brought from $5 to $30. Corsage bouquets of sweet peas and violets also sold well. The sweet peas were damaged, however, by the cloudy weather of the last few days. American Beauty roses could not be purchased here last week. The florists had a heavy run, however, on other varieties of roses, including Premier, Russell, Lady Gay and Tausendschoen. Tulips, jonquils, hyacinths, sweet peas, tions came in so plentifully the last few days of the week that the price dropped from $80 per thousand, which had been advertised, to $40 and $50. Boys on the street sold them for $1 a dozen and less. Roses and sweet peas cleaned up early. In the former no choice of variety was noticeable. Good grades ranged in price from $8 to $20 a hundred and these had the best call. There was much short-stemmed stock in roses at $4. These were taken only when the long-stemmed kind had given out. Sweet peas were $1.50 and $2, choice quality.

Lilies were 25 cents a bloom. The principal growers brought in nearly all their lilies on time. A month ago it was predicted that only twenty-five per cent of the lily crop would be ready for Easter. Weather favored the growers and care and forcing did the rest. There was a good supply and the foliage and flowers were of excellent quality. On account of forcing, the plants were shorter and held their own weight without staking. There were not so many blooms to the plant, but they were large and perfect.

This market is peculiarly susceptible to roses. It seems strange that they should be preferred at Easter, when spring flowers were of such perfect quality and as plentiful as they were this season. Whether it is because the public demands roses or the florists fear to break the strong affection that their customers hold for the queen of flowers is hard to determine, but it is a fact that the wholesalers could not move bulbous stock until roses and lilies were sold out.

Southern jonquils were shipped in and sold here for $5 a thousand. Growers in this market paid $30 a thousand for their bulbs. They could not compete with the shipped stock. One wholesale florist reported that he did not have a single call for tulips. The crop of Darwins was about equal to that of other bulbous stock. Snapdragon moved slowly until the last. Bulbous stock that was to have been sold in pots and baskets had to be cut and put in cold storage until after Easter in many cases, the warm weather of last week bringing the bloom out so rapidly.

Various Notes.

The William L. Rock Flower Co. staged a lavish display of azaleas.

Arthur Newell prepared to handle the biggest Easter business in his history. The advance orders were sufficient grounds for such an expectation.

same as last year. Telegraph orders, in particular, broke all records.

The Easter market brought forth a number of surprises, the greatest of which was the number of blooming plants that were obtainable. True, a good number of these were bulbous stock, some single in pots and many in pans, but everything in the pot line was selling fast and, even with the extra supply, there was not enough to meet the demand. Of course, prices were not so good as during the war, but everyone was selling all he could handle. In the markets, pots and pans or hyacinths and tulips were going like the proverbial hot cakes, at prices that were surprising. Even geraniums, for the best, were bringing as much as 50 cents each. Daisies, lilies and roses of the rambler type held sway in the market and cleaned up rapidly. In the stores about the only thing missed from the usual supply was azaleas. Never have I seen finer hydrangeas. Everyone seemed to have gone in for the French varieties. There was plenty of fine heather to be had and, although this was well done, yet it does not seem like an Easter flower. Heather is by no means the same thing at Easter it is at Christmas.

Lilacs were plentiful and sold well. Pots of lily of the valley, as usual, sold well. Primroses never were in better shape and sold fast. Made-up baskets were not so plentiful as at Christmas, but there were many and they cleaned up well. Cinerarias were in big supply and of extra quality; in fact, all of the plants showed extra good handling and the demand had been judged as accurately as it was possible.

Cut flowers were never in better shape. There was none of the soft, held-back stock to be seen, but when the wholesale houses got to filling their orders it was soon apparent that they were going to run short on some lines of stock. This was especially true of stock for corsage work. Violets were out of the question. For istance, Good Friday the writer saw a consignment that came in from New York state. They were at least two days old then; they were beginning to fall and the odor was obnoxious. These would not be used until Easter morning, so I think the ones who let violets alone were wise. This state of affairs made sweet peas do double duty and, consequently, there were not enough of them to go around. In orchids, while there was a splendid supply, many more could have been used. These were for the most part local stock, and finer ones were never seen on this market. Another thing that was just right this year was lily of the valley. In many cases it had to be forced a little to get it in. Carnations were in splendid supply and of fine quality. There was plenty of all sorts of miscellaneous stock. Asparagus was plentiful, but smilax was not to be had. As is usually the case, several large and prominent funerals occurred during the rush, but everything was taken care of. At such a time as this one cannot but realize that the florists, taken as a whole, are hustlers.

Retailers' Reports.

In my round of the stores I found the various staffs doubled and in many cases trebled and everything was moving like a well lubricated machine. At Mary Johnston's I never saw this firm have a finer lot of blooming plants and made-up baskets. Mrs. Johnston told me her cut flower orders were heavier than ever. Her corsage work was especially large and church decorations, in which this firm is active, were the heaviest in history, as were also telegraph delivery orders.

At Samuel Feast & Sons' there was a fine line of made-up Easter baskets, with blooming plants predominating. Here was to be seen as fine a line of lilacs in pots as it has ever been my pleasure to view. Mrs. Hill said that cut flower orders surpassed anything she had ever witnessed, and prices were all that could be desired.

At John Cook's there was a splendid line of blooming plants and made-up baskets. In many of these were pot-grown syringas in full flower. The Cook hydrangeas were certainly a sight to see. The plants were good and hard, and never have I seen them so well flowered. Here, too, I was told that the cut flower orders were running ahead of all expectations.

Over at William J. Halliday's, Miss Groves is to be congratulated on having the best line of blooming plants I have ever seen this firm handle. Especially noticeable were a lot of primroses. These were among the best done plants of this variety I have ever seen offered, and the way they sold was proof that anything well grown is easy to sell.

At James Hamilton's, when I got there, they were nearly cleaned up on plants. Mr. Hamilton says he never saw plants go better than they did this year; that the cut flower orders broke all records, but his firm was in a fine position to take care of them. Out at the range the roses were right in crop. This firm had 10,000 valley pips and Mr. Hamilton said he was cutting 10,000 blooms.

The Baltimore Wholesale Florist & Supply Co. certainly did a record-breaking business in plants. William F. Ekas, the manager, deserves credit for the way he handled that firm's plant business. He had three carloads alone from the Frank E. Cremer range, at Hanover, Pa., besides the local stock. It took the staff and three trucks night and day to handle it, but it was fine stock and cleaned up fast. Tate.

ST. LOUIS, MO.

The Market.

It was a great Easter for the retailer, wholesaler and grower. Until Saturday, March 26, the weather was almost perfect. A heavy fall of rain on Easter Sunday caused considerable worry to retailers who had a heavy supply of cut flowers for the trade of the promenader. This cut the receipts in the transient trade, which is usually heavy when good weather prevails Easter Sunday.

The plant deliveries made Saturday, when plants needed no wrapping, saved much extra expense and time. The pot plant trade was undoubtedly the largest that the local trade has ever experienced. The summer-like weather all through the month forced bulbous stock to the limit. If Easter had been a week later the plantsmen would have suffered a great loss. Even as it was, the loss was considerable. Lilies, as usual, came in for a heavy demand and were all sold out. Many more could have been disposed of had they been obtainable. The average price was 50 cents per bloom or bud. In some cases the price was as high as 75 cents.

Rambler roses of fine quality were much in favor this year and are growing steadily in popularity. There was a large variety of them. In the absence of azaleas, hydrangeas had a heavy demand. However, the stock was limited, as hydrangeas are late in coming into bloom. Bulbous stock had one of the largest demands in years. Dutch hyacinths were entirely cleaned up. Cyclamens were few this year. Cinerarias had a large sale. Valley in pans, mignonette and genistas all had a large demand. Astilbes and white marguerites had their share; in fact, any flowering plant sold well. The retailers sold out everything good and left their stocks low. Easter is the big day for the plantsmen, yet the cut flower men had one of the best Easters in years, for there was plenty of stock in everything seasonable except bulbous stock. Carnations were many. The big shipping trade used the bulk of them, but left plenty for the local buyers. Roses, too, had a big demand and the supply was equal to the demand. The quality was of a high grade.

Cut Easter lilies and callas had one of the largest demands ever known and were cleaned out early. Violets were few, with little demand, as the warm spell for the last two weeks did them no good.

All bulbous stock cleaned up well. There was a scarcity this Easter. Antirrhinums were fine and had a good sale. Sweet peas, which were expected to slump, were actually scarce. The supply was many thousands short of the heavy demand. There was a big run on calendulas, valley, white and yellow marguerites and pansies. The demand for all fancy greens was larger than ever.

The plantsmen say that this Easter was, beyond a doubt, the best ever. The wholesalers had plenty of stock on hand to fill all orders and say the business was entirely satisfactory. While the retailers did not relish the rain on Easter day, they made up for it by their large Saturday business. It is safe to say that the volume of the 1921 Easter business was ahead of that of any previous Easter.

Various Notes.

The west end stores of Joseph Witek, Fred H. Weber, Sanders Nursery Co. and F. C. Weber staged remarkable displays of blooming plants all through Easter week and had one of the best trades in years. Telegraph orders at these stores were heavy.

Grimm & Gorly had a heavy run of trade in all lines in their new and attractive Washington avenue store.

establishments of the George Waldbart Floral Co., Ayres Floral Co. and Miss M. S. Newman had all they could do to supply the demand. Saturday, especially, was a record-breaker.

In the south end, Windler's Flowers, Conrad Bergstermann, C. E. Schoenle and Charles Beyer had a volume of business that surpassed any they have ever had before.

Messrs. Kingsley and Seeger say that the Easter business at the stores of the Mullanphy Florists was the best they have had. They also say that the business is improving each year.

C. Young & Sons Co. had a great display of stock from its greenhouses at the Olive street store. Extra delivery was necessary both on Saturday and Easter Sunday. There was a fine display of almost perfect lilies.

Julius Schaeffer, of Vandervoort's floral department, and Samuel Roth, of the Famous-Barr floral department, did a good business all the week.

George Berner and the Riessen Floral Co. all had as much Easter business as they could handle.

Thomas Carr, of the Union Market, says he never saw such heavy demands for all kinds of plants as he did this Easter. At closing time Saturday night there was not a plant left in the store.

It would be hard to find finer Enchantress carnations than those Pierre Schneider is sending to C. A. Kuehn. The crop will be large from now on.

Floral Co. and the Brix Floral Co., in the north end, report a splendid Easter business in plants and cut flowers.

Adolph Steidle, until recently with Fred H. Weber, is now with Grimm & Gorly.

Miss Gildring, for many years in charge of the Washington avenue store of the Koenig Floral Co., is now with Fred H. Weber.

According to L. Jules Bourdet, chairman of the publicity committee, the next meeting will be an important one. He requests that every member attend the meeting, which will be held Wednesday afternoon, April 6, at publicity headquarters, 1316 Pine street.

The St. Louis Association of Gardeners will hold its regular monthly meeting Wednesday, April 6, at 8 p. m., at the municipal greenhouses, in Forest park. The usual interesting discussion will take place.

Henry Ostertag, head of Ostertag Bros., says that he has had many years' Easter experience, but that this year it looked as if everyone in St. Louis bought some sort of plant or flower.

Oscar Ruff will entertain the Florists' Club officers for their regular monthly meeting Thursday night, March 31, at 8 o'clock.

The St. Louis County Growers' Association will meet, as usual, at the greenhouses of the W. A. Rowe Co., Kirkwood, Wednesday night, April 6, at 8 o'clock. President Ude expects a better attendance than there was at the two previous meetings.

William Bouche, the consulting landscape architect who laid out Park View, an exclusive residential section, reports that he has plenty of work ahead.

FRAT-M'S

Frat-M's are a great help to florists who make funeral work. They are exact reproductions of the official emblems embossed in gold and the different colors as required by each Fraternal and Labor organization.

The florist is saved time and worry in the nuisance of lettering, as well as the keeping of such a stock of wire frames, and different colored flowers. Just use such flowers as you have and then attach a FRAT-M with paste to the chiffon, or by the hanger that comes for each, as a card, and that is all there is to it, excepting the comment and commendatory talk for the florist.

Just pick out a dozen of the most used from the list following, enclosing $2.00 per dozen, and if they don't make you ten times their cost, return those unused and get your money.

Square and Compass, Chapter, Commandery, 32nd Degree, Shrine, Eastern Star, Royal Neighbors, M. W. A., Maccabees, Odd Fellows, Red Men, Knights of Columbus, K. of P., Moose, Jr. O. U. A. M., B. of R. T., B. of R. Clerks, B. of L. E., Br. of Blacksmiths and Helpers, Eagles.

Just give Frat-M's a trial; you don't have to keep them. We are willing to send them to you and return the money if they don't pay you ten times their cost. Address

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

Corvallis, Ore.—Miss May Russell has opened a shop in this town.

Astoria, Ore. — Harry McCullough, formerly part owner of the North Vancouver Nurseries, Vancouver, B. C., Canada, has moved to Astoria and is getting ready to erect greenhouses there sometime this coming summer.

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

The Market.

Contrary to general expectations, Easter business was well above the average this year. Good lilies were scarce and high in price. They were completely cleaned up. Potted roses were splendid stock and were all sold. Roses were comparatively scarce, as were bulbous stock, daisies and cut flowers generally. The Monday after Easter saw the market cleaned up by 7:30. Wholesalers and retailers were tired, but satisfied.

Easter lilies, except in a few cases, were not so good as usual this season. Too much heat was given in the earlier stages of growth. The cuts were poor in many instances. Callas were more plentiful than usual for Easter, but good Shasta daisies, always popular for this holiday, were scarce. In plants, there were good rhododendrons, ericas in variety, cyclamens and cinerarias, besides smaller stock for basket work.

American Florists' Exchange.

The second public meeting and free banquet and smoker held under the auspices of the American Florists' Exchange in the market, March 19, was an unqualified success in every particular. There was a big gathering and everybody was imbued with the spirit of enjoyment, although with an underlying current of business and coöperation that spoke volumes for the continued success of this patriotic movement. From the first there has been a feeling of elimination of self-interest or, at least, its subordination to the interests of the trade as a whole and the spirit of "America for the Americans." One well known eastern visitor was among us, Philip J. Foley, of Chicago, who, after hearing the arguments put forth by two able speakers in the movement now on foot, immediately dug down for a big check towards the fund being raised for this work. Between $500 and $600 was collected in subscriptions in a few minutes and handed over to the treasurer.

Beginning the entertainment part of the program, John Bodger, Jr., showed a large series of colored slides of the firm's seed farms, at El Monte, Cal., where large acreages of zinnias, asters and other seeds are grown for domestic and export trade. Mr. Bodger explained the slides and showed close-ups of several of the novelties, including the new dahlia-flowered zinnia, which was much admired.

Roy F. Wilcox and A. D. Houghton briefly addressed the audience on the subject of the show which is to be held at Exposition park this fall under the direction of the California Nurserymen's Association. Mr. Wilcox, who is president of this association, is deeply interested and working strenuously to make this show a success and, with his able committees and co-workers, there is no room for doubt on this score. Vocal music, an oriental dancer and a couple of good wrestling bouts wound up a most pleasant evening, for the success of which everyone concerned worked heartily. Stanley Purdie and Tom Wright worked indefatigably for the entertainment. H. N. Gage and Albert Goldenson saw to it that everyone had plenty of the good things of life in the way of eating and drinking, while the irrepressible Charlie Gutting did a lot towards keeping up the merriment of the evening and, incidentally, was one of the biggest subscribers to the fund. It was a notable, worth-while and successful meeting, without a single jarring or dissentient note.

Frey's Freesias.

Mr. and Mrs. Alois P. Frey were hosts to a party of friends recently, all of whom greatly enjoyed a view of the Rainbow freesias, which were just at their best. F. R. Hills, his wife and daughter, H. R. Richards, with his wife and daughter, and A. Miller, of the American Bulb Co., with his wife and her mother and his little daughter, were all present. Mr. and Mrs. Frey have a most charming home and the 5-acre patch of colored freesias, backed up by the mountains, makes a most beautiful picture, one not often seen on a commercial place. The remaining five acres are in cover crop and the deep green forms a delightful foil to the richly colored freesias.

In one patch there are about 500,000 of the pale blue Viola and adjoining it a similar number of General Pershing. It is a remarkable fact that hardly a bulb in this million has come untrue to type, showing the great care Mr. Frey has given to selection. He has, in fact, discontinued sending out mixed bulbs, his reason being that some types run out faster than others and that in a Asparagus Longifolius. We have completely tested this and find that commercially it is going to be a winner. Shoots very sturdy, from 2 to 3 feet in height. Wonderful for fresco decoration and charming in bouquets. 100 seeds, $1.00.

ASTERS

ASTERS--(American Beauty). This is one Aster that can be grown both in early spring and in late fall. It is, therefore, the peer of Asters for the florist. Offered in old rose, September pink, purple, lavender and mixed. Trade packet, 50c.

ASTERS--(Fraser's California Crego). Very fluffy and borne on unusually strong stem. You have always had visions of such an aster. We are offering it in rose, pink, white, blue, lavender and mixed. Trade packet, 50c.

R. G. FRASER & SON, California Seed and Bulb Growers Pasadena, California few years some varieties would be lost, while others would be in superabundance. Besides the two popular kinds mentioned above, which are the only ones to be sent out this season, there are over a thousand selected, trued-up crosses in almost every imaginable color. It is obviously impossible to describe even a fraction of them. There is variation in habit, in stem, in size and in contour of blossom; in fact, in almost every characteristic. But there is not a single variety but has some extra fine points about it. Any types not showing these are put immediately in the discard and, as every hybridist will suppose, a great many have gone this way.

There is a beautiful variety, or rather group of varieties, for there are several colors, that Mr. Frey calls Wistaria. They have long, semi-pendent racemes of flowers, borne on wiry stems about eighteen to twenty-four inches in length, and have a most artistic effect. A finer flower for basket work can hardly be imagined. Then there is a splendid stiff-stemmed yellow with fluted flowers, quite distinct and pleasing. A deep red, almost crimson, takes the eye readily among the other shades, this being a dwarf in habit, but most floriferous. The deep blues are also most attractive, while the shades of carmine, rose and orange are all fine in their way. It should be noted that all these are selected and grown under number, each variety being kept separate. The work of keeping the records of all these must be great, but both Mr. and Mrs. Frey are enthusiasts. Without their enthusiasm and love of their work, such results could never be attained. There is something bigger and deeper than the financial end, though this will doubtless be satisfactory. Ideal home conditions, with everything needed for the conduct of this most interesting phase of the business, must lead to the prosperity which is wished them by a host of friends and business associates.

Various Notes.

Roy F. Wilcox & Co. were in with a fine line of potted heathers in variety for Easter. They were still cutting some melanthera, but the Easter cut was expected to end it for the season. George Hamburger, head rose grower for some years, has resigned his position here. He is considering going into business for himself, though at present his plans are not matured.

Charlie Lewis is now with the Broadway Florist.

At Wolfskill's & M. Goldenson's a big lot of orders for made-up baskets were booked before Easter, one order calling for several hundred plants.

Out of 10,000 Easter lily bulbs, Wright's Flower Shop's greenhouses brought in over 9,000 plants for the holiday, in spite of the fact that the bulbs came in late.

Friends of S. Murata will be glad to learn that he is considerably improved in health, although he will not be able to leave the hospital for some time.

Some splendid specimen plants of Erica regerminans, timed to the minute, were noted at the store of the E. C. Amling Co. These make fine Easter plants for the better class of trade. Another specialty is cut Easter lilies shipped here from Chicago. The flowers are shipped in the bud and arrived in excellent condition, opening up pure white.

Walter Garbett, who has been manager for the E. C. Amling Co. since the opening of the store, leaves here April 1 to go into business for himself as a dealer in cut flowers and plants.

The seed department of Howard & Smith's nursery, at Montebello, Cal., is a busy place these times. This is under the close personal surveillance of Fred Howard, president of the company, who takes great interest in the splendid strains of flower seeds being raised and disseminated from here. Ernest Edwards is the capable and well informed manager of this department and, as soon as the rush season is over, he intends to take a trip to Europe. He has a wide acquaintance among English and American seedsmen. Mr. Edwards is a native of Birmingham, England.

Asked how business was for Easter, during last week, Mr. Royce, head shipper for W. Armacost & Co., pointed to a stack of orders on file for every day of the following week. "Actions speak louder than words." This firm is in again with a splendid cut along all lines.

Harry Bailey, of Montebello, Cal., is mailing out his orders on plumosus seed and he says it looks as though he will be sold out by the time present orders are filled. The seed is of extra good grade this year, though the crop was not so large as usual. Purity freesias look well on the ranch and a big cut of Sprengeri seed is being taken.

Field View of Howard & Smith's New Non-lateral Branching Aster Peach Blossom

NOVELTIES AND SPECIALTIES FOR 1921

HOWARD & SMITH'S NEW GIANT NON-LATERAL BRANCHING ASTERS.

It is needless for us to extol the qualities of this new strain of asters, for they are better than any other strain in America today for florists' use. They combine a flower of mammoth proportions with a long stem practically free of any laterals. These asters are the result of several years' work beginning with the crossing on non-lateral branching types of the Peony-flowered class and those of the Crego type. These asters have come to stay and the strain will prove a money-maker for anyone who grows it. They are something different.

Peony Flowered Peach Blossom (incurved). A superb new color, flowers of enormous size, stems 18 to 24 inches.
Per trade packet, $2.00.

Peony Flowered Light Blue (incurved).
A magnificent shade, flowers 4½ to 5 inches.
Per trade packet, $2.00.

New Giant Peach Blossom (curled).
A magnificent new type with curled and twisted petals after the style of the most ultra-refined Comet type with flowers borne erect on long stems non-lateral in character.
Per trade packet, $2.00.

New Giant Dark Purple (curled).
A fine companion to the foregoing flowers, enormous in size with petals beautifully curled and twisted.
Per trade packet, $2.00.

HOWARD & SMITH'S NEW GIANT PLUMED CELOSIA.

A splendid new class of feathered Cockscombs of the Pyramidalis type. The plants attain a height of three feet and over and are surmounted with immense gracefully feathered plumes remarkable for their great size and splendid range of colors. The plants are easily raised from seed and make ideal pot plants for stock work. The colors range from yellow through various shades of rose, carmine, crimson, bronze, etc., and a batch of plants grown from seed will prove remunerative.
Per trade packet, $1.00.

NEW ANEMONE FLOWERED DAHLIAS.

Unquestionably one of the most distinct breaks which has occurred in cultivated plants in modern times. The blossoms are replicas of the Marguerite Mrs. Fred Sander or Pyrethrum roseum in shape. The ray petals are broad and usually of a different color from the center, quilled petals of the flower. A feature of these new dahlias is the fact that they can be reproduced about 80% true to type from seed.

Plants dwarf in habit with the blossoms borne well above the foliage on strong wiry stems. The color variations are marked, ranging from purest white through the various shades of rose, pink, orange, bronze, carmine, purple, yellow, crimson, etc. Spring sown seeds will flower the same summer. For basket work, or any choice cut flower arrangements they are unrivaled and their keeping qualities are remarkable. We predict their universal use as a choice cut flower.
Per trade packet, $2.00.

GYPSOPHILA ELEGANS GRANDIFLORA.

A much improved strain worthy of your attention as a catch crop in the greenhouse with much larger flowers than those of the older types; an H. & S. selection worth a trial.
Per trade packet, $1.00.

DELPHINIUM BELLADONNA.

The strain we offer is the true, skyblue, perpetual flowering type which is rapidly becoming an indispensable subject in all florists' establishments.
Per trade packet, $1.00.

GERBERA JAMESONII HYBRIDS.

A strain of superb quality containing all colors from purest white to darkest crimson with all intermediate shades of orange, salmon, yellow, rose, carmine and others.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

The way in which the market is cleaned up daily shows that business is brisk, for considerable good stock is being handled. Daffodils are about over. The few that remain are bringing high prices. Tulips are, to some extent, taking the place that daffodils have had in the local market since the second crop arrived. Violets are still plentiful and are of good quality. Cut Easter lilies are plentiful, but, on account of the demand, the price is holding up well. Potted lilies are selling well in the retail stores. A few fine days have done much toward bringing forward spring flowers. Many of the wholesalers report an exceptionally busy pre-Easter season in the matter of shipments. The retail stores are profusely decked with potted roses in bloom, especially ramblers and Cherokees, both single and double. The market is well supplied with roses.

Various Notes.

In spite of the briskness of his Easter business, J. A. Axell was able to take care of all customers. He considered himself especially fortunate in the fact that one of his growers supplied him with fine potted lilies of the valley for the Easter season.

Every day last week the nurseries of the United Flower & Supply Co. sent in large quantities of potted Easter lilies, Crimson Rambler roses and single and double Cherokee roses. Before nightfall the local trade usually absorbed them all.

Enomoto & Co. are gratified that the violets are holding their own so well, for the firm has handled some large violet orders during the last week and has been able to fill them all.

Several hundred dozen cut tulips and some good roses are coming in daily from the nurseries of the Growers' Cut Flower Co. But they are all gone early each day.

Domoto Bros. had a large quantity of Easter lilies in pots. The firm reports that no previous season has shown such a demand for formosums, both cut and potted.

The E. W. McLellan Co. was fortunate in having plenty of roses just at the season when they were in demand. The nurseries are still sending in excellent cuts.

The Art Floral Co. had a busy time with bon voyage baskets when the Golden State sailed on her maiden trip to the Orient. There were a number of distinguished passengers aboard, including a large group of San Franciscans whose friends remembered them with flowers.

Pelicano, Rossi & Co. do a large proportion of the church decoration work for the city. Angelo Rossi states that the lily crop this spring was exceptionally good and he was able to supply enough cut lilies to meet the demand, which was heavy.

inquiries regarding a large vase of iris in a window of their store. The flowers were of a purple so deep that it seemed black. This deep hue was relieved by a stippling of white. A card bore the information that it was Iris oncocyclus susiana, introduced from Constantinople. The bulbs are being cultivated at Santa Cruz and the flowers are by-products of a bulb farm. The flowers were large and funereal-looking.

The MacRorie-McLaren Co. was busy during Holy week with a series of funerals. The Powell street store has been showing some beautiful potted azaleas from the firm's nurseries at San Mateo. The Easter trade was equal to that of any previous year.

F. C. Jaeger & Son turned one of their windows into a rose arbor for Eastertide. Dorothy Perkins ramblers were used. This, in conjunction with the fine weather that came just before the festival, made people stop and think the good old summertime had come. F. C. Jaeger, Jr., stated that twenty-two men were kept busy by the Easter trade.

Avansino Bros. & Co. used spring blossoms for the pre-Easter decorations of St. Mary's cathedral and lilies for Easter day.

F. T. Schlotzhauer, of the Francis Floral Co., is applying for a copyright on some of his floral baskets. He purchases the uncolored baskets from all parts of the world and colors them in hues to harmonize with the flowers they are to contain.

Elaborate decorations for the Palace hotel were made by Fred Bertrand, of the Palace Flower Shop.

The Charles C. Navlet Co. found an unusually large demand for Easter lilies.

Joseph's had a peacock Easter window, arranged by George P. Wagner. A large open wicker chest, painted in peacock panels, contained peacock feathers amid a mass of flowers. A large stuffed peacock surmounted a bank of flowers. M. M.

SEATTLE, WASH.

The Market.

There was a large enough supply of lilies to care for local needs during Easter week and growers say they have never enjoyed a larger shipping business than they are in a position to report for this year. Despite predictions that so much of the crop would not be ready for the holiday, forcing brought along most of the plants in time for use in the open market. Lilies sold at lower prices than a year ago and this has helped materially in creating an adequate demand. At the same time, it was noticeable that quality received preference over price in nearly every instance. Weather conditions for the early part of the week before Easter were ideal, which helped both growers' and retailers' business.

Novelties for Easter were potted lilacs, brought in from both local growers and Oregon greenhouses, and the first potted rhododendrons of the year, the latter coming from local growers. The lilacs were not perfect as to color, but proved to be popular stock with buyers. Prices charged to cover costs on the rhododendrons lessened the popular demand for these plants. Other potted offerings sold well, with hyacinths more plentiful than tulips. One store in particular was able this year to sell more than double its usual quantity of tulips and hyacinths.

Some potted cyclamens are still to be seen and primroses are quite plentiful. Potted hydrangeas are the newest popular-priced item and as such have been moving freely. French hydrangeas have been especially good sellers, with whites and pinks most popular with the buyers.

Roses are still in smaller supply than local demands could use. Wards have been in good demand and the usual potted specimens of Dorothy Perkins and other roses for Easter attracted notice. Butterfly is probably the best stock from the local growers.

There has been a decided increase in the supply of lily of the valley and gardenias, but sweet peas continue scarce and high-priced. An increase is seen in the cut of carnations and the pinks and reds are showing better color as the direct result of more sunshine. The cut of local orchids is heavier and is nearly equal to present demand.

Various Notes.

F. C. Smith, of the Smith Floral Co., Tacoma, Wash., was a visiter last week. He said business conditions at Tacoma were good and that the florists were anticipating a satisfactory Easter trade.

The Hollywood Gardens had the first potted rhododendrons shown here this season. Lilac from this firm's own greenhouses was also shown. William Holmes reports that Mrs. Holmes has sufficiently recovered from her recent operation to be moved to their apartment and that she is convalescing nicely.

The Chas. H. Lilly Co. devoted its entire show window at the First avenue store to Easter lilies at a price based on delivery of all stock by the customer.

Eugene Lamble, of L. W. McCoy's, received the congratulations of the trade, March 20, on the celebration of his "twentieth" birthday. An unusual funeral piece was produced lately by this firm to entirely cover a grave. It was made of purple magnolia leaves.

It is expected that Seattle florists will have a large part in the plans and management of the horticultural exposition to be held at Seattle each year during the week of July 12. The city recently secured the rights for presenting "The Wayfarer," the religious spectacle which created so much comment in the east two years ago, and will enact this pageant at the new stadium of the University of Washington,

Ward roses are coming in more plentifully from the greenhouses, while some good potted lilacs are being brought in from Portland, Ore. George Rosaia is back from a business trip to Portland.

Fred Gust, Pacific coast representative of the McCallum Co., returned from a road trip covering his entire territory, last week, and reported that in practically every section visited the florists were enjoying a business more nearly normal than any other trade.

In order to care for the Easter trade successfully, the Pinehurst Floral Co. took another store room in the Queen City Market building, Carl Melby taking charge of the annex while Dr. Allen handled the store.

The Orpheum Floral Co. found it necessary to add several salespeople for the holiday week. Gino Desidiri, manager of this store, was kept away from work for a short time by a bad cold.

Increased decoration activities, especially for the larger churches, and business which required practically doubling the sales and delivery forces marked the week for the Woodlawn Flower Shop. H. M.

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

TENNESSEE nurserymen report that the season this year is fully four weeks earlier than last year. Planting is now completed.

A POOR stand of dormant peach buds is reported at Winchester, Tenn., caused by too much rain when the seedlings were budding.

THE Aberdeen Floral Co., Aberdeen, Miss., is preparing to go into the nursery business, in connection with the lines already handled.

THE Southern Nursery Co., Winchester, Tenn., has added a range of greenhouses to its establishment and will also enter the seed business in the near future.

PLANS are already being laid by nurserymen of Seattle, Wash., for the entertainment of those visitors who will attend the annual convention of the Pacific Coast Nurserymen's Association, the week of July 12, at Seattle.

THE purchase of forty acres of land near Minneapolis, Minn., and the purchase of over $7,000 worth of nursery stock constitute the preparations made by T. J. Bigelow, of Minneapolis, for entering the nursery business.

A NURSERY will be established by G. F. Hetzer, of Baltimore, Md., and associates, at Martinsburg, W. Va. Mr. Hetzer purchased 114 acres of land, March 9, for a sum in the neighborhood of $25,000. Fifty acres will be used as an orchard and the remainder as a nursery.

THE Poughkeepsie Nursery Co., of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., has orders for thousands of evergreen and fruit stocks. Among the orders are those of the Finley J. Shepard estate, at Tarrytown, N. Y., and the Roxbury estate, in the Catskills. The management now consists of William J. Godding and P. J. Melle.

NURSERYMEN at Rochester, N. Y., are expecting to do considerable work in a short time. Some of the men temporarily employed in Rochester firms will be hired for nursery work and the public schools will be closed a week in April to give the nurserymen the help of the boys. This is called nursery week and is in lieu of Easter holidays.

THE Brainard Nursery & Seed Co., Thompsonville, Conn., has received the resignation of Peter Zuger, foreman of the greenhouse department for the last three years. W. C. Savage is succeeding him. Mr. Zuger has entered the service of the city of New Haven, Conn., in the park department. Business for this season of the year, according to C. F. Brainard, was never better and bookings for spring business are most satisfactory.

CASH AND CARRY.

"Cash and carry" is good for the grocer, and why not for the nurseryman? William A. Peterson, proprietor of Peterson Nursery, Chicago, says it is the best kind of business. Saturday, March 19, was unusually heavy in cash orders at the nursery. Thirteen automobiles were counted at one time. Almost $400 in cash sales for the one day leads Mr. Peterson to believe that this business is worth going after.

"We can afford to let buyers who get the stock at the nursery purchase at half-price," he said. "It helps us in every way. We let them pick their own stock and do not even have to guarantee it true to type. This spring we have been doing more business than ever before. The few days of cold weather recently were just what we wanted to retard growth a little."

HOW KALLAY CLIMBED.

Few nurseries in that district famed for its nurseries, near Painesville, O., have made more rapid strides in such a short time than have Kallay Bros. Bela Kallay, head of the concern, was employed by Storrs & Harrison Co. for thirteen years in the capacity of propagator and general plantsman. His foresight and ingenuity enabled him to look into the future and see the prospects of owning his own business. He launched out with little or no capital, but with a firm determination to make good. He began with two acres of land, growing shrubs, perennials and evergreens. This was in 1907 and every year since then the firm has added to its acreage and today has eighty-four acres fully stocked with trees, shrubs and perennials.

Kallay Bros. are making a specialty of evergreens, especially the newer varieties, and have some 60,000 young stocks to plant this season. In addition to their nursery, they have a large seed house and in this line are also building up a fine trade. T. J. M.

FIGURING RETAIL PRICES.

Finding a Basis.

Retail prices for nursery stock should be figured upon a basis that will provide a reasonable percentage of profit upon the entire investment. The conditions affecting different nursery companies, scattered as they are over this entire country, are so varying that it would hardly be safe for one company to follow closely the plans which have brought success to others, unless a careful analysis had been made of the conditions under which the others have operated.

Some estimates must be carefully figured before one is reasonably safe in naming prices, and such a plan is better than basing one's prices upon those of his competitors, who may be operating under entirely different conditions or using other sales methods.

As it is the relation of retail prices to the cost of the stock that is to be considered here, the other costs entering into the business of distributing nursery stock to the retail consumers must be quite accurately determined.

Grouping Expenditures.

Although the general books will show all expenditures carefully itemized and classified, we will here consider them as in four general groups:

First: General overhead and office expense, including officers' or proprietors' salaries.

Second: Selling costs, including salesmen's selling commission, delivery commission and shrinkage.

Third: Packing costs, including labor, materials and prepayment of freight.

Fourth: Stock costs.

volume of his business for the coming year, it would be an easier task to fix prices. A study of existing conditions compared with former experiences will greatly assist one in estimating future volume of sales.

It is the volume of sales that will mostly affect the item of general expense, for all of us are generally loaded up with a fixed overhead expense which is so heavy we must necessarily watch this charge closely. So much of this cost is firmly fixed that the only way general expense percentage can be materially reduced is by increasing volume. But if volume is considerably decreased, net profits may easily be more than wiped out. Therefore it is general expense that is most quickly and surely affected by an increase or decrease in volume of sales.

A careful analysis of general expense items, which, of course, include officers' or proprietors' salaries, over a fixed period of years should enable one to estimate quite accurately in advance the expense percentage on a given volume of business. With us we find that it is averaging thirteen per cent.

Selling Cost.

Selling percentages vary but little with companies who secure their business through commission salesmen. Companies who work through salaried salesmen or catalogues no doubt name a figure within which business is profitably secured. It costs us forty-five per cent to cover the salesman's commission for selling, delivering and standing his shrinkage.

Under packing costs we include packing labor, materials used, and prepayment of freight. Packing cost, we find, has shown a marked relationship to prices. As prices have advanced, the percentage of packing cost has diminished. Even though lumber, nails, twine and everything used, as well as labor and freight, have increased greatly in cost, still packing cost percentage has decreased, because of the greatly increased value of the stock handled, and last season this charge was five per cent, instead of seven per cent, as it was the year before.

The packing cost is greater for some sorts than for others, but we are unable to determine just what this difference amounts to. However, we do know that it costs more to pack, box and prepay freight on $10 worth of apple trees than on $10 worth of grape vines, but surely the packing cost is no greater on a $2 cherry tree than on a $1 peach tree. However, as packing costs amount to only five per cent, no great variation results.

Net Profit.

Net profit should also be as carefully considered as anything else, because it is this profit for which we work. It should not consist merely of what is left after all other costs are paid, but instead should be figured in as a cost of doing business. With us we feel that a profit of ten per cent net on sales should be satisfactory. As this estimated profit should be religiously safeguarded, it surely will do no great harm to figure a little generously and allow twelve per cent for net profits, so as to assure one of at least ten per cent.

It would appear now that if we secure our estimated volume of business, we can pay thirteen per cent for general expenses, forty-five per cent for selling, five per cent for packing, net ten per cent to twelve per cent as profits and allow twenty-five per cent for stock cost; and our experience has justified us in figuring our prices on this basis.

GRAFTED ROSES

Five hundred thousand this year and half of them sold! The old, worn-out section won't do for the days that are to come—days when production will tell the story of profit or loss. Labor is plenty. Dig in and replant. We can still supply the best that can be produced, before-the-war quality; better shipping conditions, better deliveries than we have had in the past few years. Get good soil under and good roofs over our grafted roses and watch things grow!

Let us know the verdict!

We cannot leave this subject of prices without once more referring to the cost of selling and, even though it does include the delivery, commission and the shrinkage, forty-five per cent is out of proportion to all other expenses. This figure is entirely too large and should be subjected to a close scrutiny.

Reduce Selling Cost.

It is possible that companies who sell through catalogues or salaried salesmen are able to secure their business at a smaller cost and those of us who sell through commission salesmen may well afford to consider carefully this fact, that the salesman is getting 45 cents out of every dollar received for the stock.

We put up a big kick over a freight and express rate increase, even though

ATTENTION, FERN BUYERS

At this time you are no doubt considering buying or placing your orders for Ferns. We desire to call your attention to the fact that we specialize in ferns, and are prepared to supply you with as fine stock as can be grown. Why not prove to your own satisfaction what the quality of ferns bought from us will give? While the production capacity of our plant has been trebled during the past year, and we are in a position to take care of a large volume of business, yet we would advise the large buyers to protect themselves by placing orders early.

that increase amounts to only a small part of the five per cent allowed for packing, etc. If a similar effort were made, coupled up with sensible co-operation, we should easily clip from this forty-five per cent selling cost enough to pay the whole packing charge, which would permit us to add fully twenty per cent to the value or amount of stock furnished.

Our problem now is to handle this business in such a manner as to give the purchaser all the good nursery stock possible for his money. Any saving in the cost of transacting business we may accomplish, if used for an increase in stock percentage, will be a sure method to increase those desired net profits.

RIGHTING A WRONG ADDRESS.

In the March 3 issue of The Review, on page 128, appeared a statement to the effect that the nurseries of Thomas Meehan & Sons, Dresher, Pa., were offered for sale at auction and that there were no bidders.

The nursery grounds of the estate of Thomas Meehan, deceased, at Germantown, Philadelphia, were offered for sale for legal purposes of attempting the close of the estate. The nurseries of the Thomas B. Meehan Co., at Dresher, had nothing to do with that sale. The Dresher nurseries are known by the name of Thomas B. Meehan Co., and are under other management than that of Thomas Meehan & Sons, at Germantown.

We made a heavy planting last spring and are making a still heavier one this year, and we have not the slightest intention of either selling out or going out of business.

In regard to the nurseries of Thomas Meehan, Germantown, the local technicalities of the estate now being adjusted

HAPPY DAY

OUR NEW SCARLET CARNATION

There are Reasons for All Growers Wanting this All-Purpose Scarlet Carnation.

1—Because it has the most brilliant color of all Scarlet Carnations. Color never fades under any conditions. A true Christmas color.
2—Size, full three to three and one half inches.
3—Early and extremely free-flowering. Comes into crop with any of the earlier varieties.
4—Perfect calyx—no splits at any time.
5—Perfectly straight, stiff stems.
6—Growth is all that is desired in a commercial carnation.
7—An easy propagator. Makes strong plants that transplant without any severe check.

Price, $15.00 per 100; $120.00 per 1000. Immediate Delivery.

NOTICE OF SHIPMENT.

Now Condition of Entry.

The following notice has been mailed out by the federal horticulturai board. Upon careful perusal it will be seen that no new notice is required by the importer, but that the notice of shipment, formerly without specific status, is now a condition of entry.

Hereafter all nursery stock, plants and seeds entered under regulation 3 of Quarantine 37 will be refused entry unless and until the notices required in regulations 10 and 11 are fully made out and lodged, with other entry papers, with the collector of customs. Hitherto this requirement has applied only to the notice of arrival, but hereafter it will apply, as indicated, both to notice of arrival at the port of entry and to notice of shipment to the ultimate consignee.

This action has been necessitated by the growing laxity on the part of importers and brokers in submitting the notice of shipment required under regulation 11. Numerous complaints have been received from state nursery inspectors that they frequently receive the notice provided for in this regulation long after the stock has reached destination or even after it has actually been planted. Moreover, in some instances no reports are received at all. The board has a drastic remedy which it is loath to apply under regulation 13: Failure of the permittee to give any notice required by the rules and regulations under the quarantine may be made the basis of canceling existing permits and refusal of further permits to the importer at fault. The action now taken will make the submittal of these notices, in the manner indicated, a necessary condition of entry and customs officials will be so advised. The distribution of these notices to the secretary of agriculture and to the duly authorized inspection officer of the state, territory or district to which the nursery stock and other plants and seeds are to be shipped will be completed by the inspector in charge of the work of the federal horticultural board at the port of entry.

This order will apply merely to ports where the federal horticultural board maintains such inspection service. At other ports the importer will be required to make out and submit these notices as formerly, and at such other ports he is cautioned to mail these reports both to the secretary of agriculture and to the proper state official before or at the time of shipment and distribution of the imported stock. Failure to do so may lead to the enforcement of the penalties provided for under regulation 13.

T. R. Norman, of the firm T. R. Norman & Sons, is on the sick list.

W. H. Nichols & Son shipped a large consignment of chrysanthemums and California privet last week.

The packing house, garage and office, combined, of Joseph F. Martin, is near completion and speaks for itself of the progressiveness of this firm.

John G. Gullo, foreman for the R. E. Huntington Co., is at Buffalo, N. Y., on a business trip.

E. H. Schultz and J. J. Grullemans, respectively manager and superintendent of the Wayside Gardens Co., say that business was never better and the demand for perennials is far ahead of previous years.

Carl Hagenburger, of West Mentor, O., reports an excellent Easter business and that he cleared out all available stock.

R. A. Hacker has a large force of men and boys planting hard-wooded cuttings. Mr. Hacker intends to double his output this year.

George Martin recently added three additional acres of land, which will be devoted to growing perennials.

W. B. Cole says business is excellent. This concern has 550 acres of nursery stock and claims to be the second largest nursery in Ohio. T. J. M.

AGERATUM, Fraserii
We feel confident in offering Ageratum "Fraserii" to our customers that we are offering what will be one of the most valuable acquisitions to the bedding plant line in recent years, that is a blue, a decided blue, that would be continually in bloom. In our trial grounds last summer "Fraserii" attracted more attention than any other bedding plant. It only grew about eight to ten inches high and was covered the entire season with what can easily be classed as immense trusses of flowers, as many of them were over 2½ inches across, while the individual flower would be ⅞ of an inch in diameter. The plant spread about 12 to 15 inches across. It can easily be used with Alternantheras as a border plant.
Being an early bloomer and dwarf, compact grower, it makes an excellent pot plant.

Greenhouse Heating

Subscribers are invited to write the editor of this department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. When information is desired regarding the capacity of boilers, or the amount of radiation required for a greenhouse, the needed temperatures should be stated in the inquiry, as well as the amount of glass in the side walls, and the dimensions and general arrangement of the greenhouses. It is often helpful, also, to have a sketch showing the location of the houses.

IF BUSINESS SHOULD BOOM!

Warning of a shortage of coal next winter was sounded at Washington last week by Dr. George Otis Smith, director of the United States Geological Survey.

The railroads, he declares, are able to handle a much greater production than they are now handling, while consumers are buying as little coal as possible.

"Of course," he says, "the coal man has come to expect a period of dullness in early spring as one of the drawbacks of his seasonal business. But this year the slump is far worse than the normal.

"If business suddenly should resume at full blast, we know the railroads will be hardly in a position to haul coal enough to rebuild stocks, meet current consumption, and handle other freight at the same time without signs of distress."

Production of bituminous coal plunged downward again during the third week of March. The total output was estimated at 6,468,000 tons, a decrease of 433,000 tons, or six per cent, when compared with the week preceding. The output was nearly 6,400,000 tons short of the weekly rate attained last December before the decline in production began.

RETURNS FOR NEW HOUSE.

I am building a house, 30x112 feet, which is fourteen feet to the ridge. The side walls are three and one-half feet high, with twenty inches of glass. One gable is glass, while the other is protected by a service building. The house extends northeast and southwest. I shall use solid beds. How many 2-inch returns will it take to maintain a temperature of 50 to 55 degrees, when the outside temperature sometimes goes as low as 15 to 20 degrees below zero? I expect to use three 2½-inch flows overhead. H. E. W.—W. Va.

If the lower end of the returns is well above the top of the boiler, it will answer if three 2½-inch flows are used. However, if the lower end is not above the top of the boiler, four or five flow pipes would be necessary.

With three flows we suggest the use of twelve 2-inch returns, although ordinarily it would be advisable to use fourteen returns to maintain a temperature of 50 to 55 degrees at the outside temperature stated.

The smaller number is suggested, since in West Virginia the cold periods are of short duration and not frequent, and a little extra attention to the firing at frequent intervals would be more economical than a permanent investment in heating pipes. If four or five

TO THE MAN WHO NEEDS A BOILER

"The customer's interest first"—is the basis of the KROESCHELL standard. This principle makes the KROESCHELL Policy the most liberal of all in the Greenhouse Boiler business. The great variety of boilers that we make places us in a commanding position. It is the KROESCHELL principle to supply only the type of boiler best suited for the conditions. For this reason we always furnish the most efficient boiler unit in every case.

The KROESCHELL has proven its worth in many of the large establishments in this country. It has frequently been selected by the most careful buyers in competition with all other types of boilers. Its efficiency and capacity are completely beyond any other boiler.

KROESCHELL BOILERS have no bulky, soot-accumulating surfaces—you avoid the disagreeable work and trouble indispensable to cleaning boilers with complicated and tortuous back and forth fire passages.

The superiority of our boilers has resulted in the removal and abolishment of hundreds of cast iron sectional boilers—in every instance KROESCHELL BOILERS give more heat with the same piping with less fuel.

What Is YOUR Contribution?

All smoke clouds are made of money, but not all heat wasted up the chimney can be seen in the smoke. It is excess air escaping into the combustion chamber that carries the heat units up the chimney, cools the gases of combustion, and causes smoke. But stops that waste. Its air-tight, gas-tight construction prevents air infiltration, short-circuiting of gases, and heat radiation. Use PLIBRICO and pay only for the coal you use. Then no cloud of unburned carbon will float away from your stacks.

Why is PLIBRICO better than ordinary fire brick? Because it is jointless; it is plastic and can be easily installed by any one about the plant; it is air-tight and gas-tight, and thus saves fuel; it outlasts fire brick; it can be used in any type of furnace; it withstands 3100° F.; it can be used wherever fire brick is used; it is unexcelled for patching broken and burned-out linings.

flows are used, the number of returns should be eleven and ten, respectively.

One flow pipe should be placed upon each plate, and the other under the ridge, provided three are used. With four or five flows, one might be carried on the purlin posts, or suspended about halfway between the ridge and the plates. One coil of returns should be on each side wall, and others may be carried on the sides of the beds or on the purlin posts.

HEATING PROBLEMS.

I should like to know what height a brick chimney should be, having a flue 13x18 inches. I have a Thatcher steam boiler, 7-section, with a grate area of 12.57 square feet. The boiler is rated at 3,200 square feet. How many coils would be required for a house 30x92 feet, both ends being of glass? The house is fourteen feet to the ridge. The sides are five and one-half feet to the eaves and contain one row of glass, 16x24 inches, the remainder being wood. A 4-inch main flow pipe extends the full length of the house, with 1¼-inch returns. The temperature desired is 52 degrees at 10 degrees below zero. A shed ten feet high is the only building near the house. Would this boiler heat a connected house of the same size, with no separation, to the same temperature?

A. S.—R. I.

A chimney forty feet high would be ample and thirty feet above the point where the smoke enters would answer, unless a considerable increase is made in the amount of radiation carried.

In addition to a 4-inch main, we should use twelve 1¼-inch returns. If five coils are used, we should place three pipes in each of the outside coils and two in each of the others. A 2½-inch overhead flow pipe would really answer for this house, using steam. The boiler will readily carry one, or even two additional houses.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

Business was exceptionally good last week. Stock was unusually plentiful and reasonably cheap, and large quantities were moved daily.

It has been many years since there has been such an abundance of cut flowers and plants at Easter as was in evidence on every hand this year. All the greenhouses and regular dealers had large stocks, several dealers conducting temporary stores for the handling of their large consignments. All of the department stores opened temporary flower booths and all the corner groceries, news stands and other stores handled vast numbers of potted plants, principally bulbous stock.

With the exception of Easter lilies, prices were slightly lower than those that prevailed last year, while, as a rule, the stock was of a better quality. Lilies which last year brought at retail 15, 20 and 25 cents per bud or bloom, this year were quoted from 25 to 39 cents. Potted bulbous plants brought an average of 15 cents per stalk. Weather conditions were auspicious for perfect deliveries and hundreds of pots were taken away by the purchasers.

When Holy week opened with a record-breaking official temperature of 83 degrees, consternation reigned with everybody connected with the business, as the unprecedentedly hot weather brought out the stock in overabundant quantities in advance of the Easter Easter Echoes.

Edward Brooke, of T. J. Johnston & Co., reports having the best Easter business in his experience.

William A. Bowers says he was kept on the jump all the week and had a big trade.

Notwithstanding several extra clerks and delivery trucks, Johnston Bros. were unable to keep up with the demand.

The Colonial Flower Shop handled a large amount of novelties, in addition to a big business on regular lines.

Timothy O'Connor said twice as much could have been handled if there had been time. Both at the greenhouses and at the downtown stores the drive was on.

Macnair Florist had all the business he could handle at both his regular stores, while thousands of plants were handled in a temporary store opposite.

The Westminster Greenhouses made a good clean-up with an unusually large stock.

Reuben Popkin, who conducts the store under the name of Smith the Florist, reports a big rush since the concentration of his two stores at Washington and Union streets.

The East Greenwich Greenhouses had a temporary store at the Apponaug Four Corners during Easter.

Easter Business.

Business for Easter was especially large, but the total volume may not come up to last year. Due to the unfavorable weather, there was an extreme shortage of sweet peas, violets and lilies. Also the hot weather the previous week forced in a great many of the pot plants, such as tulips, hyacinths and daffodils, in advance. They had been all placed in greenhouses, timed for Easter, but the unexpected hot weather forced them open and, consequently, a great many of the plants intended for Easter were past their prime.

However, the hot spell of weather, while being unfavorable for bulbous stock, was favorable for lilies and brought in a great many more plants than otherwise would have come in. Sweet peas, likewise, were forced in large quantities on account of the warm spell, but the cold, dark weather the last week checked them, so the supply was below the demand.

There were plenty of daffodils on the market and also enough carnations and roses to meet the demand. There was a big demand, however, for short grades of roses. Most of the trade made big preparation for plant business and all were stocked up quite heavily. Besides lilies and ramblers, which were the principal plants on the market, there were a number of primulas, cyclamens and cinerarias on the market. P.

Moorestown, N. J.—E. T. Venable has grown an acre of dahlias each year for the last three years. This year he is planning to increase his acreage and in the fall erect a greenhouse.

CLEVELAND, O.

The Market.

Business improved considerably last week and, stock being rather scarce just before Easter, the market cleaned up fairly well with the exception of bulbous stock. It seems as if every grower in the vicinity is loaded with bulbous stock and, consequently, the market has been flooded with it, which makes it difficult to get any kind of satisfactory price for it. Easter business was exceptionally good and all roses, violets, sweet peas and valley cleaned up. The demand was much greater than the supply. There was a bad shortage of all corsage blooms; in fact, it was rather unlooked-for and caught most of the wholesalers with a supply not nearly sufficient to take care of the demand. About the only stock left on their hands was bulbous stock and a small quantity of carnations.

NEWPORT, R. I.

Horticultural Society.

There was a large gathering at Music hall, Tuesday evening, March 22. An illustrated lecture was presented by Montague Free, of the Brooklyn Botanical Gardens, under the auspices of the Newport Horticultural Society. President Charles W. Philpot introduced the lecturer, who entertained for an hour with a series of colored slides illustrating, in an enjoyable way, his subject, "Native Plants for the Garden."

In opening his talk he said the embargo placed on European plants has caused the American gardeners to look to the native plants for new material for beautifying the gardens of the land. With the pictures and his explanations he showed what can be transplanted and what special soils and care are necessary for successful growing. The pictures were of plants which grow in the woods, marshes and fields, and which may be used in the development of gardens.

At the conclusion of the talk several of the gardeners asked numerous questions and Mr. Free's answers brought out a clearer understanding of the plants and flowers. On motion by Alexander MacLellan, a vote of thanks to Mr. Free was heartily given.

Business, outside of funeral work, has been rather dull for several weeks, on account of the large number of persons out of work. But early reports show the Easter trade was quite satisfactory, considering general business conditions. Prices, while higher than they have been during the last few weeks, were not so high as last Easter and this fact tended to increase sales. In addition to a large cut flower sale, a great number of potted plants were sold, including tulips, hyacinths, jonquils, daffodils, cyclamens, primroses and roses.

Various Notes.

With the advent of warmer weather, street push-cart florists are more numerous. They were especially in evidence just before Easter. R. B. M.

FORT WAYNE, IND.

The Market.

The market conditions early last week were not good, but by the middle of the week the retailers were all busy. Stock was looking fine and, considering the warm weather, bulbous stock held up well. The prices for Easter did not advance greatly. Many retailers had attractive Easter window displays.

Various Notes.

W. J. & M. S. Vesey are cutting some fine specimen blooms of Cattleya Mossiæ, as well as a number of Cattleya Schroederæ.

Herman Leitz, of the New Haven Floral Co., spent a day with the Van Wert, O., florists. Mr. Leitz reports that they are now doing some replanting and have a fine crop of Premier and Columbia roses.

The Flick Floral Co. estimated that its Easter trade had broken all records.

The Blossom Floral Co. has found it necessary to increase its sales force and has secured the services of Mrs. Tiplady.

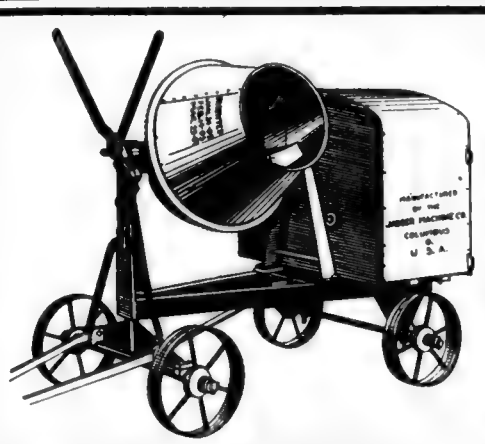
Pulverized Sheep Manure



Packed for Retail Trade

In addition to the general line of fertilizers, we are offering to the florist pulverized sheep manure in bags and leakproof packages for the retail trade. The only objection to the odor and dirt caused in the handling of this fertilizer is absolutely overcome by the manner in which our particular brand is packed.

The 5 and 10-pound packages have a blank space so that the dealer may stamp his own brand or firm name on the package. This should serve as an inducement to the purchaser, as this gives him a standard package ready for distribution.

One Man With a Merry Garden Did the Work of Four Men in the Same Time and Did It Better

SOLVES LABOR PROBLEM

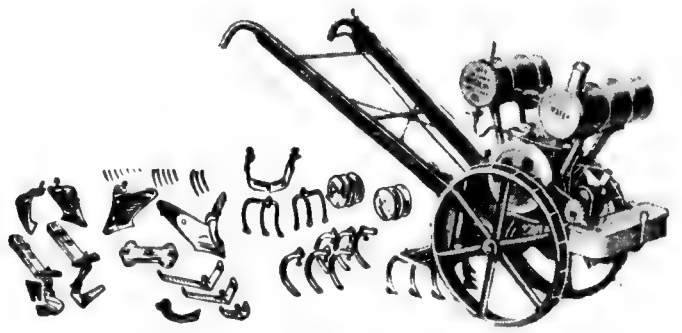
By A. F. J. Baur, Secretary of The American Carnation Society

From "The Florists' Review," Feb. 10, 1921

"Seeing a discussion in the columns of The Review regarding the merits of motor-driven cultivators, I feel impelled to add a word regarding our experience along that line. It is a most important matter to the trade and will be more so as time goes on.

"About a year ago we purchased a Merry Garden Cultivator. We judged that this implement was just about what we wanted here for cultivating young carnation plants in the field, and for any other cultivating of a similar nature.

"Up to last spring we had been using Planet Junior man-power cultivators. We were obliged to put four men in the field after every rain in order to secure the full benefits from the rain. During the past summer, with a slightly enlarged planting, we found it possible to do all our cultivation with this one Merry Garden Auto-Cultivator. It did the work in the same time as the four man-cultivators and did better work. We would not think of parting with this implement.



"We break our field in the late fall and work it down with the disk in the spring, using the team for both operations. After that, we need only the light cultivator and the Merry Garden is just the ticket for that."

A. F. J. BAUR,
Secretary, The American Carnation Society

Many Write Like This:

"The Merry Garden Auto-Cultivator easily pays for itself in labor saved every 30 days. On our place, one man cultivated, in 3 hours, a patch usually requiring two men, with hand cultivators, a day and a half. Besides, the job was done twice as deep."

BURKHARDT FLORAL CO.
10906 Avon Avenue Cleveland, Ohio

That's cutting the cost of cultivating to the bone. And when you cut cost this way you profit two ways, i. e., by saving the hire of three or four men and by being able to get better prices for what you grow. With a cultivating is merely an easy chore, quickly but thoroughly done, no back-breaking drudgery, no loss from mutilated plants. Straddles narrow rows—works between wider ones. Exhausts to side, thereby protecting plants. Cultivates, disks, harrows and weeds. Also operates 30-inch lawn mower.

Merry Garden Auto-Cultivator

Equipped with pulley and stand for stationary power work. Hundreds in use in floral gardens all over the country, and many owners have said they would not part with their Merry Garden at twice the price they paid if they could not buy another.

With Five New Improvements the 1921 Model is a Better Buy

Steel Cut Case Hardened Gears protected from dirt gives longer life.

The time a Merry Garden saves quickly pays for it—sometimes in 30 days

The price of this implement equipped with set of hoes is $230.00 f. o. b. Cleveland. And there's a dollar's worth of real time and labor saving machinery for every one of the two hundred and thirty.

LIVE DEALERS WANTED

The Atlantic Machine & Mfg. Co.

2637 E. 79th Street CLEVELAND, OHIO.

TORONTO, ONT.

The Market.

The Easter trade proved excellent and all the Toronto florists made records. It was early apparent that there were not enough lilies to supply the demand, so made-up baskets were resorted to with good results.

Lilies did not have the usual number of blooms, plants with only two blooms being quite common. It was necessary to make pots with several bulbs to make up for this. Prices were from 35 to 75 cents, but few lilies were available at the low figure, 50 cents per bloom being the common price, except for choice blooms, of which there were many available, but a big demand soon cleared the benches.

The window displays were exquisite. It was evident that the florists went to special pains to make the windows attractive. Pans of lilies were usually arranged in front with baskets at the back, or arranged in banks with the bank extending into the store and, in many cases, becoming part of a general scheme of display.

Various Notes.

The Toronto Gardeners' and Florists' Association held its regular meeting March 21, when Prof. A. H. Tomlinson, of the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, gave a series of lantern views illustrating famous gardens and good garden arrangements. These were carefully explained and suggestions were made for carrying out a good garden scheme. Prof. Tomlinson, while in Toronto, visited the several sites from which a choice is to be made for a botanical garden.

Several Toronto F. T. D. members will accompany Vice-President H. G. Dillemuth to Detroit to urge upon the F. T. D. executive the wisdom of extending the Canadian convention to three days. This will give the Canadians an opportunity to entertain those who have, on so many previous occasions, entertained the Canadians. Every F. T. D. member should be at the Canadian convention. The Canadians have been fully organized and a warm welcome awaits all who come over here to the convention this fall. J. J. H.

Fairhope, Ala.—Miss Ruth Copeland expects to open a retail store next summer with a good line of potted plants.

Waukegan, Ill.—Andrew Murphy, a practical landscape gardener with considerable experience in both Duluth, Minn., and Superior, Wis., moved here recently and contemplates reëntering the trade in the spring.

SKINNER SYSTEM OF IRRIGATION.

Peter Kellen Woke Up With a Jolt

Peter Kellen, of Niles Center, Illinois, woke up the other day to the fact that he had been giving away a lot of his profits to one man and dividing them with two others.

He used to hand-water in his greenhouses. Took all the time of one man and a good part of the time of two more.

Having those men standing around just letting water run out of a hose got on his nerves.

So he put in a Skinner System of watering, and at once did away entirely with one man and cut the time of the other two so much that in three months' time it had paid for itself.

Things like this are not just advertising talk. They are cold, indisputable facts, of which we have literally bushels to show you.

Let's do some figuring, you and I.

Tell us the size of your houses; the number and time of the men it takes to do your watering, and we will send you some figure facts to make your eyes pop out.

TOTTY'S 'MUMS.

A familiar slogan for nearly twenty years. The stock we offer you today is absolutely free from the dreaded midge, having been propagated entirely from plants that have been grown outdoors all summer, lifted in the fall and housed solely for propagating purposes. It costs more to raise stock this way, but the results obtained more than justify the cost. The following varieties we can offer for immediate delivery in 2½-in. pots; planted out in a bench now and stopped, they will give you quantities of fine, clean cuttings during the next four months.

Remember we guarantee this stock is ABSOLUTELY CLEAN!

25,000
TRANSPLANTED CYCLAMEN SEEDLINGS.

In the best commercial colors, consisting of light salmon, dark salmon, wine red, Christmas red, Rose of Marienthal, Daybreak, white with pink eye, and white; and the best strain on the market, throwing some blooms the past season with us that measured 3 and 4 inches from tip to tip. We will give you 65 per cent salmon if you prefer.

Our method of growing transplanted seedlings is entirely distinct from others and gives them the most vigorous root growth you ever saw. No plant will have less than 4 leaves and from that to 8, and you must expect to get stock that will please you.

Let us put you in line so you can grow some of the big stuff for next Christmas.

PELARGONIUM EASTER GREETING.

Do you blame us for having a little pride in being the original introducers of this sterling novelty? It has stood the test and increased in popularity.

Our Mothers' day 4-in. to be shipped about April 20, will make you money; better place your order at 20c. The 3-in., if ordered soon and shifted will be fine for that holiday, as they are strong and vigorous; up to May 1 they will be desirable for Memorial day; they are yours at 11c. The 2¼-in. will make you money no matter how treated, but there is nothing gained by delay; your after-Easter space can be filled with them very profitably; ready to ship to you now at 8c. The small buyer is on the same basis as the large.

Don't forget we have been, are and will be headquarters for Easter Greeting in all seasonable sizes. When you become acquainted with our standard of quality and packing, then you will know where to send your orders. It costs money to talk in this column, so, in a nut shell, when you think of Easter Greeting, think of S. C. TEMPLIN & SON, GARRETTSVILLE, O.

PETUNIAS

PETUNIAS.

Diener's Ruffled Monsters, single. The largest and most beautiful ruffled variety of Petunias in existence. Ruffled Monster seed in separate colors, pink, red, variegated, white, red with black center, pale lilac, and all colors, mixed.

The following somewhat smaller than the Ruffled Monsters: Pearl of Kentfield, flesh pink frilled, dwarf, purple or blue and white frilled.
Price per packet, 50c.

Catalogue will be sent free on request. Write for it today.

Mr. W. L. Ferguson, Smiths Falls, Ontario, under date of Dec. 2, 1919, writes us the following in regard to our petunias:

"Last year I purchased Petunia seed from you. I think every seed germinated and the blooms were the finest ever seen in this part of Canada. Only about 8 per cent of the plants could be classed as common. I want more of the same quality each year."

Mr. Rudolf Nagel, Lancaster, Pa., under date of Dec. 14, 1919, writes us:

"I had last year just a few of your petunias, but I am sure I could have sold thousands of them. They surely came up to your claim and way ahead of my expectation."

SEEDS

THE DIENER TOMATO.

Increase your tomato yield 100 per cent by raising the new DIENER TOMATO, 30 to 40 tons of ripe fruit to the acre.

This tomato was raised last year all over the United States and Canada with the greatest satisfaction.

As smooth as an apple and of a magnificent dark red color. Single tomatoes weigh up to 3 lbs. each. The flesh is more solid than that of any other tomato. The fruit contains little seed and is solidly filled out. This tomato is free of the acid taste, and for dehydrating, catsup and canning it is the best tomato in existence today.

The DIENER TOMATO is blight-resisting as well as drought-resisting. It will not crack from the rain and will not rot while lying on the ground in wet weather. This tomato will grow in almost any kind of soil and it commences to ripen the first part of August.

It is the greatest novelty in the tomato line and it will soon crowd out the present varieties from the market by its far superior qualities.

Price of the DIENER TOMATO SEED. Sample package, 25c; one-quarter of an acre package, 50c; one acre package, $1.50.

RICHARD DIENER CO., INC.,
Marin County, Kentfield, Cal.

DAHLIA SEED.

This seed is raised from the most up-to-date Dahlias in existence. No place in the world have Dahlias been brought up to such perfection as they have been around San Francisco. This mixture contains all colors and types of Peony, Cactus and Decorative varieties. The seed we sent out in previous years was highly praised by all who raised Dahlias from it, but this seed is far superior to what we have sent out in previous years. The seedlings will commence to flower two months after sowing and almost a month earlier than plants raised from bulbs.

Price 50c per package.

Marin County, Kentfield, Cal.

PORTLAND PETUNIAS.

This large-flowering strain is the finest we ever have seen. Once grown, you will never do without them. We offer seed as follows:

Pride of Portland, large deep rose-pink.
White Beauty, fine pure white.
Elks' Pride, striking deep royal purple.
Scarlet Beauty, unusual color, shading from cherry-red to deep maroon.

Any variety, 50c per packet.

CUTWORMS OR SNAILS.

I am sending a few carnation buds for examination. I have one bench that is practically all affected and I do not know how to combat it. I have examined a number of buds and have not been able to find any trace of a worm or insect. Please let me know as soon as possible what is causing the trouble and the methods to use in order to check it. The remaining benches, while there are a few buds destroyed, are not nearly so bad as this one bench.

V. B. & S.—Mich.

Your carnation buds are being eaten by either cutworms or snails, probably the latter. They feed at night; that is why you do not find them. Poisoned bait is the usual method of extermination. Mix bran and molasses to make it sweet and then add enough Paris green to make it deadly. Drop this along the edge boards and wherever they are likely to get it. Repeat every few days until they disappear. This bait will do for both cutworms and snails.

TIME TO PLANT CHERRIES.

When should ornamental cherries and peppers be sown so that the plants will be suitable for the usual winter sale? We want to try growing them in the field. We should also like to know the names of the popular varieties.

G. F. V.—Tex.

Seeds of both the peppers and ornamental, or Jerusalem, cherries should be sown at once. They would have been better sown a month ago, but in your warmer state they should make good-sized plants outdoors. The peppers do not lift so well as the cherries and for that reason are better grown in pots. You will find Cleveland a splendid cherry to grow. Orange Queen makes a nice plant and is well worth growing in smaller quantity.

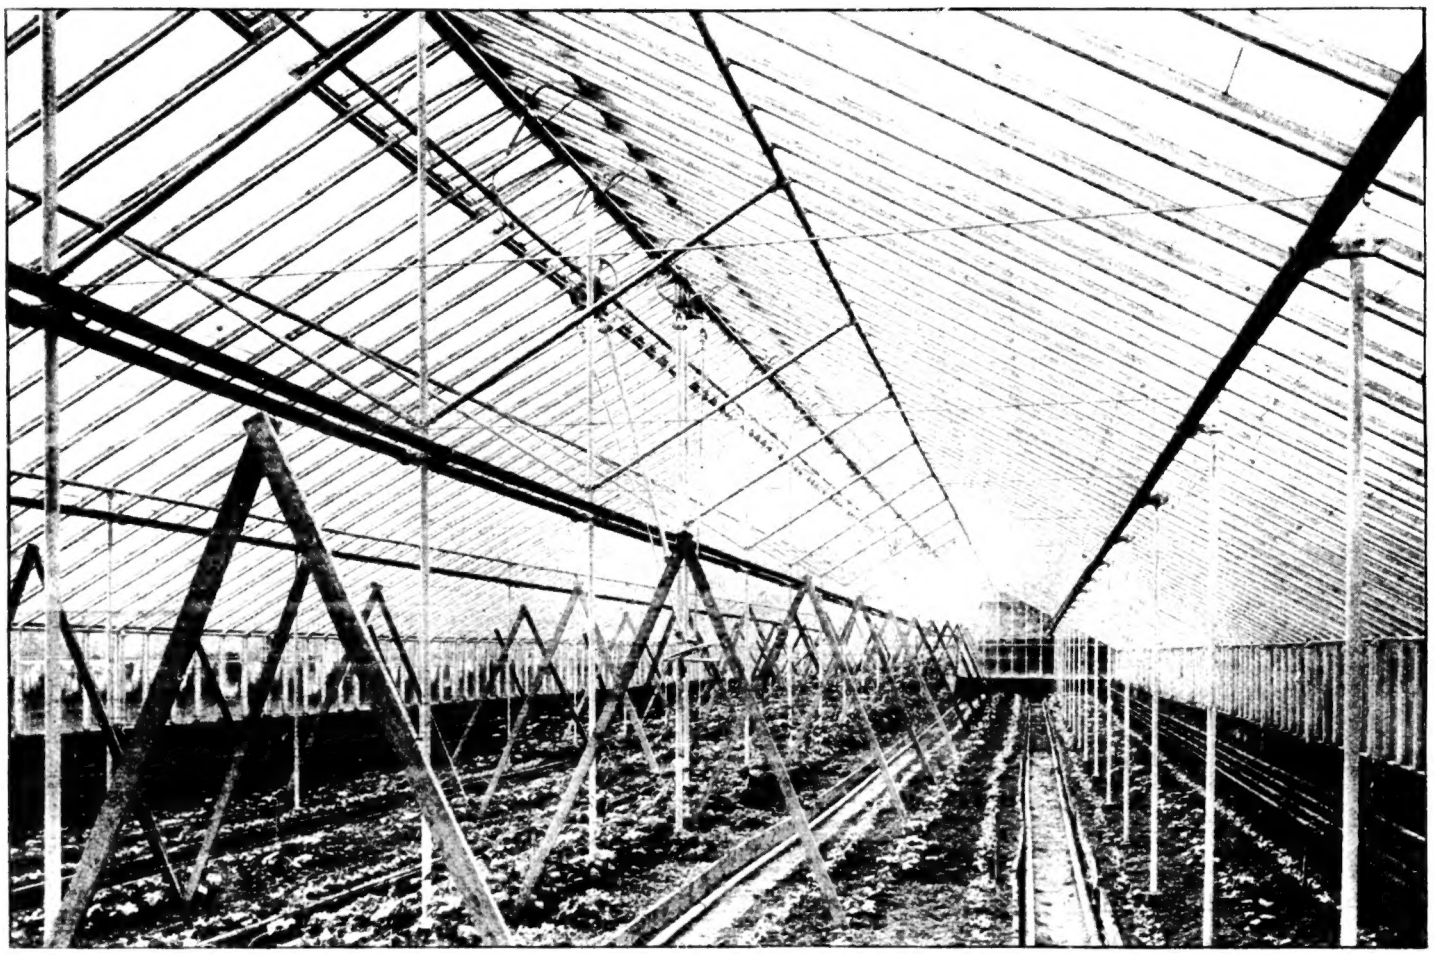
BLOOD FOR FERTILIZER.

We wish to ask your opinion about using fresh blood from the slaughter house. Of course this blood is mixed with water. Is this kind of blood a good fertilizer for roses and will it take the place of dried blood? There is a cistern near our houses and we have a force pump with which we can pump it into the greenhouses. Will it be necessary to use bone meal with the blood?



J. S.—Ill.

I have not had any experience in using blood in this way, but the idea does not appeal to me for several reasons. First, it would be disagreeable to use; second, I am of the opinion it would not be good for the plant roots, and third, unless it was made extremely thin it would clog the surface of the soil.

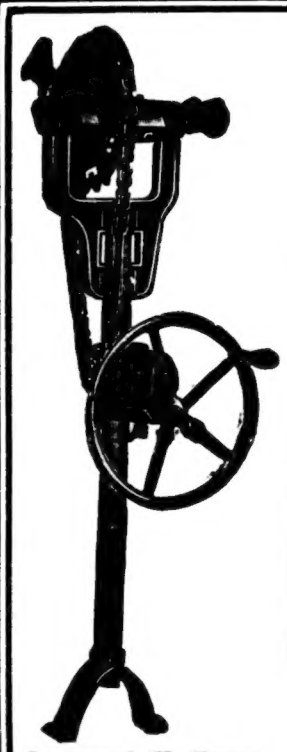
THE problems of a Retail Florist are many and difficult, but when he also gets into the wholesale growing he certainly has a whale of a lot of things to look out for. Now, when it comes to building greenhouses, this same florist really has not the time to look after the building details.

It therefore becomes necessary for him to get hold of a reputable, reliable greenhouse manufacturing and building concern, to whom he can safely leave all the details of the work and know when the building is finished, that he has an honest, modern and economical greenhouse, cleverly designed and substantially constructed.



The logical company to turn to in a case of this kind is "Moninger's," because they have proved their worth by the thousands of greenhouses they have built all over the country.

May we have the pleasure of your inquiry?
